Midwest Launches Cleanup After Tornado Kills 248

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The battered Midwest, stricken Sunday by the worst tornado barrage in 40 years, braced today for fresh devastation from flooding.

Where there was no flooding in those states, there was the bitter task of cleanup in the aftermath of the Palm Sunday tornadoes that claimed 248 lives, injured an estimated 5,000 and caused more than $235 million damage.

The twisters were blamed for 141 deaths in Indiana, 54 in Ohio, 43 in Michigan, 7 in Illinois and 3 in Wisconsin. Scores of others were missing. Tornadoes touched down in Iowa but no deaths were reported.

Help was on the way for the tornado-lashed states. The Small Business Administration designated parts of Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio and Indiana as disaster areas. President Johnson was expected to offer wholesale federal relief funds for the repair of public facilities and, in some cases, to also provide assistance for farmers and businessmen.

The worst is yet to come for much of the Midwest along the

CHARRED REMAINS—Two men look over what remained after a fire Tuesday night destroyed a storage warehouse used by Home Appliance Co. and the building occupied by Harloff Manufacturing Co. on East Platte Place. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Major Blaze Destroys Buildings on Knob Hill

Buildings occupied by the Harloff Manufacturing Co. and Home Appliance Co. on East Platte Place were totally destroyed Tuesday night in a fire that apparently broke out in the Harloff building.

A spokesman at the Knob Hill Fire Department said this was the second fire this year for Harloff Manufacturing Co., which was burned out Jan. 23 when it was located in the Skyline Apartment Building at 2239 E. Platte Pl.

Harloff, which manufactured clean-up carts and food service equipment, occupied the building formerly known as The Attic, an antique shop. Home Appliance Co., 1834 E. Platte Ave., used the warehouse to store new appliances. Eckoff Firestone also suffered major damage in the fire. Insurance representatives of the companies were on the scene last night to begin estimating the costs of the fire, still listed of undetermined origin by Knob Hill Fire Department this morning.

The fire spread from the Harloff location to the adjacent storage warehouse used by Home Appliance Co.

The fire then spread to the Eckoff Firestone Co., the next building north, where major damage was reported.

The fire was confined to the 2200 and 2300 blocks on Plate Place, a U-shaped area south of Platte Avenue.

The Knob Hill department's alarm sounded at 10:55 p.m. Tuesday. Sixteen firemen, led by Chief Joe Gordon, operated the two trucks. North Suburban Fire Department sent a pumper and the Colorado Springs Fire Department arrived at the scene with a pumper and a deluge set.

A spokesman at the Knob Hill Department said when they arrived, the firemen couldn't get to the scene because several power lines were down. A second major problem, the spokesman said, was ruptured gas lines. The City Utilities and Gas Departments were called in immediately to remedy these problems to allow firemen to combat the fire.

City police were also called to help control the spectators who arrived at the scene, and to keep traffic out of the way of the fire equipment.

The fire was under control by midnight but standby crews remained on duty throughout the night. Firemen reported in at 8 a.m. today after securing the last hose line.

"Spectators, as usual, were a hindrance," the Knob Hill spokesman said. "People run a terrible risk to themselves, as well as the work of the firemen when they crowd into the area where there is a fire."

"The only thing to use to move people from a fire scene is a hose," he said, "and last night we couldn't spare the water."

Two Resolutions Directed Against Concrete Co.

City Council Tuesday passed two resolutions directed against operations of the Castle Concrete Co.

They decided to delete the company's name from one resolution when company spokesmen said they would reseed where they are stripping limestone north of the Garden of the Gods.

This resolution expressed the city's concern with defacing a large area on the Rampart Range facing Colorado Springs and deploring injury to the region.

The other resolution was a request to the U. S. Bureau of Land Management to withdraw the Air Force Academy to Cheyenne Mountain section of the Rampart Range facing Colorado Springs from filing of mining claims, excluding present claims.

Council Seeks Regulation of Business Signs

City Council Tuesday directed City Attorney Frederick Henry to prepare ordinance to define "more clearly" residency criteria of council candidates and to regulate signs in the downtown business area.

Councilman William Roe, who sponsored the measures, said there were "mushrooming free standing electrical signs" on filling stations. Roe has previously complained of the size of filling station signs along Academy Boulevard.

Roe commented that anybody who runs for the council should be aware of residency requirements. (The City Charter specifies five years' residency for the council job.) Roe said the charter was unclear regarding fulfillment of residency by a candidate who lived in an area just annexed to Colorado Springs.

Council hired Higginbotham, Nakata and Muir, architects-planners, to design the 3,000-square-foot addition to the present Peterson Field terminal. This space will be used by the Federal Aviation Agency. This firm is also designing new airport facilities on the west side of the field.

Four zone changes were approved on second reading without opposition.

After considerable discussion by George Williams, a water

Fury of Raging Mississippi Flood Wreaks Growing Havoc

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The bloated Mississippi River, ice-jammed as northern tributaries began to break up, inched upward today with steadily mounting fury, damage and human misery.

Every fraction of an inch it rose in this city of some 350,000 persons, the river moved toward a record crest of 27 feet, possibly late Thursday or Friday. It was beyond 24 feet today. The previous high was 22.2 feet, set in the 1952 flood.

Most of St. Paul was above the river, but south and east of the downtown section railroad yards, the city airport and the basements of scores of industrial plants lay under a widening area of swirling, muddy, ice-crusted water.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag estimated that this year's floods in Minnesota, starting 10 days ago, had already caused more than $20 million damages and before the waters recede 21,000 persons will have been made homeless. Forty-five of Minnesota's 87 counties have been declared disaster areas.

Eleven deaths have been attributed to the floods so far.

The Mississippi River, a tourist attraction at its source 250 miles to the north because a child can leap over it, presented a growing threat to St. Paul and dozens of communities downstream.

The St. Croi and Chippewa rivers, and scores of smaller streams and lakes, ice-jammed and swollen with rain and melting snow, join the Mississippi below St. Paul.

Forecaster Joseph Strub of the Weather Bureau said the waters feeding the Mississippi downstream "all will exceed the 1952 flood by 2 to 3 feet" and all "necessary precautions should be taken."

South and west of the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Mississippi and Minnesota River, which feeds into the Mississippi, had ravaged dozens of communities. Mankato, Henderson, Chaska, Shakopee, and Savage, larger towns in their paths, were largely covered by flood waters.

Nearly six feet of water covered the downtown city airport in St. Paul. The city's railroad station had nearly eight feet of water in its basement. The adjoining freight yards were immobilized under nearly two feet of water.

The St. Croix was jammed with ice at Stillwater that lay just a few feet under the lift bridge linking Minnesota and Wisconsin. Dynamite was used to break up the ice jams Monday and Tuesday, but the river remained ice-covered.

Dozens of homes were evacuated along the St. Croix from Stillwater southward to where the river joins the Mississippi, near Hastings.

The Minnesota stood at nearly 28 feet at Mankato, still about 7 feet above flood stage, but slowly receding. Last week the river forced nearly 3,500 persons from their homes in Mankato and North Mankato.

Above the Twin Cities, the Mississippi was slowly breaking up, but it was one foot above flood stage at Camp Ripley.

At Crookston, Minn., the Red Lake River crested at nearly 26 feet, then began receding, but some 25 families were evacuated from low lying homes. The crest level was a record at Crookston. Dikes in the area

De Gaulle Raids U. S. Gold Reserves With U. S. Funds

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The hundreds of millions of dollars the U. S. is spending in France for the defense of that country are being used by Russia and Red China-coddling President de Gaulle to massively raid the steadily declining U. S. gold reserve.

Since 1957 the U. S. has poured $2.482 billion into France for NATO defenses. In that same period France has used these dollars to acquire more than $2 billion in U. S. gold — some $750 million in the past year alone.

In 1957 this country's gold reserve was $22.857 billion. Today, it is less than $15 billion — a loss of around $8 billion.

These profoundly revealing facts highlight two backstage communications: (1) A letter from Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler to Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill., vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee; (2) a "fact sheet" by Representative Otto Passman, D-La., chairman of the foreign aid appropriations subcommittee, sent to its members.

Fowler's letter, in response to a series of questions from Douglas on U. S.-French dollar relations, disclosed the following "total U. S. military expenditures in France on a U. S. fiscal year basis":

1957	$453 million
1958	$375 million
1959	$318 million
1960	$280 million
1961	$299 million
1962	$269 million
1963	$257 million
1964	$231 million
Total:	$2.482 billion

DE GAULLE'S GALL

Also highly significant is Fowler's answer to another Douglas question — that since 1958 the U. S. has given $2.774 billion in "economic grants and loans to the 21 countries which were

No 'Missiles' In Cuba, Says House Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report said today the consensus of top intelligence officials is that there are no intermediate-range ballistic missiles in Cuba.

The report said this is based on direct and intense questioning of top intelligence officials by a House subcommittee on inter-American affairs, headed by Rep. Armistead Selden D-Ala.

Reports that Soviet missiles are hidden in Cuban caves or smuggled in the holds of ships "are said to be traced to the movement of antiaircraft missiles or to the movement of shorter range tactical-type missiles that are known to be in Cuba in some numbers," the report said.

"U.S. intelligence officials feel that the frequency of high-level U2 flights presently being maintained is adequate to safeguard our national security interests."

Militarily, the report said, there were two major developments in Cuba in 1964: Cubans taking over control of surface-to-air missiles, and the corre-

Astronomers Disagree With Russians

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A trio of U.S. astronomers disagree with Soviet scientists' conclusions that fluctuating radio signals from a distant object are being produced by some super civilization.

Dr. John Wyndham, a radio astronomer at the California Institute of Technology, told a news conference Tuesday that Russian views "must be based on lack of data — information which we have here."

Wyndham and Dr. Allan Sandage of the Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories, and Dr. Marten Schmidt of Palomar agreed that the signals from the distant object — known as CTA102 — are of such tremendous strength they must have a natural rather than an artificial cause.

Academy Water Lines Spring $400,000 Leak

By RAY HERST
GAzette Telegraph City Editor

The hot water lines to the Air Force Academy's Community Center area have sprung a leak — a $400,000 leak and no one seems to know too much about it.

The academy's public information office says it doesn't know anything about it and the base procurement officer, who issued a call for bids, said he doesn't know anything about it.

The Academy's engineering office apparently knows something about it, but nobody was able to reach an engineer to obtain the information.

But it is a fact that the high temperature hot water lines in the Community Center area are badly in need of repair.

The Academy said the repairs would cost $400,000 and that bids for the project would be opened May 11.

It is the third repair project announced for the 10-year-old institution in a matter of days.

Approximately $25,000 will be needed to repair the irrigation system in the cadet area and

Change of Venue Is Sought for Murder Trial

A motion for a change of venue in the case of Othmer Hermanitz also known as Otto Hermanitz, charged with the murder of William E. Lucas was filed in district court Tuesday.

More Than 8,000 Marines Guard Yanks in Viet Nam

By JOHN T. WHEELER

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — A new landing of U.S. Marines brought the total number of leathernecks in South Viet Nam today to more than 8,000 guarding American installations and personnel.

Light rain fell as a battalion of 1,400 Marines moved ashore from the transports Henrico, Union and Cook and the new amphibious assault ship Vancouver.

A landing party commander said the operation was routine.

Rain and low clouds delayed for several hours movement of the Marines by helicopter to Phu Bai airport, 35 miles to the north near the city of Hue. The weather lifted late in the morning, and the troop movement began.

About the same time government troops launched a helicopter assault on a company of Viet Cong about 12 miles south of the Marines' landing beach.

Initial reports said a government ranger and five Viet Cong were killed, and two rangers were wounded.

The Viet Cong made no attempt to interfere with the Marine landing. Three government rangers were reported wounded and several guerrillas killed during a clearing operation in the area Tuesday.

Taking up positions around Hue, the new arrivals will guard an important air strip there and provide security for approaches to bustling Da Nang air base, the staging area for many of the U.S. and Vietnamese planes striking against North Viet Nam.

The Marines waded ashore, took up defensive positions on the beach and then began to relax.

Some of the Marines in full combat gear took photographs of their buddies.

They declined to give their names or hometowns, saying

Gary Herbert Named to City Planning Group

Attorney Gary Herbert was appointed Tuesday to the City Planning Commission by the City Council.

He will fill the unexpired term of Andrew Marshall Jr., which runs to May 9, 1966. Marshall resigned after he was elected to the council April 6.

Herbert said he would attend Thursday's meeting of the Planning Commission as "an observer."

The attorney has lived in Colorado Springs since September 1963. He has offices in the Mining Exchange Building and resides at 905 W. Cheyenne Rd.

Marshall's letter of resignation was accepted Tuesday by the council. He used the letter to express "gratitude for having had the opportunity to serve on this commission, with its truly conscientious and devoted members."

Three other commissioners' terms expire May 9. They are O. L. Clark, Arnold Taylor and Rev. Arthur W. Pierpoint.

The work of the Planning Commission has been regarded on almost a par with the City Council. Commissioners have just finished a master land use plan for the metropolitan area and have up to 40 items on their meeting agendas.

The city is seeking applications for the three terms which will expire in May. Commissioners may be reappointed.

Two members of the commission may reside outside of but within three miles of Colorado Springs limits. At present O. F. Shepard lives outside the limits. There are no other requirements for serving.

Marshall was chairman of the commission. Taylor is its vice chairman.

Maj. Gen. Warren To End Tour of Academy Duty

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren is almost certain to leave his post as Air Force Academy superintendent in July.

The only thing that would prevent his reassignment would be a highly unusual and extremely rare extension of duty.

Warren's three-year tour of duty ends in July. No academy superintendent has ever served as head of the institution for more than three years.

In fact, various officials could not remember when the superintendent of any of the nation's major military academies served beyond his prescribed tour of duty.

"It's a three-year job," one official said. "That's it. When it's up, you're gone."

There is a possibility that Warren's tour could be extended, but it is so remote as to be non-existent.

There have been reports and rumors that Warren would be reassigned hinting that the shift was a result of the recent scandal which saw 109 cadets forced to resign because of cheating and honor code violations.

However, Warren's reassignment has nothing to do with this.

"His tour is up, that's all," one official commented.

Academy public information officials said to their knowledge Warren has not yet been notified of his reassignment. They said the superintendent was in Washington attending a conference of academy superintendents.

Tame Owl Escapes Shotgun; Finds Safety in Captivity

By DIAL TORGERSON

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Mr. Hoo Hoo — the owl who loved not wisely but too well — is back where he started: in captivity.

His love for food cost him his freedom, and almost his life.

The owl was reared as a pet, then freed. But instead of catching mice he hunted handouts — especially from young girls.

Trouble is, he's a huge bird, with wings spanning almost four feet.

At the sight of him swooping down on the local playground — seeking a friendly shoulder and a cracker — the children would scurry, shrieking, under the shelter of parked cars. Six girls were scratched by the owl's claws.

Laguna's Bluebird Canyon, where Mr. Hoo Hoo lived in an eucalyptus tree, seethed with contention as bird lovers and parents clashed over Hoo Hoo's habits.

The crisis came when one father had to use a broom to free his daughter from Mr. Hoo Hoo's talons.

Authorities passed the word; catch that bird, or destroy him.

That's how Mr. Hoo Hoo ended up trading his perch for a pen.

"The man from the animal shelter said the order had gone through for the game warden to destroy Mr. Hoo Hoo," said June Budd. "Then, Sunday, as we were getting ready to leave for church, we saw the owl sitting on a fence.

"My husband just walked up and grabbed him. He knows my husband, or he'd never have let him get that close — Mr. Hoo Hoo wouldn't let the animal shelter men anywhere near him.

"We had already fenced off the dog run, hoping we'd catch him, and my husband put him in it. It wasn't much of a fight. At least my husband was able to go to church in the same suit."

Once before Otho Budd had caught the owl, took it 20 miles into the hills, and released it — but found the owl home again next morning. He is afraid to try it again, for fear Mr. Hoo Hoo might fly home once more — for a date with the game warden's shotgun. Budd plans to keep the owl in the 10-by-10-foot cage.

Thanks to publicity given his case, Mr. Hoo Hoo is the only owl in town who gets fan mail. Fourth grade students at Tampa, Fla., mailed him $1 for his cause. Bird lovers dropped him encouraging notes.

Mrs. Dell Wheeler, of Three Rivers, Mich., a writer of children's books, wrote Mrs. Budd that she planned a book about Mr. Hoo Hoo, contributing a share of the profits to Laguna's Society for the Prevention for Cruelty to Animals — already enriched with the Tampa children's $1.

Neither fame nor captivity has altered Mr. Hoo Hoo's unwavering stare. He seems, within the narrow gamut of owlish emotion, to have found happiness: the children of Bluebird Canyon now love him.

"All the children come to see him, now he's in a cage," Mrs. Budd explained. "They hoot at him, and he hoots back, and he eats out of their hands."

Oldest Ocean Liner Is Sold for Scrap

TRIESTE, Italy, (AP) — The Italian liner Saturnia, oldest passenger liner on the transatlantic run, was hauled to its last dock today to be broken up for scrap.

The 24,346-ton ship arrived in its home port Sunday from New York.

The liner was launched Dec. 29, 1925. In 1963 she had completed more Atlantic crossings than any other luxury passenger ship. The liner has carried more than half a million passengers.

A sister liner, the 24,496-ton Vulcania, also will be dismantled here in a few weeks.

Their place on the Italian Line's New York-Trieste run will be taken June 3 by the 29,191 ton Cristoforo Colombo.

Two new liners, the Rafaello and Michelangelo, will take the Cristoforo Colomboa's place on the Naples-Genoa-New York run.

A home-made bleaching agent for the skin is a combination of four ounces of lemon juice, two ounces of rose water and two ounces of glycerin. Lemon juice added to cleansing cream and hand lotion will also hasten the bleaching process.

Round Up Campaign Over in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The Defense Ministry today announced the end of a six-week campaign against Indonesian raiders in the swamps and jungles of Malaysia's mainland.

A ministry spokesman said only "a few" Indonesians are still at large in southern Johore State, 180 miles southeast of Kuala Lumpur and are no longer considered a threat.

The campaign was touched off by a seaborne guerrilla landing on Johore's southeast coast last Feb. 25.

'Earnings' Are Returned To Church

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Two hundred dollars given churchgoers Feb. 7 has been turned into more than $2,000 by parishioners of the First Methodist church.

The Rev. J. Douglas Gibson gave each member of his congregation a dollar of his own money two months ago and asked them to attempt to return a profit.

Sunday, members of the church turned in $2,010.57 as earnings from the original $200.

Gibson said over-all donations on Palm Sunday totaled $4,762.53.

"I am delighted with the result," he said.

The minister said that he had passed out the $200 and read the Parable of the Talents found in the Gospel according to Matthew.

Gibson said the parishioners earned their profits in various ways. One boy made mosaics. Several women bought material and made aprons. Two young brothers sold parched peanuts. A doctor's wife sold cotton candy. Members of a Sunday School class pooled their dollars and staged a pancake dinner.

American Aid Official Killed By Viet Reds

SAIGON South Viet Nam (AP) — An American aid official captured by the Viet Cong Aug. 8 was shot and killed by his Communist captors on Jan. 12 after he escaped for seven days, a U.S. spokesman announced today.

The official was Joseph W. Granger, 39, of Sumter, S.C. His mother, Mary F. Granger, lives in West Hartford, Conn.

Granger, an Air Force veteran, was the U.S. economic assistance mission's representative in Phy Ye Province, 230 miles northeast of Saigon.

He was captured in an ambush with a Filipino assistant and the Vietnamese manager of a sugar cane experiment station.

The U.S. spokesman said independent eyewitnesses had reported his death.

"The American mission condemns in the strongest terms this brutal murder of an unarmed civilian, weakened by hunger and unable to defend himself," the spokesman said.

"This is a violation of international law and accepted humanitarian principles.

"His murder is a wanton violation of the 1949 Geneva convention on the protecton of civilians."

Liquor Store Not Wedding Present

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Jasper Brancato won't be able to give his daughter and future son-in-law a liquor store as a wedding present. The school board won't allow it.

Joseph Conova, the bridegroom, owns a food store. Brancato wants to put a liquor section in it but needed Board of Education permission because the store is within 300 feet of the Greenwood Elementary School.

The Greenwood Parent-Teacher Association objected. So did 91 parents who signed a petition.

The board decided not to waive the requirement even for such sentimental reasons as a wedding present.

Barn Lifted By Small Tornado

A small tornado dipped out of the sky near the southern edge of Canon City shortly before noon Tuesday. A small barn was lifted off its foundation and its roof carried 40 feet by the freak funnel. There had been considerable wind in the area throughout the morning.

The structure was on the property of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gindro of 1838 Cedar Avenue. A larger, two - story barn nearby was not damaged.

The roof fell against a fruit tree, breaking off half the tree.

John Trabucco, a neighbor of the Gindros, reported that he was working in the orchard and saw the "roof dancing up and down, then take off."

Mrs. Gindro who was in the home ironing said she heard a roaring noise and saw a great deal of dust. When the dust cleared the barn roof was against the tree.

Two Resolutions Directed Against Concrete Co.

senting Castle Concrete, told the council that "it is difficult to realize the value" of the operation. He pointed out that lime stone from the quarry was used in the "Little Pentagon" here and Peterson Field runways.

Evans said the company would reseed in cooperation with the Fountain Soil Conservation District.

"This company has contributed tremendous progress to this area," Evans reminded. He said that the council's first intent, to mention the company's name in one o fits resolutions," expresses a definite condemnation of Castle Concrete that is unjustifiable" in view of the reseeding plans.

Evans pointed out that the company's plan to "return a terraced mountainside populated with ponderosa pine" was voluntary, and no law required it to do his.

Councilman Harry Scurr noted that "What I see, I don't like." Councilman T. Eugene McCleary said "this is a scar, a blight on the area."

Councilman William Roe said the company should be commended, if they actually go ahead with the reseeding.

said he was legally sane Feb. 11. Both pleas still remain unchanged.

Hermanitz's attorney William T. Eckhart is requesting a change of venue either to Fremont or Pueblo Counties. The lawyer claims his client cannot receive a fair and impartial trial in El Paso because the inhabitants of the county are prejudiced against him. The evidence produced during the sanity trial Eckhart says, shows Lucas died of gunshot wounds at the hands of the defendant.

The attorney further alleges that widespread publicity given by the press, radio and television has resulted in the prejudice that the defendant having shot Lucas and having been found legally sane must therefore be legally responsible.

He has already been given. says the motion "a trial by newspapers" in violation of the democratic processes which guarantees him trial by jury.

Academy Water Lines Spring $400,000 Leak

bids are being asked for a gravel roof on Fairchild Hall. The latter project is to cover installation of a five-ply roof over aggregate (gravel) on Fairchild.

The Academy did not say how much the roof repair project was to cost.

There have been rumors of flawed construction at the Academy ever since it took $240,000 to repair the Chapel roof before the facility was ever open to the public.

Some reports indicate that several buildings may have to be replaced but the Academy information office says it knows nothing about these reports.

Efforts to learn what happened to the hot water lines met with frustration this morning.

The information office said it knew nothing more than the fact that bids were being solicited and suggested that a call be placed to the base procurement officer.

He told the Gazette that he only knew that bids were being asked for repairs. He said he did not know what happened to the lines and suggested that a call be placed to the Academy engineering office.

"But I just tried to get him (Will Chase, project engineer) and he's not at his desk. I suggest you delay your call and maybe you'll get him later," the officer said.

A few minutes later, the information office called back to say they understood the Gazette had been referred back to them by the procurement officer.

The official said the engineers had been contacted and were preparing a statement for release.

Two hours later, the information office said the engineers were gone.

"We think they're over at Ent attending a meeting," the Gazette was told.

Trial Date Continued In District Court

Price is charged with selling liquor without a license, allowing an 18-year-old girl to sell liquor, selling liquor to an 18-year-old Ft. Carson man and selling liquor after hours. All the offenses are alleged to have happened Feb. 28.

The 18-year-old girl, Reva Kay Turner of Denver has been charged with selling liquor to a minor, Carl Lewis Dusenburry, 18. She also appeared in court this morning and her arraignment date was continued to June 9.

The two cases arose from a raid carried out by the police when Price's home was entered by the police and eight people were found on the premises drinking illegally.

The case against Dusenburry, illegal purchase of liquor, was dismissed earlier this week as he has been transferred to Germany.

they were under orders not to talk to newsmen.

Arrival of the 3rd Battalion of the 4th Regiment, formerly stationed at Hawaii, put four battalions of Marines in the Da Nang-Hue area, in the extreme north of this war-torn country.

The Marine buildup began Feb. 7, when the 1st Battalion, Marine Hawk antiaircraft missiles, was ordered from Okinawa to protect the Da Nang air base. Early in March two battalions of Marines were brought in as additional security for the base and the Hawk batteries. A third battalion arrived over the weekend.

The Marines also have two companies of combat helicopters in South Viet Nam and a squadron of 18 F4 jet fighters — the 1,800-mile-an-hour Phantoms — stationed at Da Nang.

The large Marine buildup has caused concern among some U.S. officers who fear Vietnamese commanders will feel they can rest their troops while the Americans make a turn at fighting the Viet Cong.

Brig. Gen. Frederick Karch, Marine commander in Viet Nam, re-emphasized in an interview that his forces are on a defensive mission, with orders only to protect American installations and personnel in the Da Nang-Phu Bai area.

No 'Missiles' In Cuba, Says House Report

sponding reduction of the Soviet military presence.

The report said current estimates are that there were only a few thousand Soviet military persons in Cuba scattered over the island.

It said the threat of Communist subversion emanating from Cuba "while perhaps not as great at the moment as it was two years ago, continues to be a serious menace to hemispheric security. And there are signs that a new offensive may be commencing."

It noted Communist reverses during the past year in Venezupela, Brazil, Chile and British Guiana.

"Each of these setbacks had a profound effect," the report said, "and the chances of Communists gaining complete control of other Latin-American countries in the foreseeable future appears less likely than 12 months ago. Yet in 1957 the possibility that Cuba would be Communist controlled within a year seemed equally remote."

Midwest Cleans Up Following Tornado Damage

Mississippi River, but in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan weary workers stayed on the job, cleaning up the effects of Palm Sunday's tornados.

Cleanup operations were hampered by power failures and debris-littered highways. Communications were hampered by battered telephone facilities. But where the damage was heaviest, determination was often at its highest.

"We're down but not out," said Harold Brant, 65, of Pittsfield, Ohio. "This town will rise again."

Pittsfield, a small village of 50 residents, lost 12 homes, two churches, a service station and the town hall to the tornadoes. Nine residents were killed.

At Radnor, Ohio, Paul Zeigler's neighbors rounded up 300 of his hogs and took them to market. Zeigler, a farmer, was injured in the tornado attack. His wife was killed.

In Indiana, officials were forced to call out the National Guard to turn back sightseers from the many shattered counties in central and northern Indiana. Incomplete estimates indicated those areas suffered at least 141 deaths; 1,200 injuries; the destruction of more than 2,000 homes and farms, and loss of nearly 800 vehicles. Seventy-five factories were destroyed or badly damaged.

Many communities remained without fresh water.

Officials distributed water in milk cartons in the city of Greentown, east of Kokomo, Ind.

Michigan officials put the tornado damage toll at $30 million. They said the tornadoes affected about 9,000 persons, killing 43 and injuring more than 500.

One tragic story came from Mrs. Martin Terpstra of Comstock Park, Mich., a suburb of Grand Rapids.

A tornado killed her husband, a daughter and a family friend as it swept through the area, turning the Terpstra house into splinters.

formerly associated with or territories of France."

In other words, while "le grande Charley" is imperiously seeking to thwart or undermine U. S. foreign, trade and fiscal policies, this country is carrying the burden of aiding France's one-time colonies. De Gaulle is haughtily viewing with alarm this country's balance-of-payments deficit, but a sizable chunk of that is due to the U.S. paying his bills.

Following is Fowler's striking report on this:

Total U. S. Economic Grants and Loans to the 21 countries which were formerly associated with or territories of France for the fiscal years 1953-64.

	1958	1959	1960	1961	1962	1963	1964	Total
(in millions of dollars)
Africa	$62	$84	$142	$224	$149	$251	$192	$1.10
Southeast Asia	$249	$258	$246	$198	$201	$234	$264	$1.67
							Total	$2.77

"The 18 countries in Africa which were formerly associated with or territories of France," added Fowler, "accounted for 39.8 per cent, or $1.1 billion of the total for the 21 countries. The countries of former French Indo-China — Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia — accounted for 60.2 per cent, or $1.7 billion of the total."

U. S. tourist expenditures in France are another important factor in the payments deficit, Fowler pointed out, and annually becoming more so. Since 1957 these dollar outlays in France have risen steadily, as follows:

1957	$83 million
1958	$93 million
1959	$103 million
1960	$118 million
1961	$105 million
1962	$112 million
1963	$119 million

The Treasury chief also advised Senator Douglas that since 1957 France has obtained $236 million from the U. S. in "shipping payments for passenger and freight movements to and from France on French vessels, airlines, etc."

At the same time these billions in dollars have poured into France, it has done nothing about paying $6.456 billion owed this country in World War I debts. In addition, $597 million in World War II debts are still outstanding — two extremely pertinent matters never mentioned by De Gaulle.

WHO GOT THE GOLD

Representative Passman charges flatly, "The foreign aid program has been the primary reason for our serious gold outflow to foreign countries.

"On December 31, 1957, our gold stockpile amounted to $22.857 billion," Passman points out in his "fact sheet." "On December 31, 1963, our gold stockpile had dwindled to $15.596 billion, a drop of $7.261 billion in six years. Calendar-year 1964 figures on the 'gold outflow,' which will be even more serious, are not yet available in certified form.

"During the period 57 countries received $12.436 billion in military and-or economic aid from the U. S. Also during this same period, these nations 'purchased' $6.977 billion of our gold. I leave it to you whether this does not convey a true story as to the effect foreign aid is having on our gold reserves, balance-of-payments position and stadily soaring public debt."

Leading gold accumulators among the big U. S. aid beneficiaries are:

Austria	$342.6 million
Belgium	$716.2 million
France	$2.165 billion
Italy	$248.8 million
Japan	$202.7 million
Netherlands	$585.1 million
Spain	$514.3 million
Britain	$2.163 billion

"The foreign aid program is not in reality a presidential program, although it is submitted to Congress in his name," asserts Passman. "It is a bureaucratic program. The President has too much to do to be able to familiarize himself with the many ramifications, misrepresentations and claims of accomplishment by paid bureaucrats, government lobbyists, spenders and recipients."

ANOTHER BULLSEYE —

Senator Wayne Morse, D-Ore., leading foreign aid opponent in his chamber, charges French contractors "stole us blind" in building U. S. airbases in their country for their defense.

Following is what Morse told the Senate — without challenge from any source:

"I shall never forget standing on the airbase in France which we had built at tremendous expense to American taxpayers. The Senator from Louisiana kicked stone after stone out of the cement. The stones were half as big as an egg; sometimes as big as an egg. We were told by Americans in charge that no U. S. fighter plane had ever landed on that airbase.

"Landing an American fighter plane on that airbase would have wrecked the plane because the runway was so defective. So we were going to have to rebuild the runway at an additional heavy expense. The French would not do it. The French contractor had not lived up to specifications. He robbed us blind, as they did in a good deal of the constructions that American taxpayers paid for.

"But we could not tell that story. It was top-secret. It finally did get out, although not from us. That is why I am able to talk about it now on the Senate floor."

Senators Frank Lausche, D-O., and Philip Hart, D-Mich., want the Johnson administration to launch a vigorous drive to urge Americans to do their traveling and touring at home. Lausche favors going even further and appealing to the people not to visit France. Says Lausche, "We have been considerate of the problems of the French, but President de Gaulle is not equally considerate of our problems."

U.S. Leaflets Dropped Over North Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes dumped three million leaflets over North Viet Nam today, telling the population that American air strikes against Communist military targets "are aimed at stopping the aggression of Red China."

A U.S. military spokesman indicated that the leaflet drop was the first of a series. The leaflets were scattered over four highly populated areas in the southern part of North Viet Nam.

U.S. Air Force planes also bombed two radar installations in North Viet Nam.

The leaflets in effect call on the North Vietnamese people to overthrow their government. The wordage is similar to that contained in Communist pamphlets aimed at U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam.

The day's bombing strikes were against the Hon Matt and Cua Le radar installations, about 130 miles south of Hanoi. Fifteen F105 fighter - bombers and 15 Air Force Phantom jet interceptors participated. Both targets had been hit in raids Tuesday.

House Approves Presidential Succession Bill

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a proposed constitutional amendment designed to insure the smooth flow of presidential power when a president becomes physically or mentally disabled.

By a 368-29 margin, the House moved to plug a gap left in the Constitution by the Founding Fathers. On a roll call late Tuesday, 246 Democrats and 122 Republicans voted for the proposal, 21 Democrats and 8 Republicans voted against it.

The Senate, which passed a similar amendment two months ago, must accept minor changes made by the House or work out a compromise before congressional action is completed. Three-fourths of the states — 38 — must ratify it before it would become the 25th amendment to the Constitution.

House action brought close to the finish years of work by many leading lawyers and constitutional experts to provide a constitutional method for guarding against a break in the exercise of presidential duties.

The amendment actually deals with two problems, filling a vacancy in the office of vice president, and fixing a procedure for having the vice president assume the powers and duties of the chief executive's office when the president is disabled.

The proposed method for filling a vice presidential vacancy is to have the president appoint one, subject to confirmation by majority vote in the House and Senate.

This provision came under the heaviest attack in the House, with some members arguing it "downgraded the speaker" by removing him from the line of succession to the presidency.

The speaker would still be next in line if the offices of both the president and vice president were vacant, but a vice president succeeding to the presidency could name another vice president, so the likelihood of both offices being vacant is remote.

Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., strongly supported the amendment and said during the 14 months he spent next in line to President Johnson he felt "great concern about the vacuum in the matter of determining the incapacity of the man in the White House."

A proposal to strike that provision from the amendment failed by a vote of 140 to 44.

Science Fiction Known Among Russians, Too

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW, (AP) — Soviet science reporting occasionally turns into science fiction in its efforts to glorify Soviet scientific achievements.

The deflated sensation over cosmic radio signals and claims they came from another civilization out in space was only one of a series of such colorful but inaccurate reports.

Soviet astronomers' complaints Tuesday of sensationalism in Soviet press coverage of science have been frequently voiced in the past in Soviet scientific journals.

These protests have usually been made after Western scientists questioned the reports. One Soviet scientist has written that such incidents make Soviet science a laughingstock in the rest of the world.

One brief sensation was the report that frozen 5,000-year-old salamanders had been revived by geologists who found them in Siberia.

The story was quickly dropped after strong indications appeared that an overenthusiastic journalist had taken the account from a children's storybook.

In another instance, newspapers published stories last year that the bones of a mate of the abominable snowman had been found in the Caucasus Mountains. Five Moscow specialists later said the bones were those of an ordinary homo sapien.

A few weeks later, a newspaper published a claim that a geological expedition had sighted a 100-million-year-old reptile swimming in a lake in northern Siberia.

The report was greeted with skepticism in Moscow. But one Soviet writer argued that since the Loch Ness monster probably exists, so could the Russian monster.

Another favorite is scientific detection of historic crimes. Specialists have claimed to have proven scientifically that Alexander Pushkin and Mikhail Lermontov, the great Russian poets, were victims of foul play in the duels of honor in which they died.

Pushkin's opponent was said to have been wearing a steel vest. Lermontov was alleged to have been shot by a third party from ambush.

Other specialists have vigorously denied both stories.

Council Seeks Regulation of Business Signs

tap was granted to Marion B. Williams for .4 of an acre southeast of Columbia Court and Columbia Road. Three other taps were granted, not in this area.

Annexation petitions were received for the following areas, and were sent to the City Planning Commission for recommendations:

— Real Estate Management Corp., 62 acres northeast of Academy Boulevard and Templeton Gap Road.

— Dorsey Gebhart, three lots northwest of Marilyn Road and Holiday Lane.

— Ray Frost, .6 of an acre northwest of Swope and Pikes Peak Avenues.

— Colwood Development Co., 112-115 W. Iowa St.

Annexation requested in the area of Sunnyrest Sanitorium was delayed, pending advertising for annexation of a larger area. Councilman Harry Scurr said the annexation should be larger to "square off" city boundaries.

Smartt Construction Co. was granted a zone change from single family to two family residential for 1303 Tappan Circle and 4022 Foster Circle.

The First National Bank was granted a revocable permit to install two 6,000 gallon fuel and oil tanks under the sidewalk on West Pikes Peak Avenue, adjacent to the Antlers property.

The drainage fee for the Camp Creek Basin was established at $165 an acre.

A revocable permit was issued to the Union Printers Home for an additional 20 feet to widen the north side of Airport Road from the east line of Union Boulevard to the west line of K-Mart property. A fence now on the property was allowed to remain.

A retail license was granted to Daniel J. Fisher for a retail liquor license for the Rustic Hills' Bottle Shop, 1409 Academy Blvd.

Vacations, plats and replats were also accepted by the council.

North Viet Nam Arms Movements Are Impaired

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said today American bombing attacks in North Viet Nam are causing substantial trouble for the Hanoi government and are interfering with Communist infiltration of men and weapons into South Viet Nam.

They said the raids are affecting morale and in time will demage the prestige of President Ho Chi Minh's government.

Just a fortnight ago, Washington's official assessment of the effect of the raids was about the opposite. Officials were saying they doubted the Communists' ability to infiltrate men and supplies into Viet Nam had been crippled.

Just a week ago, exactly two months after the series of bombings had been launched, U.S. authorities were reported still awaiting some sign that the attacks were "turning Hanoi's mind around."

The revised estimate of the results of the steadily intensified bombings was given to American editors and broadcasters attending a national foreign policy conference at the State Department.

Officials also told them what Washington has been saying almost from the start — that the raids are having a dramatic effect on boosting morale in South Viet Nam and that before they were begun there was a feeling close to despair in South Viet Nam.

State and Defense Department officials still do not foresee Chinese Communist intervention in the Viet Nam war.

At present, Peking and Hanoi apparently are working together closely. But this collaboration could change if North Viet Nam decides the punishment it is receiving from air attacks is not worth its efforts on behalf of the Viet Cong, officials said.

Labor Government Suffers New Setback

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Labor government defeated a censure motion in the House of Commons Tuesday night but suffered a setback when the House of Lords amended one of its bills.

With the support of the Liberal party, the government defeated 316-290 a Conservative motion to censure it for scrapping the TSR2 nuclear bomber. Britain has taken out an option on the U.S. F111 to replace it but has made no firm purchase commitment.

The predominantly Conservative House of Lords voted 144-69 to knock out a clause in a bill denying compensation for war damage to the Burma Oil Co. The British army blew up its installations in Burma during World War II to keep them from falling into Japanese hands.

5 Residents Were Killed By Tornado

SHIPSHEWANA, Ind. (AP) — ainbow Lake wasn't on the ap.

It's not even on the ground w.

Fifteen persons died within conds Palm Sunday as a tornado splintered three dozen mes at the junction of U.S. 20 d Indiana 5, a mile south of ipshewana.

"This is what you call complete devastation," said Trooper R. Jack, 36, Lagrange. Thomes homes are gone; even e rubble is gone."

Only the skeletal concrete ectangles of foundations mark here the victims once lived, en suddenly died.

Many of the victims were ennonite. Unlike the Amish in is horse and buggy area of orthern Indiana, they had odern appliances, but for any the warnings broadcasted eft too little time.

Noble Harrer, 35, was able to arry his wife and child into a asement. They survived, but e died trying to shepherd his arents, also killed, to safety.

The tornado cut a swath of destruction 1,500 yards wide by Jack's estimate.

Two couples, including an elementary school principal, died in one house. The hospital list of injured numbered 35. Another 100 were treated and released.

A state troper who saw the tornado hit commandeered panel trucks to carry the casualties to a hospital. There were only three ambulances available in the area, Jack said.

At the site of one demolished house today, two tiers of concrete blocks already had risen as the foundation for a new beginning.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

Editor's Note: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — Rather than mail my tax return in, can I drop it off at the Internal Revenue office here?

A — Yes you may. If you have a balance due, you should also make payment at the cashier's window when you come in.

Q — I had a gift tax to pay when I turned some property over to my wife. Is this tax deductible?

A — No. Gift taxes are not deductible.

Q — Can I use the state sales tax table you issue as well as taking a deduction for the gasoline tax I paid?

A — State and local taxes on gasoline are deductible separately when you itemize. These taxes are in addition to deductions for sales taxes on the table you referred to.

Q — My husband and I were divorced last year. I had no income of my own but I do receive alimony. Is this taxable and do I have to file a return?

A — Alimony is considered taxable income. Therefore, a return must be filed if your alimony payments were $600 or more for the year.

Note that payments specifically designated for child support are not taxable and should not be included in your gross income.

Q — Is there a special form to use when claiming the medical expenses paid for dependent parents 65 and over?

A — Use Form 2948, the medical and dental expense statement. It provides an easy method of listing the expenses for those under 65 and for those older.

Q — Our son enlisted in the Marine Corps last fall. He had been our dependent up to that time. Can we claim him as a dependent for all of last year or only part of it?

A — Either you are entitled to a full exemption for him or none at all. Exemptions can't be split up or prorated.

To determine whether you can claim his exemption, add up the military pay and other allowances he received and used for his support last year. If his gross income amounted to less than $600 and you contributed more than half his support for the year then you may claim his dependency exemption, assuming he is a U. S. citizen and is not filing a joint return if he is married. The $600 gross income test does not apply if he was under 19 or was a full-time student during each of five calendar months during the year.

Q — I plan to use the new income averaging provision this year. If I do am I required to keep using it in succeeding years?

A — No. You may use income averaging only when you are qualified to do so and its use is always optional for the taxpayer.

Q —My father has just retired. Last year he cashed in some Series E savings bonds he had been accumulating to pay for a retiriment home. Does he have to pay tax on all the interest on these bonds this year or can he spread it out over several years?

A — Interest on such bonds is reported for the year in which they were redeemed, assuming that he had not previously made an election to report each year the increase in the value of the bonds. Of course he should also look into the income averaging provisions available this year.

Q — May I deduct the social security taxes I paid for my maid?

A — No, these taxes are not deductible.

Q — I was divorced from my wife last year. Since I am required to pay alimony and also make regular payments for the support of our children, can I file as head of household?

A — Unless your children live with you the law does not permit these support payments to qualify you to file as head of household. However, child support payments, if they provide more than one-half the support, will entitle you to claim the children as dependents, assuming they meet the other tests of dependency.

Q — My employer gave me a lump sum to take care of the moving expenses I had to pay when I was promoted to a new job. Do I have to report the amount I received when I file?

A — If your expenses are deductible, report the reimbursement you received and the amount of your expenses on Form 3903 or a similar statement, and enter the excess of expenses over reimbursement on line 2, Part III, page 2 of Form 1040. Should your reimbursement exceed your allowable expenses, enter the excess on line 8, Part II, page 2 of your Form 1040. Check the instruction booklet for details.

Q — I know I can deduct 10 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles of business use of my car. Can I use the same figure for medical transportation expenses?

A — No, the deduction for this expense is 5 cents a mile.

Q — Can I deduct my auto tags this year?

A — In most states they are no longer deductible under the new tax law. These fees may be deducted only if they are ad valorem personal property taxes, imposed annually, that is, an annual fee which varies with the value of the vehicle.

Q — If tax rates were reduced again this year why don't I have more money in my paycheck?

A — Although tax rates were reduced in two stages, the second cut coming this past January, withholding rates on wage and salary payments were cut the full amount in just one stage, in March, 1964.

Q — There are two tax tables that married couples filing separately can use when figuring out their tax. How do I know which one to use?

A — Use the table that shows the lowest combined tax liability for both of you. One table uses the 10 per cent standard deduction and the other the minimum standard deduction. Remember, though, since you both must use the same kind of standard deduction, be sure that both you and your wife use the same table.

More D's Proposed By School Expert

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If there were a poll for most popular school teacher in the city, Dr. W. Walker Cheyney probably would win it.

Dr. Cheyney, director of Philadelphia school research, has urged teachers to give fewer F's and more D's.

He says pupils who get an F grade and repeat a term probably will drop out as soon as they can. But if they pass year after year with D's, they eventually might learn something.

Dr. Cheyney made the statement in a report to the Board of Education.

Ireland's Premier Winner in Election

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Ireland's marathon election count ended today with Prime Minister Sean Lemass' Fianna Fail party holding 72 seats — exactly half — in the 144-seat Dail, Ireland's parliament.

Lemass also has the support of one independent and the promise of neutrality from another, assuring him control of the Dail. He announced Tuesday night he would form a new government next week.

In the previous Dail, Fianna Fail had only 70 seats and governed for three and a half years with the support of independents. The party has ruled Ireland for 27 of the last 33 years.

After a week-long recount in Dublin's northeast district, the chief opposition party, Fine Gael, won 47 seats, a loss of one. The Labor party had 22, a gain of four, and three independents were elected. The last Dail had eight independents.

The election was on April 7. The Dail meets April 21.

Bitter Floor Fight Seen on Voting Rights

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee has cleared the voting rights bill without recommendation, thus setting the stage for a bitter floor fight.

By a 12-4 vote Friday night, the committee sent the measure, designed to prevent denial of voting rights because of race or color, to the full Senate.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said debate will begin April 21, following the Easter recess.

In its present form the legislation goes beyond that suggested by President Johnson.

In wide areas of the South, the bill would bar literacy tests for the qualification of voters and permit the appointment of federal registrars.

It also would prohibit the levying of poll taxes as a requirement for voting.

Earier in the day, a House judiciary subcommittee approved a similiar plan.

The full House Judiciary Committee will start work on the bill Tuesday.

A day-long dispute in the Senate committee ended without agreement shortly before midnight.

The chairman, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and other Southerners who have denounced the bill as unconstitutional cast the four votes against reporting it. The Dixie forces are expected to decide later whether to filibuster.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., one of the committee members who previously had led a successful drive for broadening the measure, said the bill now has "everything in it to make it effective."

He said it is a stronger bill than the administration first submitted and also stronger than a revised version drafted by Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois in cooperation with Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach.

But all sides agreed the final form of the legislation remains to be worked out in the floor battle that lies ahead.

Dirksen told the Senate after the Judiciary Committee completed its work he had never seen a more difficult or abstruse bill. He said previously some of the broadening amendments jeopardized it, both from a constitutional and a political standpoint.

The basic structure of the Senate and House bills is similar, but they differ in the formulas determining what states and counties are to be covered.

The House bill would apply automatically to states and counties using voter qualification tests or devices if less than half of their adult population registered or voted last November.

This would take in Alabama, Alaska, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia, 34 counties in North Carolina and three other counties outside the South.

The Senate bill adds to this formula an exemption for states or counties in which less than 20 per cent of the voting- age population is non-white, thus leaving out about half of Virginia, all of Alaska, and some other counties in and outside the South.

But another provision in the Senate bill would extend coverage to any state or county in which less than 25 per cent of the Negroes of voting age are registered.

Sponsors of this amendment said it would broaden the bill's automatic coverage to a number of counties in Arkansas, Florida, Tennessee and Johnson's home state of Texas.

Aside from this coverage formula, the attorney general would be empowered by both bills to seek court orders permitting federal registration of voters in other areas where he could prove discriminatory denial of voting rights.

Youth Pills for Older Women Are Reported

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Older women can regain or keep many of the appearances and feelings of youth by taking a programmed daily series of pills after menopause, says a Michigan physician.

The hormone replacement therapy series — schedule-packed like the pill used for contraception — is up for approval of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Dr. Francis P. Rhoades of Detroit said Tuesday.

"It can preserve the femininity of 17 million post-menopausal females in the United States," Dr. Rhoades said in an interview.

"It will cost far less than a cocktail and do them a lot more good," commented Dr. Rhoades, who estimated mass production could cut the cost to about 10 cents a day.

Dr. Rhoades, chief of Grace Hospital's division of general practice, was manning a scientific exhibit on the subject at the annual scientific assembly of the American Academy of General Practice.

The menopausal woman, he explained, lacks endocrine secretions which create the feminine characteristics — she is essentially a castrate.

Changes that occur include loss of strength, feminine curves and zest. There are increases in blood pressure, bone brittleness, mental and emotional troubles, and in some cases coronary disease.

"Adequate supplemental estrogen and progestogen therapy will prevent or minimize disorders of the menopause," Dr. Rhoades said.

He advised that post-menopausal women take the pills the rest of their lives. He said the therapy has been proved in 1½ years of women patient experience by 10 investigators in some of the nation's leading medical centers.

Dr. Rhoades described one patient, a 70-year-old widow. "She looks much younger, has a sparkle in her eye and told me recently she's looking for a mate," he said.

Undesirable side-effects are a small price to pay for the many benefits, the physician said. He added there is increasing evidence they help prevent cancer, and they don't cause masculinization.

Franklin Roosevelt Jr. Seeks Governorship

WASHINGTO (AP) — Washington attorney Lloyd N. Cutler is slated to succeed Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. as undersecretary of commerce, the Washington Post said today.

Roosevelt is considered a possibie Democratic candidate for governor of New York next year.

Cutler, 47 is a partner in the firm of Wilmer, Cutler and Pickering. He was a deputy chief of the lend-lease mission to French North Africa during World War I, a member of advisory groups on problems facing U.S. business abroad and on federal aviation procedures and helped draft the by-laws and incorporation papers for the Communications Satellite Corp.

He also has been an attorney for the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association. John T. Connor, the new secretary of commerce, was formerly president of Merck & Co., a drug manufacturing firm.

Gunfire Reported In Jonesboro, La.

JONESBORO La. (AP) —A Negro man who was driving four Kansas University volunteer civil rights workers to a gas station said he exchanged gunfire Saturday with a station wagon carrying four white teen-agers.

It was not determined immediately if there were any injuries.

Elmo Jacobs, 38, said he reported the incident to city police and also was questioned by an FBI agent.

The Jonesboro police dispatcher said he had no actual report of the incident, only several telephone calls, "and I'm trying to find out what happened."

A spokesman at the FBI regional field office in New Orleans said the FBI was conducting "an inquiry to determine if a violation of federal law had occurred."

Jacobs said he had reason to believe that one of the white youths may have been hit with one of the four shots he return from his 38-caliber pistol.

Jacobs and Miss Oretha Castle, a field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality, said they counted 14 bullet holes in Jacobs' car.

Economist Reports Federal Subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal subsidies — mainly for agriculture, business and labor — are costing about $7.5 billion in the current fiscal year, according to a study by Library of Congress economists.

They estimated in a report for the Senate-House Economic Comittee that the figure would drop to about $6.7 billion in the year that starts July 1.

The bulk of the subsidies are to agriculture — $5.6 billion this year and $4.7 billion next.

National income in Spain has doubled in the last generation.

Astronauts Complete Flight Training

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young have ended the long process of relating every detail of their historic three-orbit space flight March 23 and will start vacations this week.

After almost a year of continuous training, the Gemini astronauts and their backup pilots, Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford, now can relax.

Grissom will fly fellow astronaut L. Gordon Cooper's private plane to Gunnison, Colo., Thursday and the 39-year-old Air Force major, his wife and two sons will spend 10 days at Crested Butte, where Grissom has a ski cabin. Young, 39, a Navy lieutenant commander, will go to Florida for his vacation.

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

HEDDA SEES STARS FILM QUICKY 'HARLOW' VERSION

HOLLYWOOD — Looked in on the "Harlow" set and watched a scene with Carol Lynley, Ginger Rogers, and Barry Sullivan. In Electronovision (instant movies) they photograph a scene from all angles, the director looks at a monitor, selects the shot he likes, and it's recorded on movie film. Three miles away big brother, Bill Sargent, sits in his office, watches a monitor, and sees all. They had a week's rehearsal before starting, then everything went zip, zip ,zip. It opens May 12 throughout the land.

Barry Sullivan left for Rome and "Outlaw Planet," a science-fiction picture opposite a German actress: "It's an American production with an Italian director who speaks English — I hope. I've been studying Italian with a tape recorder for weeks. I'm so confused now I couldn't even order dinner."

When Ginger Rogers finished a scene I introduced her to Fred Klein who congratulated her on her acting. "She's always been a fine actress," I said. "Thanks," said Ginger. "They usually say I dance. I seldom get dramatic roles except on the Chrysler show." I asked if the floods had done much damage to her place on the Rogue river in Oregon: "You know that island we had in the middle of the river? Well, we now have 11." Sargent introduced me to Herbert Steinman, a partner. He produced "The Pawnbroker" with Rod Steiger. It opens here May 7. He told me it's an anti-nazi story but they won first prize in Berlin.

Lynley makes a beautiful Harlow. She finishes the picture, then leaves for London for Otto Preminger's "Bunny Lake Is Missing."

The Joe Cottens close their home here for 6 months 'cause he's signed for two pictures. First stop Utah to play a mountain lion hunter in Marguerite Henry's "Brighty," then on to Madrid for a western, "The Tramplers" for Albert Band and Embassy pictures.

Eddie Small will produce "Frankie and Johnny" which will be Elvis Presley's next picture. Starts the end of May and will be shot here and in New Orleans with Freddie De Cordova directing.

Warren Beatty, when "Promise Her Anything" ends, goes into "The Most Dangerous Game" to be made in London and Europe. Charlie Feldman wants him for "Eternal Fire," and if all goes well he expects to marry Leslie Caron in May.

Tiffany's does its first table setting show in its Beverly Hills home for two weeks beginning Monday. They've been doing it in New York 10 years. They'll have six table settings — from Irene Dunne, Jane Wyman, Dana Wynter, Mitzi Gaynor, Donna Reed, and yours truly, each a combination of our favorite possessions plus some of the company's merchandise. For years this Altoona girl looked only at their windows. Now I'll be inside.

A young unknown, Pat Cardi, gets the lead in "And Now Miguel" which Bob Radnitz films in New Mexico. Pat whose father is Italian and mother Australian, plays a boy on a sheep ranch .In the cast are Michael Ansara, Guy Stockwell, and Clu Gulager.

Bob Mitchum came by to say hello. For the first time he is going out to sell a picture—his last, "Mr. Moses," made in Africa. I asked why he hadn't gone before. "Nobody ever asked me," he said. He'll visit eight cities to meet the press, do radio and TV. The latter he's avoided like sin.

Robert Shaw joined Irna Phillips in Chicago. He's scripting her new soap opera which will be on twice a week with Geraldine Fitzgerald and Kevin McCarthy starring. Irna, known as the Soap Opera Queen, gets $1,000 a week just to read the Peyton Place scripts. She's something. While in New York, she occupied an 11-room apartment at the Waldorf with her cook, two secretaries, and two maids.

Cancer Miracles May Be Evidence of Immunity

By PAT McGRADY

Late in the 13th century a young Italian priest dreamed that his cancerous leg, wiich was to be amputated in the morning, had become well.

When he awakened, the cancer had healed. He lived in good health until 1345, when at the age of 80 he died of old age. He became St. Peregrine, the "Cancer Saint." More than 300 cures of cancer and other serious diseases are attributed to prayers for his intercession.

In 1935, Sister Gertrude Kortzendorfer, an aging Sister of Charity who administered a New Orleans mental hospital, was surgically explored and diagnosed as having an inoperable cancer of the pancreas — 100 per cent fatal.

Her sister nuns prayed to Mother Seton, the now - beatified founder of the Sisters of Charity. Sister Gertrude became well suddenly. She died seven years later of a pulmonary embolism. Autopsy showed no trace of cancer.

In 1952, four year old Ann O'Neill was diagnosed as having acute lymphatic leukemia. She seemed on the verge of death when the nuns at Baltimore's St. Agnes Hospital prayed to Mother Seton. The little girl became well and, at this writing is a high school student without evidence of leukemia.

In the O'Neill case there is a reasonable explanation — chicken pox. Even as the nuns prayed, the massive ugly sores of leukemia were joined by the tiny red pocks of the common childhood disease. In three days Ann's condition improved remarkably: both the chicken pox and cancer cleared. two weeks later she was in a state of complete remission.

While some call these phenomena miracles, the medical profession knows them as spontaneous remissions, or spontaneous regressions. One rough estimate is that they occur once in every 80,000 cases, but this may understate the frequency.

Scientists feel certain the explanation of spontaneous remission lies in the field of immunity — that majestic body chemical process by which each living thing defeats the diseases which would destroy it. When normal immune processes are understood, cancer may cease to be a major cause of death.

Evidence that immunity plays a role in cancer is abundant.

A VACCINE IS POSSIBLE

Patient A has a tumor removal, but his system is shot through with metastases and his blood contains millions of cancer cells. Following the surgery, he becomes well and remains well for years.

Patient B has a small, seemingly localized tumor. Following its surgical removal or radiation destruction, cancer colonies arise in various tissues and kill him.

Patient C has the original cancer removed, but metastases remain. His cancer is ground up into a vaccine and injected under his skin. The metastases shrivel up and disappear for the time being.

Patient D, with a condition identical with that of C, has no good reaction to the vaccine. If the vaccine is composed of live cancer cells — his own or another's — they grow and, temporarily at least, form a new tumor. He is not long for this

What is immunity?

When strange protein — an antigen — invades a body, the body's defensec act, producing other protein, like antibodies, to recognize and inactivate the stranger.

Perhaps the greatest conceivable achievement of cancer research would be to find an antigen not produced by healthy humans but common to all cancers. If such a cancer-specific antigen exists and can be produced, it may be used as a vaccine to control cancer.

Vaccines are used to treat as well as prevent disease.

In some cases, vaccines can be injected into animals, like cows or horses, which then produce antibodies. The antibody-loaded blood serum of these immunized animals can be injected into sick humans, where it then attacks the disease-causing organism.

Is there a common cancer antigen?

Five widely scattered scientists or groups — in Tokyo, Moscow, Houston, New York and Stockholm — have reported finding antigens which appear to be common, not only to all human cancers they have examined, but to animal cancers as well. Many others have reported finding antigens which are tumor-specific; that is, they exist in a certain kind or class of cancer and not others.

Many factors can contribute to the defects of our body's defenses against cancer.

Malnutrition or deficiency of ascorbic acid, thiamine, or other vitamins depresses antibody formation. Old age, some chemicals and X-rays weaken immunity.

And sometimes our own defenses, like a rebellious militia, turn against us.

TWISTED IMMUNITY?

The eventful 20th Century began with a nightmarish question by Dr. Paul Ehrlich. In discussing his discovery in 1900 that one human produced antibodies against cells from another human, he raised the question: could a person produce antibodies against himself? He dismissed the possibility as being an unthinkable situation in nature.

A generation later, a young Heidelberg immunologiest, Dr. Ernest Witebsky, now at the University of Bufallo showed that, under some circumstances the system does produce anitibodies against itself.

Dr. Witebsky's success opened the floodgates in investigation into auto-immune disease now recognized as the cause of many serious chronic conditions. His results gave hope that body defenses could be stimulated to destroy cancers and also raised the question of whether some cancers could be an auto-immune or allergic-type disease.

VIRUS INHIBITOR?

It may turn out that one of the more important medical discoveries of the 20th Century is a natural protein known as interferon.

On a weight basis, interferon is ten or more times as potent against viruses as antibiotics are against bacteria.

Interferon, produced by infected tissues, suppresses mammalian virus growth, it makes cells resistant to virus. It does not seem to kill the viruses, however. Alone or in combination with other natural defense chemicals, it could conquer cancer.

A few scientists already have treated hopeless cancer patients experimentally with various vaccines. Some patients improved. The scientists were severely criticized.

Critics contend that there is a risk in immunological treatment of cancer — a risk of accelerating the disease, of adding distress to the great burden of pain suffered by some advanced patients, of inducing sudden and fatal anaphylactic shock.

What some critics fail to consider is that few things in life are as risky as terminal cancer.

Immunology, still undergoing acute growing pains, is opening enormous vistas of potential cures of cancer. Even now, with new techniques, some of the substances in blood, fluids, and tissues which have been found to destroy cancer are being isolated, purified, identified, and possibly synthesized.

Ford Theater Is Undergoing Reconstruction

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Standing inside Ford's Theater, amid the rubble of reconstruction work, a historian muses fancifully:

"Could it be that the ghost of George Washington was the first to exact punishment from the assassin of Abraham Lincoln?"

One hundred years ago tonight, John Wilkes Booth, hard-drinking actor, stole into a box where Lincoln was enjoying the play "Our American Cousin," and shot him in the back of the head. The wounded president was carried across the street to a boarding house, where he died the following morning.

After firing the fatal shot, Booth stabbed a military aide. Then he vaulted over the balustrade of the box to the stage 11 feet below.

Dr. George J. Olszewski, historian for the National Park Service, which is restoring the old theater to its 1865 state, has no means of knowing, whether the encounter with the picture of the Father of his Country led to Booth's fractured leg. But he reflects that if this were true, there would be a certain grim historic justice to it.

Grimmer justice overtook Booth 12 days later. Federal cavalry cornered him in a Virginia barn and set it afire, in hopes of driving him out and taking him alive. But an overzealous trooper, contrary to the wishes of his officers, thrust a carbine through a crack in the barn and shot him down.

In the great hue and cry after the assassination, four persons were hanged, including Mary E. Suratt, keeper of a boarding house were Booth often met his fellow conspirators, and four got long prison terms.

Now, 100 years later, the scene of the assassination, the red brick theater on 10th Street N.W., between 3rd and F, is undergoing a top to bottom reconstruction.

Truman Blames World Leaders For Conflict

By JERRY STILKIND

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry S. Truman, 20 years after he became president, says he is bothered by conditions in a world without peace — and he places the blame on the world's leaders.

Truman spoke Tuesday night after receiving the 25th anniversary award of Freedom House. It cited him for decisive leadership which gave hope to a "battered world."

The bronze plaque was presented to Truman by Chief Justice Earl Warren who said of the former president: "He has furthered the cause of freedom not only in this country, but throughout the world."

The dinner was attended by 1,200 persons, including six former Truman Cabinet members.

In his acceptance speech, Truman, who will be 81 on May 8, said of the current global unrest and bloodshed:

"Of one thing we are certain. It is not the fault of any one people — or group of people. The fault lies with their leaders.

"We have reason to hope that the solution will come from the people who will make themselves heard and defy those who would lead them to strife and aggression. This — and a strong United Nations — are our main hope to avert another catastrophe."

In a telegram, President Johnson said Truman is "the man to whom the cause of freedom owes its greatest debt."

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who served under Truman, said Truman's ability to make the right decisions was one of his major virtues as president.

Acheson, the main speaker at the dinner, said the Truman administration's foreign policies "showed a sweep, a breadth of construction, and boldness of action which were new in this country's history."

He cited the Marshall Plan, the response to the Soviet blockade of Berlin, the intervention in Korea and the North Atlantic alliance's defense of Europe.

Surrounded by old friends, Truman remarked on receiving the award and praise from speakers: "You don't know how overcome I am."

Freedom House is a non-partisan organization devoted to promoting principles of freedom. Previous winners of its award were Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sir Winston Churchill.

Speaker Says Political Leadership Responsive

This country has more basically democratic government today than ever before, according to Dan Hoffman, recently resigned safety director of Denver.

Hoffman spoke Tuesday night at the April meeting of the El Paso County Young Democrat.

He said that the means of communications are now more open and more rapid than ever in the past and that this has made political leadership more responsive to the demands of the public.

He cited housewives as an example of a group of people who can now make their views known on issues whereas as little as 20 years ago they could not do that.

Pointing out that these women are basically dedicated to the family and are not essentially politically oriented or organized, Hoffman said that should an issue arise that will affect their lives and the lives of their children these women can and do organize to make their views known.

"They get together and hire baby sitters and come to city hall and let the elected officials know what they think. They can demand to see an elected official and he will listen to them," Hoffman said.

Most any other group can do the same thing, he added.

Hoffman pointed out that government as seen from the inside is not what as many people think of it is. He spent two years as safety director, an appointed job in Denver City and County.

The first level of government is the civil service group — with the people in that body generally resisting change and some unwilling to accept responsibility.

The next higher level is the appointed official who deals with the civil service and the public, and who is responsible to the elected official who appointed him. The two main bodies of civil service employees Hoffman dealt with in Denver were police and fire department members.

The highest level is the elected official, who is responsible to the electorate and generally wants to be reelected, Hoffman said.

The general myth about government is that it is a monolith, generally growing, and working inscrutably toward one aim. That is not so, he stated.

First, it is not so, Hoffman declared, because of the basic division in the government between civil service, appointed executives and elected office holders.

Secondly, the branches of government battle, regardless of party affiliation, he explained.

The legislative bodies fight with the administrative leader, and such fights go on right in the same party. "The legislative leaders like to take the words of the administrative leaders and make them sound like legislative words, if they think the words are good, and they do not care about party affiliation," he said.

There are many cross currents of opinions and aims in the structure of government he said, and explained that often there is no simple enemy for any level of government to combat. Government is just too complex for that, he added.

The problems are certainly more complex than just a struggle between Republicans and Democrats, he declared.

"Government is an intense maze of goods and motivations. It becomes amazing that anything happens, yet things do happen," he stated.

One of the reasons that things happen is that most problems that have to be settled are nonpartisan in nature and the lines of communication are so open and so rapid that pressure can be brought for settlement, and settlement not necessarily on party lines, he explained.

In this battle that goes on between the three level of government and the legislative and executive branch of government, another field of interest in government is more or less left alone — the judicial, he said.

So, the judiciary has become the "great liberal branch of government and filled the obvious void defaulted by the other two branches of government," Hoffman stated.

He added that perhaps the judiciary also is more liberal because the level of education is higher in the judicial branch than in the other two branches of government, although he hurried to add that he was not saying there is a direct tie between education and liberalism.

Today, the courts are to a degree social engineers, said Hoffman, and it would have been a sin to consider the courts that just 20 years ago.

Hoffman is a practicing lawyer and also on the faculty of the Denver University Law School.

With the increased emphasis on ways of communication and the speed of communications, leadership has come to be more responsible to the views of people, he stated.

There are more people in the establishment and helping make decisions than ever before because of the changes that have taken place in America since World War II, he declared.

People can form pressure groups almost at once and make themselves heard now in a manner never before possible, he said.

Further it is generally recognized that people who seem to be agitating for change are not attempting to overthrow the government or social order but are agitating to get into the system and have their share in saying what government shall do, Hoffman said.

Manitou Hires Three Patrolmen

Three patrolmen were hired Tuesday by the Manitou Springs City Council.

They will replace two patrolmen whose resignations were accepted Tuesday plus another resignation from the force to be announced Thursday.

When Licastro's resignation was accepted by the council, Arthur Nevins, chairman of its Police Committee, said the resignation had "been in the mill" for several months. Licastro's resignation was unanimously accepted.

Nevins voted against accepting Smith's resignation, saying he was a good officer. Nevins said he also voted against accepting the resignation at Monday's Police Committee meeting (a closed session) but was outvoted.

Smith's resignation was accepted by a 5-1 vote.

Letters from both officers said they resgined for personal reasons. Licastro's said he had enjoyed working for the city. Smith, who was recently promoted to sergeant, joined the force in May 1963. His resignation was effective Tuesday. Licastro joined the force in June, 1963. He will resign later this month.

From 22 applicants, the Police Committee nominated the three new patrolmen. All had military police experience.

One was Harold L. Wilkinson, 29, of 3600 N. El Paso. He attended FBI Pistol School and was a traffic officer with the Cheyenne, Wyo. police department.

Another, Vernon H. Taylor, 38, of Security, also had military police experience. His hobby is boxing and he listed experience in riot control.

The other, Pierce A. Adams, 25, of 2 El Paso Blvd., attended police schools and the University of Houston.

After its regular session which began at 3 p.m., the council adjourned into closed executive session by request of the city attorney to discuss undisclosed matters.

Green Mountain Res. Expected to Fill

Water will be available for diversion above Green Mountain Reservoir during 1965, reports the Bureau of Reclamation.

H. P. Dugan, regional director of the bureau's Region 7, estimated that 100,000 acre feet of water will be available without interference with prior rights.

The bureau has estimated the probable runoff of the Blue River above Green Mountain Reservoir at about 375,000 acre-feet during 1965. They said this would be ample to fill Green Mountain Reservoir and satisfy downstream rights and use by cities as permitted by the Blue River Decree. Colorado Springs is one of these cities.

"If it appears that runoff will be substantially less than present forecasts, cities will be advised what reserves in Dillon Reservoir will be required to avoid impairment of the federal right to fill Green Mountain Reservoir," Dugan said.

FBI Not Cloak and Dagger Organization, Werner Says

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is "not a cloak and dagger organization. It's just a business with an unusual clientele," related Scott Werner, special agent-in-charge of the FBI's Denver District (encompasses Colorado and Wyoming). Werner was guest speaker at the monthly dinner-meeting of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Professional Engineers of Colorado.

The group's meeting was held Tuesday night at the Ramada Inn.

Werner, a 23-year veteran with the federal lawmen, first traced the growth of the organization, from its start in 1908 to the present day. He explained that the Federal Bureau is simply the investigating arm of the U.S. Department of Justice. He told the story of the FBI in its infant years, from 1908 to 1924. "We had a purpose and a mission then," he said, "but I don't know how we accomplished it."

Then, in 1924, related Werner, J. Edgar Hoover was named head of the organization and it has been "a going organization" ever since. The only drawback during that time was the FBI's lack of law enforcement power. Until 1932, the FBI had to operate solely as an investigative organization, with no power to make arrests.

Finally, in 1932 following the Lindberg kidnapping, the FBI was given the added power to make arrests. Also, the government added some 60 other statutes to the books as a direct result of the kidnapping.

The FBI then, and now, has to operate within the criminal statutes assigned to them, which now number 170 under federal jurisdiction. Anything outside these statutes is completely out of their reach, explains Werner.

Statutes covered by the FBI range from protection of the name "Smokey the Bear," to bank robberies, kidnapping and crimes committed on the high seas under the American flag. In 1939, the FBI took on the additional task of coordinating matters concerning the internal security of the U.S.

Werner related that the boundaries inflicted by the FBI's list of statutes have "created a problem with civil rights." The Bureau has no right to protect anyone under its present 170 statutes.

"One of our greatest problems is to avoid becoming a national police agency," Werner continued. He explained that this type of agency can not live in a democracy as the power gradually absorbes the democracy until citizens find themselves living in a "police state." He stated, "If we ever tend in that direction, gentlemen, we hope you will all stand up and be counted."

Werner hopes that in the future law enforcement will become a recognized profession. He pointed to the past 25 years in which law enforcement agencies have made tremendous strides in that direction. "We have to have a little more upstairs than we used to have," quipped Werner, who holds a Bachelor of Law degree from San Francisco University.

The U.S. has 190,000 law enforcement officers with nearly 190 million citizens, explained Werner. "That spreads it mighty thin," he stated.

Identification through the FBI is made easy through its identification section, according to Werner. The bureau presently has 173 million sets of fingerprints on record, with no two alike. "When that happens, we're out of business," joked Werner. The prints and other FBI criminal detection aids are all made available to every law enforcement officer in the country. The same holds true with the FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., said to be the finest in the world. "We look behind the scenes," he added.

Statistically, the U.S. had 2.7 million major crimes in 1964, massing a crime bill of $28 billion. This comes to $128 for each man in the country and $526 for every family, according to Werner. There was a major crime committed every 12 to 15 seconds. "Crime is big business. It's something we all have to fight and we have to stick together," Werner said.

"No law enforcement agency in the world can exist without people like you. Someone sees everything that happens," he stated in urging everyone to call law enforcement people whenever they see a crime occur. "Don't forget," said the DBI chief, "we're up there to serve you people."

Manitou City Council, C of C Slate 'Key Club' for Tourist Free Parking

The Manitou Springs City Council and Chamber of Commerce agreed Tuesday to start a "key club" to give tourists free parking for 48 hours.

Souvenir gold keys will be given tourists when they stop at Chamber headquarters for information.

If displayed on cars, tourists won't have to feed parking meters for 48 hours. Keys will be stamped so they are good for only the allotted time.

The idea was suggested at Tuesday's City Council meeting by Chamber President Homer Sharpton. "We can't just keep taking, we've got to do some giving," he said.

Sharpton also obtained the council's cooperation to ask for another interchange into Manitou from the planned freeway. One interchange is already planned near the Crystal Hills Development in East Manitou.

Sharpton proposed that the other be at Washington Avenue, to funnel tourist traffic by City Hall.

"If we don't get it when this thing is getting built, we'll never get it." Fannin said. The council agreed to send representatives, with the Chamber, to request the interchange from the State Highway Department. men:

Councilwoman Mabel Willie announced that the Coin and Gun Show would be held in Memorial Hall, Aug. 6-8. There were rumors it would be elsewhere.

Councilman Frank Altman suggested that the council be paid for its services, perhaps by meeting attendance. Councilman William Cochran pointed out that "We live in Manitou and want to help the town."

Altman agreed to shelve his plans, saying, "I'm just as able as anyone in this room to work for nothing."

Councilman Fred Jordan showed up for the second consecutive meeting in past months. The mayor said he would appoint Jordan to some committees, and Jordan agreed.

In other business councilmen:

— Approved an improvement district for blacktopping Willa Lane, Denta Drive and Clarksley Road.

— Approved a mobile home park for William Cochran. The councilman abstained from voting.

— Scrapped an ordinance to regulate pigeons.

Wrongful Arrest Suit Filed Here

A wrongful arrest and imprisonment suit for $51,600 was filed in district court Tuesday by James L. Briggs against the Chateau Motel Inc. and Rudolph Jones.

According to the compalint on Jan. 7 the defendants conspired together to cause the plaintiff's arrest and swore out an allegation charging him with larceny and causing him to be arrested and jailed.

The charge was dismissed by the district attorney's office on the grounds of lack of evidence.

It is alleged the arrest caused Briggs great humiliation and disgrace and great mental and physical anguish. The complaint also states the defendants well knew there was no evidence against the plaintiff and that their action was activated by malice.

$23,000 Personal Injury Suit Filed

A $23,000 personal injury suit was filed in district court Tuesday by Ellyn N. Barnett against Diane D. Russell.

Sheriff Plans New Weapon Against Crime

A new speedy and efficient weapon against crime, LETS, will go into operation in the sheriff's office April 19.

LETS means Law Enforcement Teletypewriters Service, a closed teletype network which in time, Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan hopes will connect the entire country's police and sheriffs' offices.

In Colorado there are now 13 law offices using the system. In the east LETS has been in operation since the late twenties and is also used on the west coast and other parts of the country.

One of its merits is speed. Within a matter of seconds a description and information concerning a criminal can be distributed and even a warrant transmitted. It is not only swift, as Sheriff Sullivan pointed out, there will be a tremendous dollar saving in long distance calls, telegrams and transportation.

LETS never sleeps and is a 24 hour service. It is so ingeniously devised that there can be no jamming of the circuit and it is impossible for a message to go astray. As it is typed in Colorado Springs it is being received in Denver.

In the case of an emergency such as murder, the circuit is automatically cleared by the operator who presses an emergency lever.

At the moment the sheriff's secretary, Mrs. E. Clausen is being trained in its use, and later she will train the four other girls in the office. Ultimately Sheriff Sullivan plans that all his deputies will receive instruction and be able to operate LETS.

Council Sets Public Hearing On District 65

City Council Tuesday set May 11 as a public hearing for assessing property owners $162,500 for Improvement District No. 65.

After the city sales tax failed last fall, the council said the city would no longer share the cost of street improvements.

Under the district, the following areas would receive asphalt paving, concrete curb and gutter: Melany Lane — Mesa Valley Road to Chestnut Street; Main Street — Taylor to Polk Street; Center Street — Spruce to Pine Street; Airport Road—Jewel Street to University Drive; Constitution Avenue — Murray Boulevard to east of Skye Court; Northview Drive—Palmer Park Boulevard to Caramillo Street; LaSalle — Monteagle Lane to McArthur Avenue; and Mesa Valley Road — first alley west of Chestnut to Melany Lane.

This work plus concrete sidewalk would be done on the following streets: Limit Street—Pikes Peak Avenue to Kiowa Street; 7th Street — Monroe to Jackson Street; and 31st Street — Echo Lane to first alley north of Echo Lane.

The following alleys would get asphalt: Uintah Street to Yampa Street between Logan Avenue and Logan Place; Platte Avenue to Bijou Street between Wahsatch Avenue and Corona Street; and Summit Drive to Oriole Avenue, between Monteagle and Condor Street.

San Rafael — Institute to Arcadia Street would get asphalt paving.

Curb and gutter would be removed on the south side of Pikes Peak Avenue, between Weber and Wahsatch and the east side of Tejon Street, from Boulder to 100 feet north.

According to the complaint a car driven by the defendant collided with the Vann vehicle in the 400 block of South Ave. Mar. 19 injuring Mrs. Vann.

The second suit has been brought by Valdmar and Emily Gallegos, 1914 W. Vermijo St. against Fred E. Provenzano, no address listed.

Republican Women Hear Report on Viet Nam Crisis

"The actions of the American Government in Vietnam must be based on conviction and common sense," said Edward B. Wilcox, former Army Intelligence Officer in World War II, in a speech to the El Paso County Republican Women.

"By conviction," he said, "I mean an all-consuming dedication to freedom and by common sense I mean the application of common sense to our experience which will convince us that you cannot negotiate with Communists. If an agreement were reached it would not be worth the paper it was written on."

Wilcox opened his talk with a brief description of the geographical factors involved and then explained the over-all strategy of world Communism as it followed the principles of Mao Tze Tung's book, "The Protracted War."

Recalling the inscription on the National Archives Building, to the effect that "What is past is prologue," Wilcox emphasized the necessity of knowing the immediate past history of Vietnam since the Treaty of July 22, 1954, when the country was divided into North and South.

"The amount of erroneous information on the Vietnamese situation," said Wilcox, "is simply astounding. The widely spread report that Diem was anti-Buddhist is without foundation. Actually, Diem's cabinet of 18 members was composed of five Catholics (Diem's faith), five Confucianists and eight Buddhists. Of 38 Provincial governors, twelve were Catholic and the remaining 26 were either Buddhist or Confucianist. Of 113 members of Parliament, the majority of 75 were Buddhists. The Government of Diem gave the Buddhists $250,000 for the building of pagodas, while Diem himself gave personally $12,000 for the Xa Loi Pagoda."

"The American public was convinced that Buddhist priests burned themselves to death as a protest against Diem. A detailed investigation of the situation by Suzanne Labin, French economist and writer, showed that all were arranged by Communist elements. They have been more than seven immolations since Diem was assassinated, proof that those preceding his death lacked the motive attributed to them.

"It is absurd not to call this action in Vietnam a war. If it is not a war, why then has our Government given one Congressional Medal of Honor, three Distinguished Service Crosses, six Air Force Crosses, one Navy Cross, and 1,000 Purple Hearts and 1,000 Bronze Stars. If this action is not a war, then it must be dangerous to advise others. Our casualties in 4 years have been 1,931 and they are mounting daily."

After reviewing the details of the stepped-up war, Wilcox indicated that United States reprisals have not even made a dent in Viet Cong determination to press the war.

"United States air raids," he said, "have not been sufficiently consistent to destroy the southward shipment of arms and material to the Viet Congs operation in South Vietnam; these shipments have only been delayed. Gen. Taylor himself calls for three times more bombing than McGeorge Bundy, a civilian without military experience, permits. The introduction of Soviet 37-mm anti-aircraft radar batteries has upset what balance there was and has resulted in an increasingly greater number of American deaths."

Wilcox said that what needs most to be understood is the fact that peace cannot be our chief aim; the aim must be freedom without which there can be no peace.

At the short meeting preceding Mr. Wilcox's talk, the president, Mrs. William C. Bailey announced the appointment of Mrs. Robert A. Burghart as Americanism chairman with Mrs. Russell Chapman as her co-chairman. It was also learned that the National President of the Republican Women, Mrs. Elston will be here for the May 10 luncheon.

Life Afloat Suits Woman Thrill-Seeker

By KEN LYDECKER

CHICAGO (UPI) — Georgie White looks like the type of daring woman who could climb into a rocket and shoot for the moon without batting an eyelash.

The blye-eyed, deeply tanned Mrs. White is known as "the woman of the rivers" because of her current job, shooting the rapids in boats. But in her time, she pedalled across the country by bicycle, broke the ice in Lake Michigan as a member of the Polar Bear Club, and joined the plane ferrying service in World War II.

Mrs. White, here recently for a boat show, told of how she left her native Chicago and headed for New York during the depression in the 1930's. She became interested in watching the six-day bicycle riders in Central Park and mentioned wanting to get to the West Coast although she was nearly broke.

One of the riders gave her a bike and she pedalled to California in one month, buying food from farmers along the way and sleeping in haystacks.

Mrs. White, daughter of a French father and an Irish mother, said she became interested in exploring after World War II when she "discovered" the Colorado River, and especially the Grand Canyon. As a result, she now is the only woman river runner on the Colorado.

She conducts two types of river tours. Parties of between 10 and 12 persons are taken for one to three weeks of shooting the rapids in three 17-foot long, and sturdy, nylon boats, usually lashed together. Between 25 and 35 persons make the Grand Canyon tour in a 34-foot craft that is divided into 10 sectcons.

Mrs. White said the cost of the trip is about $100 per person per week and nights are spent ashore in temporary camps. Those making the trip are permitted cameras, but no spirits stronger than soda pop.

The river runner said she tries to add two new trips to her schedule each year. this year, one is set for the Rio Usumacinta in Mexico. The river drains much of Guatemala. The other planned for 1965 is along the South Nahanni River that starts in the Yukon territories in Canada and flows southeast. She said the Nahanni is a history of adventure, with lost gold mines, missing men, rapids and falls twice the height of the Niagara.

When not shooting rapids, Mrs. White lives in the Los Angeles, Calif., suburb of Midway City with her husband, James, who's retired, an afghan hound, a Siamese cat, and a turtle Mrs. White refers to as "Speed to Spare."

Leather needs to breathe or it discolors and that's the reason leather gloves shouldn't be stored in air-tight plastic containers. They do better wrapped in tissue paper.

A little bit of arithmetic can give you the answer to the number of calories needed each day. Women should multiply their ideal weight by 18 to arrive at the answer. Men should multiply by 21, nutritionists say.

Monogrammed or embroidered linens call for special care. They should be ironed with the right side down over a well-padded board or folded towel.

Walls can be saved from pictures marks with the use of thumbtacks. Just stick a thumbtack at each corner of the back of the frame, letting it extend about an eighth of an inch. This allows for circulation of air behind the frame and prevents picture marks.

Almost all homemakers know lemon juice will keep peeled, sliced fruits from turning dark. What's new is applying juice to fruit with a cotton swab. The swab eliminates dripping.

One way to check the quality of a towel is to hold it up to the light. If it is properly thick, the light should barely show through.

Pinon Nuts Seen Gaining In Popularity

By ROBERT E. HUBER
United Press International

SANTE FE, N. M. (UPI — New Englanders roast chestnuts and Southerners crack hickory nuts with stones. But in the Southwest, where you'd least expect it, there's a tiny nut called the pinon that whets the average appetite.

More than a million pounds are expected to be harvested in the coming year for Eastern candy makers. The dwarf conifer pine which provides the nuts is becoming nearly as important to the Southwest as the fir is to the Northwest.

From Tucson, Ariz., to Denver, Colo., the coniferpine covers about 25 million acres. The tree also is used for fuel and is cut into beam poles for adobe homes in New Mexico.

The promotion of the pinon nut came through efforts of Indian traders in the Southwest, most historians agree. The Indianes had been using the nuts from the Colorado pinon for centuries. Other species, including the Mexican pinon and the single-leaf pinon were also used.

The nuts grow inside huge pine cones in the scrub trees. Since the confier seldom grows larger than 820 feet, the nuts are easy to harvest.

But it takes the nuts two years to mature, and good crops of up to 300 pounds per acre occur only about every five years. It's not unusual in a New Mexico auutmn to see Indians by the thousands along roadways harvesting the crop on reservations and federal lands. The harvest has become a picnic pastime for almost everyone in the Southwest.

Wood from the pinons found many uses in the West as civilization moved in. The nuts from the trees is a recent commercial product. Railway ties, mine props, fence posts and charcoal were just a few of the early commercial uses.

Indians today also make incense from the crushed pinon cones, while the pinon sap is used by Indians as a caulking compound to make water-tight baskets.

The tree also has been adopted by many as the traditional Southwest Christmas tree, draped with red chile peppers and silver ornaments.

Broccoli Pickin' Females Gain

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI)—Women have invaded still another field traditionally dominated by men and have proven they are better at the job.

They're better broccoli pickers.

Mann Packing Co., one of the nation's largest growers of broccoli, hired women to take the place of male Mexican workers who traditionally did the job.

Although proving superior, the women did win several concessions.

They ride instead of walking behind the harvesting machines and they demanded that the harvesters be equipped with drinking fountains.

Home Economists Elect Officers at Convention

One hundred and twenty-one members of the Colorado Home Economics Association attended the annual meeting at the Broadmoor Hotel, Saturday, April 10.

Two new officers were elcted for the coming year. Miss Audrey Sandstead, assistant state 4-H Club Leader, Ft. Collins, will serve as president-elect and Miss Linda Burley, home economist for the Public Service Company, Denver, will be the treasurer. Mrs. Elinor Gower, Director of Home Economics for the Denver Public Schools, was re-elected alternate councilor.

The College Club Section elected Miss Mary Frances Latham, Mesa Junior College, Grand Junction for their 1965-66 president.

At the luncheon, Mrs. Clara Anderson, former director of the Extension Service, Ft. Collins, and Mrs. Nevin Kilpatrick, who established the Denver Dairy Council, received honorary memberships in the Association. This honor is given only for outstanding service in the field of Home Economics.

Miss Edna Poyner, program assistant, AHEA Headquarters, Washington, D. C., speaking at the opening session called on home economists to use their training and knowledge to assist the consumer programs which are becoming increasingly important in today's economy. She cited the cooperation of the American Home Economics Association and the American Library Association as an effective step in making consumer information available to the public.

The concluding address by Judge David Enoch on "The Role of the Home Economist in the Community" challenged the members. "A community prospers in proportion to the amount of volunteer service given by its citizens", said Judge Enoch. "There is a great need for professional people to contribute their talents for community betterment".

The Association accepted an invitation to hold the 1966 annual meeting in Denver.

The International Child Art Center, featuring work from Tokyo, Jerusalem, Ethiopia and the San Francisco Bay area, is dedicated to art produced by child artists the world over. The children must be under 13 years of age.

The center hopes to symbolize the joy of childhood. To this end, bright watercolors, oils and drawings by the young adorn the gallery walls.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Have just learned an expensive lesson . . . not long ago, I had my dining room set, and a living room chair, done over in antique white lacquer finish.

Now, says me to m'self, "I am not going to be yelling at our poor little dog and cat to keep off the furniture; I'll just get some plastic covers and when company comes, yank the covers off and chuck 'em behind the couch. Then the furniture will always look like new."

Well, this worked out fine for a while, 'til one day I yanked and woops — along came the paint in spots and ridges on the plastic!

Well, after I calmed down, I called the furniture man who had done the work, and my tears ran down as I wailed, and he said, "My gosh woman, don't you know that you NEVER let plastic come in contact with paint or lacquer?" He also said "Never but "NEVER" put a plastic purse or wallet on a finished surface or the same thing could happen."

It takes time for this chemical action to happen, so it may not happen the first time, or even the second, and "maybe" not with every kind of plastic. And it may take time for it to work through a coat of wax, but believe me, Heloise, it's not worth taking the chance.

And the next time my husband lays his brief case or wallet on my dining room table, I'll bop him . . . if'n I catch 'im. —R. M. N.

Isn't she absolutely priceless? Our love, hon. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My worn-out chenille bedspread lay on a shelf for months before I finally thought of a way to use the good parts of it . . .

I made the cutest beach coat I have ever had from that tired, old spread!

It is so soft and snug and dries much faster than my heavy terry cloth coat. —Corinne

Letter of Laughter:

Why don't they put Venetian blinds on the glass section of oven doors?

If we could just lower the blind, no one would guess that our oven isn't quite as clean as we'd like to have it! —Kathy

---

Dear Heloise:

It seemed to me that there must be a use for disposable plastic liners for baby bottles after they had been used, and I finally did find a use for them.

I wash and dry them, then put the necessary amount of soap powder for each load of clothes in one of the disposable bags and tape it closed. In another bag, I put the necessary amount of powdered bleach.

It is so much easier to carry these little bags to the laundromat than to carry the bulky boxes of soap and bleach. I just throw away the bags after emptying the contents into the washer.

I feel as if I'm getting double-duty from these bags and can save my regular plastic bags for other uses. —Deanna Carlson

Dear Heloise:

I use a skirt hanger (the type that will hang six skirts) to hang my small son's pants on.

It will hold 12 pairs of pants (by the legs) and only takes as much closet space as one hanger. —Donna Kuzida

Dear Heloise:

The new recipes for tube cakes make such a high product that I found it was difficult to put the cover on my cake carrier.

This is simple to remedy—just put three marshmallows in equal positions around the lower part of the carrier and then put the cover on.

The cover sticks into the marshmallows and will hold beautifully and away from the frosting thus not ruining the frosting on top of your cake.

(It's always easy to find somebody to eat the marshmallows!) —Marjorie M. Hadley

Frozen Apple Cream
Ginger Cookies

1 cup instant type flour
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1-3 cup each shortening and sugar
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 large egg
1-3 cup dark molasses

On a piece of wax paper, stir together thoroughly the flour, salt and ginger. Cream shortening, sugar and baking soda; beat in egg thoroughly, then molasses. Stir in flour mixture. Drop, by tablespoonfuls, a few inches apart, on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until edges are browned — 10 to 12 minutes. Bake only one pan at a time so cookies will spread rapidly and edges will be on the crisp side. Remove and cool. Makes 4 to 4½ dozen cookies.

DRUG REACTIONS

Reactions to drugs vary considerably. This time a modern product causes ulcers of the owelr part of the small intestine. The story begins with the thiazide diuretics, one of the most effective remedies for dropsy. The chemical also is used in the treatment of hypertension, and as an aid in losing weight. It encourages elimination of the water that forms when excess fat is burned up as energy.

These products are safe and efficient. They stimulate the kidneys to filter out more of the sodium ion (sodium choloride is salt) that holds fluid in the tissues. But it is difficult to eliminate one chemical without removing others and, in this case, potassium (K) is lost along with the sodium (Na). A deficiency of K leads to weakness and is overcome by eating foods rich in the chemical or by taking potassium chloride tablets. However, K irritates the lining of the stomach and must be enveloped in a hard capsule or shell (enteric coated) that does not dissolve until it passes thru the gastric pouch. Some manufacturers combine K and the thiazide in a single enteric-coated tablet.

Several months ago there was a striking increase in the number of individuals with ulcers and narrowing of the lower intestine. The ulcers ruptured in some, leading to peritonitis. Further investigation showed all were taking thiazide and potassium in enteric-coated tablets. None were reported among those taking thiazide without K. This incriminated the enteric-coated potassium chloride. The chemical was released in a small segment of the intestine after the outer shell was dissolved. It is logical to assume that if it irrates the lining of the stomach, it will do the same in the intestines.

More than 140 cases, including four deaths, have been reported to the Food and Drug Administration. Physicians breathed a sigh of relief when the diuretic was exonerated because it is a valuable remedy. Hereafter, potassium will be taken in food or in drops as a saturated potassium iodide solution.

Dr. Van Dellwn will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

MULTIPLE COLDS

Mrs. L. writes: My 2-year-old grandson gets one cold after another. He is hardly over one when the next comes along. Is he likely to develop rheumatic fever from so many colds?

REPLY

Colds are common at this age and his experience is par for the course. Time will tell whether he is likely to develop rheumatic fever.

INFLAMED COLON

D. B. writes: Is dieting the best treatment of colitis?

REPLY

A bland diet helps because it leaves little residue, giving the bowel a rest. But diet is not the sole treatment because there are various types of colitis (spastic, bacterial, and influenzall each requiring specific care.

HORMONES AND YOUTH

F. L. writes: Is it dangerous for a 75-year-old woman to take a hormone shot once a week to make her feel young again?

REPLY

Not dangerous unless she has a malignancy of the breast or reproductive organs. These hormones are not the waters from the Fountain of Youth.

BEDWETTING

Mrs. R. writes: Should a child of 5 years have dry nights?

REPLY

Nations Four Outstanding Farmers Named for '64-'65

Four young agriculturalists, all under 36, who have built successful farming operations while providing civic leadership for their communities were named America's Four Outstanding Young Farmers for 1964-65 in an awards ceremony Tuesday at Fort Collins.

In competition co-sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and the National LP - Gas Association, the four winners were selected from the 46 state winners attending the awards congress, representing 10,000 original nominees.

Named as America's Four Outstanding Young Farmers are the following:

Eddie Berens, 34, Selby, S.D., meets the challenges facing today's farmers by pacing his community in the use of modern equipment and the application of new methods. His farsightedness has helped him turn 160 - acres of rented land into a 2,990 - acre cattle and hog ranch in 15 short years.

From a modest start with six cows and a farming production of 1,100 bushels of wheat, he now owns some 60 head of cows, 93 head of feeder cattle and 30 high quality sows. His total crop production tops 23,000 bushels annually.

In his area he has pioneered the first flowing artesian well and the first to use a cement floored trench silo for the 940 tons of silage he produces each year.

He was also the first in his area to use pre - emergence weed spray on corn and commercial fertilizer on small grain crops.

Dolan E. Brown, 35, Twin City, Ga., feels that research has put American agriculture where it is today and has used this advanced research and mechanization to parlay a barnful of mules and 1,100 rundown acres into highly productive 2,070 - acre crop and livestock farm in 14 years.

Unshaken when fire destroyed the meat packing plant he built, he repaid the $23,000 not covered by insurance and continued to build.

He has doubled production of all his crops in his 14 years of operation.

Following strict soil conservation practices, he has built 50,000 yards of terraces and has completely installed his farm with water ways, stripped with grass, to control the loss of top soil.

Raymond Kauer, 34, Hillsboro, Ore., began farming as half - owner of 160 - acres, purchased with no money down. By following recommendations developed by professional agricultural researchers, he now owns 1,288 productive acres and operates a 1,699 acre grain and dairy farm.

In 1952 he sold his share of the 160 - acres and leased 400-acres to start his own dairy operation. Bangs disease struck his herd in the first year with the loss of 24 head of milk cows as the result.

Taking advantage of knowledge offered by nearby agricultural colleges and extensive treatment of his herd enabled him to whip the Bangs disease then maintain a completely clean herd for the last six years.

William D. Long, 35, Apopka, Fla., began his farming career by entering an entirely new agricultural environment with $1,000 meager equipment and a desire to be independent. Within 12 years he has built a 760 - acre vegetable farm requiring 45 full time employes and 300 harvest extras.

He has been credited with development of an entirely new variety of sweet corn that 85 per cent of other farmers in his area now use.

The Long farm is located within a special 9,000 acre Drainage and Water Control District. As district supervisor of this area, Long sets policies for water usage, irrigation practices and drainage systems within the area.

Judging of the finalists was done by a panel of agricultural experts including top agricultural journalists.

The awards were presented in Ft. Collins by Stan Ladley, national Jaycee president and Wm. S. Brenckle, National LP - Gas Association president.

"These young men of agriculture reflect the strength of this nation," said Ladley, in presenting the awards.

George A. Maxey of Greeley was the Colorado State winner.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Approximately 19 patented roses have been named in honor of entertainment world celebrities, ranging from Charlie McCarthy to Lily Pons. Only one of these remains outstandingly popular, having sold well over 1,000,000 plants, the large-flowered, spicily scented Hybrid Tea Rose, Helen Traubel, according to Armstrong Nurseries.

Fountain Valley School Slates Gymkhana Day

The Westernaires will be a featured attraction at the 20th annual Fountain Valley School Gymkhana Day May 16. The riding group has appeared in Walt Disney movies and on television, says F. D. Cheney of Fountain Valley School.

Acts scheduled are the Cavalry and Cavalry Ball Quadrille. Boys will wear authentic frontier cavalry uniforms of the 1860's and girls will ride side-saddle, he explains.

The Westernaires are a group of about 500 Jefferson County youths, ages nine through 18. Directed by E. E. Wyland, and organized in 1949, they have presented numerous specialty acts. They have appeared for 12 years at the National Western Stock Show, and for three years at the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo.

Featured morning gymkhana events will be calf roping and ribbon roping. Entry fee for each of the two events is $10. Entries must be received by Mrs. Dick Sarah at Fountain Valley School by 9 a.m. May 16. For prizes, total entry money will be split 40-30-20-10 per cent for four monies, after withdrawal of one-half of the stock fee. Events are CCHA approved.

Entry fees for all other events are $1. Entry blanks and programs may be picked up at Bingo's Saddle Shop, 16 E. Cucharras St. Entry blanks should be mailed to Gymkhana Day Committee, Fountain Valley School, and must be received by 9 p.m. May 13, or they will become post entries. Post entries close 15 minutes before each morning class, and at 11 a.m. for afternoon classes. Post entry fees are $3 for western pleasure and trail horse classes, and $2 for other classes. For further information, call F. D. Cheney at 635-1033 evenings.

Other morning events will include: reining class, judged by Herbert A. Johnson; Western pole bending, AQHA rules; barrel race, two divisions; and trail horse class, two divisions, judged by Doyle Thompson. Four ribbons will be awarded in each event or division, and CCHA rules will be followed.

Six ribbons will be awarded in each division of the following CCHA approved events: Western pleasure horse class, juniors and seniors, judged by Gordon E. Haight and Miss Edith E. Kearney; Horsemanship; Class A (17 and under, judged by Mrs. C. M. Craig; Class B (11-13) and Class C 10 and under), judged by Col. Robert M. Clark.

Also offered in the morning will be equitation, juniors, judged by Mrs. Herbert L. Goldstein, four ribbons; and, under AHSA rules, junior and open jumping, four ribbons each, judged by Sgt. Clovis L. Cates.

The afternoon program will begin with judging for a grand entry at 1 p.m. Grand entry will be at 1:30 p.m. Robert W. Phelps will be announcer. Father Bonaventure Bandi, O.S.B. will be racing and tilting judge. Starter will be Maj. Ted Hoke.

The Pikes Peak Range Riders' Pivot Group will be featured in the grand entry parade.

Morning winners will be introduced.

A drill team contest, open to all saddle clubs, is planned during the afternoon. Maximum number of riders is 20, and minimum is 10. Time limit is 3 minutes. Judging will be one-half on precisions, originality and interest, but "Thread-the-Needle" and "Line Abreast" are required.

Four ribbons will be awarded in the CCHA approved junior boot race.

Other afternoon events will include: bending races, figure eight races, and tilting finalists. There will also be gamblers' choice jumping, for the top six from the open jumping in the morning. Eight jumps within 30 seconds will be required, and Lt. Gen. Gordon B. Rogers will be the judge.

Also planned for the afternoon are: saddling races, team jumping, stake races, and sack races. The last event will be the Mad Scramble or Fountain Valley School Derby, open to students of the school only. Presentation of gymkhana awards will conclude the day.

FOOD EXPORTS TO INCREASE

World food exports are expected to increase 37 per cent by 1970 over the 1959-61 level which was around $15.8 billion according to the Record Stockman. With this increase, it is anticipated that world food trade will take a greater role in combating food shortages evident in some areas of the world. U. S. food exports for 1970 are projected to increase 50 per cent over the 1959-61 level which ranged from $3.2 billion to $4.8 billion.

WHAT'S A DWARF?

Dr. David L. Armstrong, originator of the unique new Bonanza peach bush, which produces delicious, full-size, freestone peaches on a plant often less than 3 feet tall, explains that "a genuine dwarf bush or tree has inherent miniature characteristics which are an integral part of the variety and have nothing to do with age, rootstock, or other environmental conditions." The Bonanza peach bush, whose leaves are borne only one-quarter inch apart, is an example of a true genetic dwarf.

Almost 25 per cent of this year's June college graduates have begun graduate work, or 100,000 out of 450,000 students.

Scabies Control Steps Announced

Cattle entering Kansas from Prowers, Bert, Baca and Las Animas counties must now meet new requirements established by A. G. Pickett, livestock sanitary commissioner, Topeka ,Kan.

The special import requirements for Colorado cattle of ranch origin specify that cattle must have health certificates and must have a ranch inspection for scabies by state or federal inspector.

Cattle in markets, concentration yards or other similar areas must have health certificates and must be dipped in vat or box spray under supervision in Lindane within 10 days of shipment. There are no requirements for fat cattle direct to slaughter.

Import requirements are effective in the above areas of Colorado, and in some areas of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Cattle originating from any other area in these states must have health certificates and a statement that they have been inspected and are apparently free from scabies.

FARM NUMBERS DOWN

The number of farm operational units in the United States decreased in 1964 in most states, bringing the total to 3,479,000, three per cent under the previous year. For 1965, the total is expected again to decrease about three per cent, or nearly 100,000 farms, continuing the established trend, according to the Record Stockman.

Irrigation Equipment Needs Checking Now

If you don't find irrigation trouble spots before the irrigating season begins, the water will, notes Floyd Brown, Colorado State University extension irrigation specialist.

Spring will bring on land preparation, planting and other hectic agricultural activity, Brown continues, so use days when field work is impossible to check irrigation equipment. If equipment is in good condition, you will be ready to irrigate crops without delay when they need water.

Open ditches should be clean and free of weeds and trash. Ditch structures, such as headgates, turn-outs, checks and culverts, should be in good condition. Now is the time to repair trouble spots encountered last year, the CSU specialist suggests.

Life expectancy in Greece, Rome, Egypt and the Eastern Mediterranean region in the year A.D. 1 probably did not exceed 30 years. It is now about 70 in many of those countries.

POTTED PERENNIALS

Professionally grown perrennials in three to four-inch clay pots will be available at florists and garden centers in greater variety this spring. Popular clay potted perennials include delphinium, Shasta daisies, lupines and pyrethums.

Though the Pittsburgh area has many steel mills, only one large plant stands within the city limits.

Death Penalty Issue to Go to State Voters

By KEN ROBISON

DENVER (AP) — Colorado voters will decide next year whether the death penalty should be retained if the Senate agrees to a bill given overwhelming approval Friday in the state House of Representatives.

The House is expected to send the bill to the Senate Monday after a final vote. There was no roll call Friday but only seven lawmakers remained seated when the yes votes were asked to stand.

Attempts to repeal the death penalty by legislative act have repeatedly failed in the past but the approach of the bill—submitting the question to the people—is new. The House was told Colorado has not had a chance to vote on the death penalty since 1898.

If the people vote to accept the measure in November 1966 it would become law Jan. 1, 1967.

The House rejected an amendment offered by the Judiciary Committee and backed by Rep. Ben Klein, D-Denver, to make exceptions if the bill is passed. It would have permitted the death penalty for murder of a policeman, a murder by a person confined in the penitentiary, murder during escape from the penitentiary or conviction of murder of more than one person.

But another amendment by Klein was accepted giving a judge power to specify that a person sentenced to life in prison for murder could never be paroled. That would still permit the governor to commute the sentence.

Rep. Ruth Clark, D-Fort Collins, principal sponsor of the bill, said the most effective testimony at a public hearing on the question was that by Warden Harry Tinsley of the state penitentiary. He opposes the death penalty on grounds it is not a deterrent to crime.

Mrs. Clark said the philosophy behind the death penalty of retribution for crime has not changed since 1748 in England when a 10-year-old boy was executed for stealing a small amount of money.

She said some psychologists and criminologists believe the death penalty may actually cause murders by unbalanced people who want to commit suicide. Studies, she said, show that crime is no more prevalent in the states without the death penalty than in those with it.

Ten states, she said, have abolished the death penalty.

"It is tolerated only in a civilized society because it is thought necessary," she said. "Without it we would be free of the concept that the effectiveness of the penal system lies in the severity of the penalty and we could turn to the idea of rehabilitation."

Mrs. Clark said the law is unfair because people with money can hire the best attorneys and escape the death penalty.

"A wealthy, prominent person has never been put to death in Colorado," she said. "We have had 72 executions, but have never executed a woman."

Rep. John R. Mackie, R-Longmont, said it is inconsistent to pass laws—such as the fair housing law—"to give people dignity in life" and then take lives with capital punishment.

"We as people are not God," he said. "No group of six, 12 or 20 or a million can sit in judment on a single individual."

Mackie said he once believed in the death penalty but now is ready to go out and urge people to vote against it.

Disarmament Talks Summoned by Thant

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant has summoned the United Nations' 114 members to meet April 21 as members of the U.N. Disarmament Commission.

The meeting was requested by the Soviet Union March 31. The Soviets asked that it be held before the 18 - nation disarmament committee resumes talks in Geneva .

The request set off speculation that the Soviet Union would use the meeting to attack U.S. policies in Southeast Asia.

U.S. Africa Aid Faces Severe Congress Test

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (Special)— President Johnson's controversial policy of aiding the African nations which are deliberately trying to destroy U.S. - supported governments in the Congo and elsewhere is headed for its severest test in Congress.

Advance warning of the mounting fury of this foreign policy storm is indicated by the no - holds - barred grilling Assistant Secretary of State G. Mennen Williams received from a bipartisan group of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The legislators, headed by Representatives Wayne Hayes, D-O., Edna Kelly, D-N.Y., and H. R. Gross, R-Ia., not only lashed out at U.S. aid to Algeria, Ghana, Yeman, the United Arab Republic and Tanzania; but also denounced the administration's ostrich - like attitude toward Communist infiltration in Africa.

They let go their blistering fire when Williams attempted to justify continuing the $200 million program for Africa on the ground that no Communist satellite has been established there since the U.S. initiated its aid.

"Is there something else you can call some of these countries in the light of what happened in Tanzania, Algeria and Kenya, and not call their governments Communist satellites?" asked Mrs. Kelly. "In most of these countries the Communists, if they haven't openly taken control, can take over at a moment's notice if they so desire. They kicked us out of Tanzania."

I think there are countries where the Communists have quite a bit of influence," replied Williams, "but I don't think there is any one where influence predominates or the Africans don't maintain their independence of action."

"Then you don't know about what is going on in most of these countries," declared Mrs. Kelly. "How about Algeria. Ben Bella follows Moscow's line on everything. He is receiving all the arms he wants from both Moscow and Peking, and you say Algeria isn't a Communist satellite?"

"No," said Williams.

THE SAME COLOR

When Williams failed to explain further, Representative Frances, R-O., demanded to know, "Where do you put Ghana?"

"In Ghana there is a very heavy Communist influence, but I still don't think that . . . ." replied the perspiring Williams, his voice dropping so low the rest of his answer was inaudible.

"You wouldn't call Ghana a Communist satellite?" retorted Mrs. Bolton. "Then what about Tanzania? That country must certainly be considered either in the Chinese or Soviet orbit."

"No," Williams replied.

"Both of these countries are Communist," countered Mrs. Kelly. "The facts are clear for anybody who wants to look at them. I don't care what you call them, but they are Communist satellites and we ought to recognize this. Otherwise, the only ones being fooled by this deception are ourselves."

THE CONGO MESS

Secretary Williams then tried to shift the discussion to the Congo, declaring:

"I believe our big problem in Africa at the moment is not Communism but the cloud we are under because of the Congo operations."

"If 'Soapy' keeps talking like that, there won't be any foreign aid bill," chimed in Representative Wayne Hays. "He has just convinced me I should vote against the entire bill. And I want to warn every freshman congressman in this room that you'd better think twice before voting for this aid bill. Most of you were elected with less than a five per cent margin, and many voters are going to think twice about supporting you if you vote aid to those Communist countries."

Representative Gross then began hammering away at the aid programs for Egypt and Algeria.

"Do you think we should be giving money to nations like Egypt and Algeria, which are using the funds to defeat our purpose in the world?" asked Gross.

"I think we have to look at what our main overall interest is and make a decision on that basis," answered Williams. "Sometimes that requires us to do things which viewed from one particular angle don't look advantageous to us."

"What has the overall view got to do with it, as long as those Communist countries are going into the Congo today, supplying them with arms, and Lord only knows what else, to create turmoil, butchery and savagery?" erupted Gross. "This is a serious situation and we have no business supporting the countries doing this."

"There is no question this is serious," said Williams. "But I think even greater problems are also involved; like letting these countries develop the type of government they want, and our overall relations with the Sovier Union."

"That policy just doesn't make sense," thundered Gross. "If we are supporting Tshombe, which is the right thing to do, why are we giving so much as a thin dime to Algeria, Egypt, or any other country that is trying to destroy him?"

"We must keep in contact with these countries through our aid program," explained Williams.

You are helping to finance a Communist take - over of Africa?" shot back Gross. "The American people will never support a program that does that."

Nixon Favors LBJ's Stand On Viet Nam

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Tuesday night that he favors President Johnson's stand on Viet Nam.

Unless it continues, he said, the United States may have to defend the Philippine Islands.

Nixon stopped off in Tucson to dedicate a public affairs library today at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house in memory of Richard Ports, a national officer of the fraternity killed in a Tucson auto accident last year. Nixon said Ports was "one of my closest friends and political associates."

Commending Johnson's stand in Viet Nam, Nixon said, "It is not consistent with his usual policy which is to find a consensus and go with that.

"If he were to follow the consensus of his party," said Nixon, "he would take a softer stand."

Nixon proposed that Southeastern Asian nations join a military alliance to help fend off Communist aggression. Otherwise, he said, economic aid would "sink down a rat hole."

He said such an alliance, coupled with strong economic aid such as the President recommended recently, would be an effective solution to the Viet Nam crisis.

Of his recent attempt to speak with former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Nixon said, "Basically, he is living under what you would call house arrest.

"Nobody is going to get an interview with him unless Soviet officials feel it would be to their interests."

The former vice president plans to attend a testimonial dinner in Phoenix tonight for the 1964 GOP presidential candidate, Barry Goldwater.

RECORD PARTICIPATION

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — University High feels it holds a record for per capita participation in basketball.

Of the 30 students in the school, 12 are on the basketball team and six are cheerleaders.

Nomination of Hoyt Okayed by Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's nomination of Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Denver Post, to the U.S. Advisory Commission on Information was approved unanimously Monday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

It also approved Johnson's nomination of Morris Novik, New York Public Service radio consultant, for reappointment to the commission.

Steve Raines, Jim Quince on "Rawhide," is a former cowboy who toured the rodeo circuit all the way from North Dakota to South America.

Two Are Hanged For Committing Four Murders

LANSING, Kan. (AP) — Richard Eugene Hickock and Perry Edward Smith, a pair of small-time crooks whose first big-time job culminated in four murders at a wheat farm in western Kansas almost 5½ years ago, were hanged early today.

The trap was sprung on Hickock at 12:19 a.m., in the corner of a dingy warehouse at the Kansas Penitentiary, and the instigator of the plot to rob and kill was pronounced dead at 12:41 a.m. He was 33 and came from Edgerton, Kan., in the farm country just southwest of Kansas City.

Smith, his 36-year-old partner from Elko, Nev., was dropped at 1:02 a.m. and pronounced dead at 1:19 a.m.

They were convicted March 29, 1960, at Garden City, Kan., of slaying Herbert Wesley Clutter, once a member of the Federal Farm Credit Board, Mrs. Clutter and their teen-age son and daughter.

Hickock had heard in prison that Clutter often handled $10,000 a day and kept big money in the house on his farm at Holcomb, Kan. He and Smith got less than $50 in their raid on the Clutters, plus a radio and a pair of binoculars they pawned in Mexico City.

Four appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court, to lower federal tribunals and to the Kansas Supreme Court postponed their execution four times and prolonged their lives almost five years.

Associate Justice Byron R. White of the U.S. Supreme Court denied a final petition for a stay of execution Tuesday

Space Lab Astronauts To Be Selected Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force soon may select astronauts for its program to orbit men in a space laboratory sometime after 1967.

Until then, the new spacemen would work with engineers in developing the MOL — Military Orbiting Laboratory — program, Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bleymaier, an Air Force space officer, told a meeting Tuesday.

Bleymaier said the civilian space agency has given the Air Force two Gemini capsules for unmanned flight tests and that he expects an announcement on the space airmen "almost any day now." Presumably they are among the Air Force officers training at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Driver Found Guilty on Reckless Count

Thomas Crowell, 21, 2820 Concord St., was found guilty of reckless driving on testimony Tuesday in Municipal Court by Patrolman Roy Nordgulen. Crowell failed to appear in court for this trial.

Judge Allan Asher levied a $75 fine, suspended Crowell's right to drive for 30 days, and ordered a writ of execution issued.

Nordgulen testified that on March 14, he chased Crowell at speeds up to 110 miles an hour on East High 24.

Edward Abbott, 21 812 W. Colorado Ave., was found guilty of making an illegal turn. Half of his $20 fine was suspended.

Judge Asher converted a careless driving charge against Jim Kyllingstad, 30, 1529 Happiness Dr., to a warning ticket.

Roland Campfield, 25, 15 N. Brentwood Tt., was found guilty of a signal light violation and was fined $10.

A charge of disobeying a stop sign against Amelia Aldaz, 34, 2212 W. Bijou St., was dismissed as Mrs. Aldas had been improperly charged.

Roberta Pettibone, 17, 1319 N. Nevada Ave., was fined $20 on a guilty plea to damage to city property. An identical charge against Everett Hysten, 20, 3933 Hysten was fined $15 on his guilty plea to careless driving, as was Lloyd Lulloff, 46, 1710 Delaware St.

William Oorton, 48, 528 W. Platte Ave., was fined $25 on his guilty plea to drunkenness.

Anothony Tafoya, 32, 329 E. Fountain St., also pleaded guilty a drunk charge. Tafoya said he did not know how he got to the Sheriff's office Monday night when he was booked for the charge.

"I can't think of anyone with a worse record in the city than your father," Judge Asher told Tafoya, and sentenced him to 30 days.

James Archuleta, 21, 419 E. Colorado Ave., was also sentenced to 30 days in city jail

Burning Ship Being Towed to Port

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The burning Norwegian flag tanker Ferncoast was reported being towed today by the Greek tug Atlas, bound for Piraeus, the port of Athens.

Fire broke out in the ship's engine room Monday and the crew abandoned ship. They went back aboard Tuesday to battle the flames and were joined by more than 70 U.S. Navy men from the 6th Fleet transport Mountrail.

Capt. D. Surface of Norfolk, on his guilty plea to drunkenness and riotous conduct.

James Molitor, 23, Ft. Carson, was fined $50 on his guilty pleas to resisting police and drunkenness.

Va., skipper of the Mountrail, said the fires were put out several times "only to reflash or invade new areas through red hot bulkheads."

A spokesman for the Greek Merchant Marine Ministry said today the flames were being contained. The Ferncoast was expected to reach Piraeus late Thursday or early Friday.

The name of the Sicilian dance, tarantella, is popularly ascribed to the tarantula, the big hairy spider whose bite was thought to induce melancholy and a dancing frenzy, the National Geographic says. Some authorities, however, say the dance originated in Taranto, on the Italian mainland.

Today's column is written for all the folks who'll be attending an unfamiliar church this Easter weekend, and for the hosts who'll be taking newcomers to church this Sunday.

If a visit to a strange church is to have meaning and not turn into an embarrassing ordeal, then the host must brief his guest in advance.

Now we don't mean just the "what - time - to - come and what - to - wear" points. They're important, but even more vital is an explanation of the church's basic beliefs.

Folks who've grown up in a particular church and worshipped there all their lives will never know how confusing and strange their service can seem to a newcomer. So, if you're taking a guest preview the service for him. Give him a rundown of the worship components from the opening prayer to closing "Amen!"

Then explain how the individual parts of the service reflect the beliefs of your denomination.

It may be that you'll have to do some research to make your explanation meaningful for your guest; if so, so much the better. You'll become just that more knowledgeable a church member.

Consider it a real compliment to be invited to attend church with a friend. Such an invitation clearly demonstrates that he accepts you as a valued companion, one who will not embarrass him.

If you do accept an invitation, do so with the unspoken pledge that you'll go to learn, not to be entertained or to probe for points to criticize.

Perhaps your friend will neglect to offer you a briefing on his particular form of worship. If so, pop pre-service questions at him until you're sure you know what part to take part in the service, and when to stand, sit, kneel, etc.

Contrary to too common belief, church is not a fashion show. Don't put the focus of your thinking on impressing others with your clothes; just make sure they're appropriate for the occasion. (Note: Some churches require women to cover their heads, while in others frequent kneeling makes a fitted sheath dress an instrument of torture. Check on this!)

The two most important points of church etiquette can be summed up in single words: punctuality and silence.

In "My Fair Lady" Eliza Doolittle's father sings "Get Me to the Church on Time." Make that your theme song. It's astounding how many people who'd never be late for a football game come tiptoeing into church 15 minutes tardy.

Silence is a valued part of the worship experience. As soon as you enter church, cease all chatter. Don't interrupt the concentration of your neighbors by flirting, whispering, passing notes, chewing and popping gum, eating candy or playing footsie. Save all your "why are they doing that?" questions for after the service.

If there's nothing happening in front, use the time to review the past week and discover points in your own life that need improvement.

A few other points of etiquette are indicated. If there are ushers, let them guide you to a seat. Don't take the chance of usurping a family's accustomed pew. The girl follows the usher, with the boy bringing up the rear.

If there are not enough hymnals or prayer books to go around, the boy holds the book and finds the pages (unless he is unfamiliar with the books, in which case the girl may graciously take over).

If a collection is taken, pay no attention to the size of your companion's donation. (A dollar makes an extremely generous "silent" offering from a non-member.)

Many priests and ministers greet church-goers as they leave the service. If this is the custom of the church you attend, the host or hostess should introduce the guest, saying, "Father Burke, this is Sharon Graham. Sharon, this is Father Burke."

POSTSCRIPT: Some of you may be planning to attend Easter Sunrise Services. If so, observe these same points of church etiquette, even though the service is held in a football stadium.

Don't be like some of the Easter Sunrise Service attenders we saw at a national cemetery who held a transistor radio to their ears throughout the service, and then walked on the graves on their way out of the service. Show respect for the occasion and the location.

NERVOUS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A witness to a liquor store holdup Tuesday night said the armed robber commented, "I'm so nervous I don't think I can go through with it."

His nerve turned out to be pretty strong.

Mary Deeb, the owner, said the man left with $150.

Rare Lincoln Collection Is Swept Away

RUSSIAVILLE, Ind. (AP) — This would have been a very important day for Oliver B. Ransopher.

The 70-year-old lecturer would have marked this 100th anniversary of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln surrounded by the treasured Lincoln memoribilia he collected.

Almost all of the 6,800 prized Lincoln mementoes which Ransopher spent a lifetime collecting were swept away in seconds Sunday night when a tornado demolished this central Indiana community of 1,200 and destroyed his home.

"I looked out the door and saw this big black thing moving toward me," he recalled. "I just yelled to my wife it's coming."

Ransopher said that as he reached a bedroom door a 500-pound air conditioner from a building two blocks away tore through the roof, crushing a bed. "Then bricks came flying at me and a big board came through the wall," he said.

Ransopher had placed the Lincoln collection, including letters, photographs, documents, medallions and books on display at his home Thursday through Sunday. He had intended to pack it away Sunday afternoon but decided to wait until Monday.

Born just outside Russiaville, Ransopher was a social worker in Chicago 14 years and toured schools in Wisconsin 15 years lecturing on Lincoln. He toured every inch of ground Lincoln walked, visited with Robert Todd Lincoln in Washington, D.C., and was long acquainted with Rep. Henry R. Rathbone, whose parents accompanied the Civil War President and Mrs. Lincoln to Ford theater April 14, 1865. Ransopher returned to Russiaville last October.

When the tornado had passed, only two walls were left standing at the Ransopher home. Those Lincoln souvenirs not carried away were shredded or buried in mud and debris.

"I just wish I would have given the collection to the Howard County Historical Society before this happened," Ransopher said.

CROSSROADS PLANNING — Committee chairmen conferred Tuesday for the second time to develop plans for the Summer Crossroads program June 2 to 12. Two Southern Baptists Charged With Spying

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Relatives of two Southern Baptist missionaries, arrested in Cuba last week on charges of espionage, have visited them in a Havana jail.

The Home Mission Board, employer of the Rev. Herbert Caudill and his son-in-law, the Rev. James D. Fite, said through a spokesman that they had been visited by their wives and the Fite's three children.

News of the visit was relayed Tuesday to the State Department by Emil Stadelhofer, Swiss ambassador.

The ministers, a Baptist spokesman said, reported they are well treated, received normal food and had comfortable bedding.

Caudill, 61, a native of Clinchport, Va., has been a missionary to Cuba for 35 years. Fite, 31, a native of Wynesboro, Ga., went to Cuba in 1960.

They were the only Americans among 47 Baptist ministers and 13 laymen accused of spying for the United States.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Kerby is a dynamic magazine editor who recently asked me to answer a few questions about "faith healing" and the power of religion to promote better health. So add this to your scrapbook. Millions of you have heard me tell the case of Joe, the newspaper editor, for it is a classic in psychosomatic medicine.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-463: James H. Kerby is the dynamic editor of the "Cadle Call," which is the fastest growing religious magazine in America nowadays.

"Dr. Crane," James began as we attended a luncheon which Dr. Warren Walker, the Midwest's famous TV pastor, gave for me, "I am also deeply interested in faith healing.

"Can internal glands and organs not normally under one conscious control, be influenced by our subconscious mind?"

So I told the true case of the Illinois editor named Joe, which is the most classical example I have ever encounterd.

Under official hynosis we can demonstrate remarkable power of the mind over the body, but Joe's case is the most striking I have ever met in a non-hynpnotic patient.

Joe was a brilliant ex-school teacher, now an editor of a thriving daily newspaper.

He was married and with two children of grade school age.

After a luncheon one noon, he decided he should get a medical check-up due to a cough which had hung on for several days.

The doctor was apparently incompetent.

"Joe," he began, "don't you have night sweats?"

Joe shook his head.

"Doc, I never had one in my life," he nonchalantly replied.

"Well, you should have," retorted the medic, "for one of your lungs is entirely eaten up with tuberculosis.

"So you are through with the newspaper as of now. I'm making a reservation for you in my private sanitarium tomorrow morning. Plan to be there at least a year and maybe two or three years!"

Well, Joe was demoralized. For he had no reserves and this was before the modern hospital insurance protection.

He stuck to his job till 5 p.m., but as he walked up the street toward his house, his wife saw his dejected appearance and ran to the door in alarm.

To her anixious queries, Joe replied that he was dying of TB and had to check in at the private sanitarium next day for three years (Note how men routinely exaggerate their aches and pains).

His "positive thinking" wife refused to believe such a diagnosis until a reputable chest expert had analyzed Joe and taken chest X-rays.

Joe went to bed about 11 p.m. It was a cool March night. The windows were open.

About 2 a.m., Joe woke up just dripping sweat from every pore. He was so drenched that his faithful wife insisted he change to a dry pair of pajamas.

Finally he drifted off into sleep again, but at 4:30, he was oozing perspiration, literally as if he were in a Turkish bath.

His wife now made him shift to another pair of dry pajamas, and then she told me she had to change both the upper as well as lower sheets because of Joe's terrific night sweat.

After repeated chest X-rays and three different lab tests of his sputum, Joe was pronounced totally free of tuberculosis.

So his night sweats were psychosomatic. But neither Joe nor any of you readers, even if offered $1,000 to do so, can turn on a shower of perspiration by the greatest conscious effort.

Yet Joe's subconscious mind did it, even while he was sleeping, thus proving the power of the brain over glands.

Send for my booklet "How to Control Our Emotions," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Disaster Relief Is Planned in Michigan Area

LASING, Mich. (AP) — With $1 million in state disaster relief still five days away, Gov. George Romney took steps Tuesday to get federal and private assistance to victims of the Palm Sunday tornadoes that swept lower Michigan.

Estimating tornado damage in 10 Michigan counties at $30 million, Romney asked President Johnson to declare Michigan a disaster area. He also asked for disaster relief for Michigan farmers and desigiated the Red Cross as the disaster relief agency.

The state House of Representatives passed, 102-0, a bill to set up a state emergency fund. The bill had been introduced by Democratic Rep. Joseph Snyder as a result of last year's Anchor Bay area tornado in Macomb County.

The bill, which has been in the Ways and Means Committee since March 1, was amended in committee and passed by the House under suspended rules in a 12-hour period. However, it cannot be acted upon by the Senate for five days because of a constitutional requirement.

The bill allows the money to be poured directly into emergency operations immediately after a disaster, and permits distribution of funds to local governments after they have depleted their own emergency funds.

The money will be used exclusively for public works.

Italy's Railway System Struck By Workers

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP) — Strikes hit Italy's railway system today and closed the nation's opera houses and concert halls at the height of the Easter tourist season.

The railway strike was to last only 24 hours. The strike in the opera and concert houses was called for today, Thursday and Saturday.

The rail strike halted practically all service on the state system, delaying the annual Holy Week influx into Rome. Only a handful of the 7,000 daily trains operated. Most international trains were halted at the Italian border.

Rome's sprawling marble terminal was deserted. The huge square outside was jammed with passengers waiting for buses pressed into emergency service.

In Milan, Italy's major industrial city, about 30 police guards were the only persons in the usually bustling central railway station that handles 400 trains daily. The only train that appeared in the Milan station was an international express from France.

Special buses shuttled passengers between Milan and the main railway stations on the Italian-Swiss and Italian-French frontiers.

Traffic police reported jams on major highways.

Navy units took over operation of the railroad system's ferryboats to Sicily and Sardinia.

The rail strike was called to protest a Ministry of Transport decision to give 2,000 high-level ministry employes overtime pay for work on a railway modernization system. The unions demanded the bonuses for all employes of the ministry.

The striking unions in the opera and concert houses complained that a new law providing state aid for the houses will not become operative in time to prevent dismissal of many employes and closure of some theaters.

Premier Aldo Moro made a last-minute attempt Tuesday night to avert the strike by the 180,000 railway employes, but the unions turned him down.

RECOVERS

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Sen. Barry Goldwater left a Phoenix hospital Monday. He had undergone observation of a chronic back ailment.

The 1964 Republican presidential candidate looked chipper and indicated he did not expect to return to the hospital as a patient.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced further into record high territory early this afternoon under blue chip leadership.

Trading was heavy enough to produce a day's total of around seven million shares if the pace were to continue. Many big blocks were traded.

Impressive blue - chip leadership was given the market. General Motors was up a full point, making another historic high as Wall Street speculated on possible dividend or split action by directors at their next meeting.

Union Carbinde rose a point and a half.

Aerospace issues were strong as they responded to recent contract news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .6 at 339.8 with industrials up 1.2, rails up .1 and utilities up .1.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.30 at 912.31.

Both averages as well as Standard & Poor's were rising above historic closing peaks established for two days running.

Sentiment in the street was optimistic since the averages now had made a clear-cut breakthrough, in very active trading, above their previous record highs posted early in February.

Improved first quarter earnings continued to warm sentiment as did the virtual end of tax-loss selling for the April 15 deadline. A new steel labor proposal lent further hope to avert a strike deadline.

Among aerospace stocks General Dynamics held a gain of about 2 while Boeing and United Aircraft rose well over a point each.

Steels produced a string of gains, most of them moderate. U.S. Steel was up nearly a point.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Transactions were rather slow and light in the grain futures market today with prices generally little changed most of the time on the Board of Trade.

Wheat developed a little firmness at times but corn eased slightly. Old crop soybeans swung over a range of 2 cents or so.

Flood Evacuees Pose Puzzle In Minnesota

By RICHARD RAINBOLT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Up and down the vast expanse of the Mississippi, the Minnesota and other rivers across this state, there are thousands of homes up to their door tops in flood water.

You look and try to imagine what you would do if it were your home, but most of all you wonder about whose home it is and where the occupants have gone.

So does the American Red Cross.

At each community where the rivers carve new beds through residential areas, the Red Cross and other agencies rush in with aid. They set up kitchens, first aid stations and temporary housing facilities.

The food is accepted, mostly by dike builders, the first aid stations are used only infrequently, the housing facilities almost never.

At Mankato the Red Cross set up 1,000 cots in a school gymnasium when authorities decided to evacuate residents in a threatened area of almost 6,000 persons. Only a handful of tired dike workers showed up to use them.

It's mostly the same story elsewhere. The Red Cross registers evacuees by the thousands, but when you look for someone with a story to tell, all you find is a card file.

There have been a few emergency evacuations, a few stories of families living in churches or other temporary shelter for some time.

But it seems that everyone in Minnesota has a relative or a close friend on high ground.

The evacuation of a community may come at midday or in the middle of the night — whenever officials decide it's time to get the folks out. They are always orderly evacuations. Usually the residents have carted their belongings to second floors or attics before they leave.

The men or boys of a family forced out of its home usually can be found working on dikes — if they volunteer in time. At the most critical time of high water, a community generally has more volunteers than jobs for them to do.

The Civil Defense centers are always crowded. A few key personnel appear busy. The rest stand around. There's unemployment even among dike workers during high water time.

Man Sentenced To State Pen

Richard Donald Cellarius was sentenced to two to three years in the state penitentiary this morning by District Judge William M. Calvert for burglary.

Cellarius, 29, 1010 S. Sierra Madre St. pleaded guilty Mar. 19 to breaking into Miller's Automotive, 1027 S. Tejon St. Mar. 4.

In passing sentence Judge Calvert said probation was out of the question as the defendant had already received a previous sentence to the penitentiary in Arkansas and had also received a dishonorable discharge from the military.

A second defendant, Cleonsum Johnspear, 24, Ft. Carson received a sentence of not more than 14 years in the state reformatory for simple robbery.

The defendant was originally charged with aggravated robbery and alleged to have robbed Gordon Alexander Horn, an employe at Greyhound Lines Inc., 225 E. Pikes Peak Ave. at gun-point March 9, when he escaped with $622 in cash and personal checks worth $162.

A matter of minutes later he was picked up in his room at the Joyce Hotel and the money, checks and gun found.

On March 19 the district attorney's office amended the charge to the lesser offense and Johnspear pleaded guilty.

After Rent Subsidy Comes Super Snoopers

By SAM CAMPBELL

The obvious solution to many of our country's ills would be a U. S. Department of Sex.

Sex is truly an interstate situation. Clearly individuals have been unable to cope with the problems associated therewith. Cities have proved inadequate. States have been slow to accept their responsibilities in regard thereto. Next logical step the feds.

Establishment of a Department of Sex is not without precedent. For many years now, the central authority in Washington has dealt with aspects of the problem. There was the time, for instance, when the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was headed by Nels — well, let's skip that.

Officially, Washington has taken an active role into this stubbornly resistant matter. Birth control over the years has drawn and today continues to draw a substantial percentage of tax-paid brain energy. Now comes a proposal for federal subsidies for medium income renters.

The general idea, at first blush, seems a bit removed from the Department of Sex proposal. But closer analysis disclose a rather direct relation. Specifically, the rent subsidies are intended to go to those families that have too great an income to qualify for public housing but not so great an income that they would be considered non-impoverished. This is the area of genuine need.

With the feds paying the rent, the inevitable concern will be with the amount of rent to be paid which in turn involves the size of quarters that are rented. This in turn is a function of family size etc., etc. and etc.

Many collateral activities, now handled haphazardly by assorted bureaus, can be gathered together into one organization of cabinet status. These include equal pay for women, pensions for security risks, subsidies for illegitimacy, integration, ad nauseum, ad hoc, amo, amas, amat etc.

Birds and Bees, however, will remain with Agriculture. Interdepartmental conferences can be set up on the sub-cabinet level to resolve the delicate jurisdictional conflicts.

On the local level, rent inspectors will be set up to maintain a 24-hour vigil, utilizing the latest electronic gear including, but not limited to, those little "bug" dommaflagies that the divorce detectives use to gather the quick-settlement type data.

Liaison can be maintained with corresponding ministries of other mis-governments and with the United Nations which has been somewhat of a pioneer in this field of endeavor on a non-official basis.

You can expect to hear some caterwauls from old - fashioned throwbacks to the Harding era, but we ought not let a small minority close the boudoir door on progress.

As to who shall head up the news department, it is understood that University of California President Clark Kerr is developing some rather frank personalities at his Berkeley institute.

The possibilities are almost limitless. Just as Treasury has its T-men, just as Justice has its G-men, the S Department will be able to set up a Super Snooper (SS) squad.

10 Millionth Pontiac Rolls Off the Line

General Manager E. M. Estes and other divisional executives were on hand this week as the 10,000,000th Pontiac — a shiny gold Catalina sedan — rolled off the home plant assembly line during the first shift.

Olin R. Hargraves, a 40-year Pontiac veteran who painted fenders on the first Pontiac ever built, assisted in the milestone ceremony.

Shortly after driving the car off the line, Estes credited the division's employes for their "know-how and loyalty."

In a statement observing the milestone event, Estes said:

"Without the teamwork that has existed between each department and each employe, between th factory and the dealer network, between each dealer and each customer, the production of the 10,000,000th Pontiac would not have been possible."

Rambler Sales Big Rise In March

Sales of 1965 Rambler automobiles in the eight - state Denver Zone have seen a dramatic rise of 17.3 per cent in March, as compared with sales during the same month a year ago, according to J. D. Barkley, Denver Zone Manager, American Motors Sales Corp.

Barkley explained that the upswing reflects an increase of 45 per cent in sales over February of this year.

He further explained that the 10 - day span just ended is the best for any comparable period in the Denver Zone since December 1963.

"Many factors," Barkley stated, "have contributed to the upsurge of interest in the 1965 Rambler. Important among them was the introduction in March of the new Marlin sports fast back.

American Motors has also recently announced the availability on May 10, of a fully - synchronized floor - shift, four-speed transmission, in their Classic, Marlin and Ambassador models.

Emanuel Leutze, German-born artist who settled in New York and Washington, is known for his painting of American and British historical events. His famed work showing Washington crossing the Delaware was done in Germany.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Compulsory Sales

There are those who believe that each man has a right to own property and to do as he pleases with what he owns. There are others who, while professing to this belief, actually seek to destroy the concept.

This was recently brought to our attention and the discussion which ensued was enlightening. In order to bring out the point at issue, we will employ this imaginary dialogue.

A. I believe in the rights of man. And I further believe that among these rights is the absolute right of an individual to acquire property through any honest method and then, having acquired it, to use it as he sees fit.

B. Fair enough. I agree that each person has a right to acquire property honestly, and once acquired to do as he sees fit with it. But my problem arises here. Suppose we have a community wherein all property is owned and none is for sale. A newcomer arrives. He has a right to own property and to acquire it honestly. But none is for sale. If he has a right to own property, then somehow he is going to have to be able to acquire property.

Aren't we going to have to do something to force someone to sell to him? Otherwise, his right to own is pre-empted by prior arrangement. He has no chance. Aren't we saying, when we say this, that only the first comers have rights? After all, the property is in private hands; then any who follow after would have no rights to acquire.

A. But if you introduce the element of force, wherein someone is to be compelled to sell property against his will, then the right of the individual to own is trespassed by the presumed right of the second individual to force a sale.

B. Granted. But what kind of a society would we have if all property were privately owned and no one could buy anything? This would create a society of classes, the property-owning class, a superior group; and the property-less masses, an inferior group.

A. If we are to establish a working relationship, we will have to extend both supposed systems to their local conclusions. What we have are two opposite concepts. These could be stated as follows: (1) We will have a society wherein all property must be honestly acquired, but wherein the owner has absolute right over what he owns which includes his right to sell or not to sell.

Or (2) we will have a society wherein all property must be honestly acquired, but wherein the desire of the owner not to sell is secondary. The appearance of a buyer creates a right in the buyer to obtain that which the present owner does not want to sell.

B. The second system sounds better to me.

A. Let's think it through. Assume the second system is in vogue. Here is a community of 100 parcels of land each owned by 100 separate people. One hundred new people appear on the scene. Our assumed system requires that the 100 existing owners sell to the newcomers.

B. That would be true.

A. Very well, all owners must now sell and the newcomers now own the property.

B. Correct.

A. But we again have 100 people who wish to buy property. And since the right of the buyer is supreme, those who have just purchased their property must now sell it to those from whom they purchased.

B. Good heavens.

A. You see the point. The buyers would demand transfer. Those now without property would demand the right to buy. Property would never really be owned. It would be in a constant state of flux. This would create total chaos for no man could plan on using his property at all. He would be at the mercy of anyone who appeared who wanted to buy it.

B. Yes, I see that. But you still haven't taken care of the problem.

A. Fortunately a system which really supports ownership as a fact, does take care of it. In any community where all property is privately owned, there will always be certain owners who wish to sell, and certain persons who wish to buy to become owner. The motivation to buy is predicated upon a desire to utilize that which is purchased. If no one could utilize what he purchased, there would be no motivation to own anything for ownership would become a myth. And no one could or would utilize much of anything since he would always be at the mercy of anyone who appeared as a buyer.

Introduce compulsory transfers of property for any reason and you merely dispossess all, even those who fancy they will benefit by the dispossession of others.

Who Is Deserving?

In the foregoing, by use of an imaginary dialogue, we have introduced two opposing systems relating to ownership of property and the sale of property. Now let us proceed with further discussion of this point.

B. I'm not yet satisfied. Your point is well taken, however. If we have a system wherein the right of the buyer is presumed to be superior to that of a seller, then every person forced to sell anything would, instantly, become a new buyer, with larger rights than the person to whom he has just sold.

A. That is correct.

B. But couldn't the new owner raise his price?

A. Certainly. But why should not the original owner raise his to the point where he discouraged the original buyer if he did not want to sell? If ANY owner (a former buyer) can raise his price to the point where a new buyer is to be discouraged, then the seller has a right not to sell.

B. But we're still confronted with the problem.

A. It's the same problem in respect to acquiring a job. If 100 men are employed in various capacities and 100 new men appear on the scene, what good does it do to fire the employed and hire the unemployed? When we are through with the process, we still have 100 men out of work. Or, we still have 100 people looking for property to buy.

B. How about having the government make the decisions in either case so that justice can be accomplished and only the deserving get the jobs or the property?

A. But how does the government decide who is deserving?

B. It could decide on the basis of need.

A. Could it really? Any person who doesn't have what he wants is in need. A man who is in need at 10 a.m. may have what he wants by 11 a.m. But the man forced to give up what he had at 11 a.m. is now in need. If he gets what he wants by force at noon, conditions have not really changed.

B. That is true.

A. This type of procedure never alleviates need. It merely creates need in new areas where none existed before, so that it can alleviate need in areas where (temporarily and by force) it can see that need doesn't exist.

B. Then what are we going to do to solve the problem of the person who wants to buy and who can't get anyone to deal with him? Or the person who wants a job and who can't find one?

A. The market place has always solved this problem to the degree that it can be solved. Let us admit that the market offers no panacea and doesn't pretend to do so. But, at the same time, if we permit the existence of a free market, then the market itself decides who is the most deserving.

In this situation, the job seeker who is best qualified gets the job. Why shouldn't he? He is the most deserving for he has prepared himself until he deserves.

Or take property. The man who is the buyer is he who has obtained sufficient in savings, credit, or both to qualify as a buyer. The most deserving get the property. Those who do not deserve, simply don't get it.

B. All right, let's get right to cases. Take the Negro. The Negro may be just as deserving as a white man. He may have saved and have the money to buy but he cannot buy what he wishes because no one will sell to him simply on the basis that he is a Negro. Or a man will not hire him, not because he isn't entirely capable, but because he is a Negro. What about this?

A. Fortunately, the Negro himself has already, in some instances at least, provided the answer within the free market framework, which we still have to a degree. An enterprising Negro can buy property. He can always find someone who is willing to sell to him.

B. But this property is often inferior property and not what he really wants.

A. Then, he should go to work to improve it. Remember that when the white man originally obtained property it was not particularly desirable property. He had to improve it. And he did.

And the same is true respecting jobs. Negroes can and do start businesses. They launch enterprises. They invest. They command their own resources and can and do make fortunes. And, if they like, they can employ only Negroes.

B. Are you saying that the Negro can obtain justice if he sits back and does nothing?

A. I am saying that the Negro can obtain justice if he gets up and relies on the market. Political reliance will undo him just as it has others who have trusted government to solve their problems.

Where Are the Complainers Now?

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Probably one of the most beautiful mountain canons in the entire west is being laid waste by men with peneumatic drills and dynamite; by men driving monstrous machines that tear up the earth in great gobs, that push boulders weighing tens of tons around as though they were marbles.

This valley will never be the same again. The trees have been uprooted and burned. The beautiful little cascading mountain stream is being rechanneled, routed through long culverts and crowded against the banks on one side or the other.

This once serene and lovely mountain valley up which millions have enjoyed driving their cars during the past 50 years and their horses and buggies before that, and many used to enjoy hiking up in years gone by, is being ravaged by savage men who apparently take great delight in their work. Every work day, the canyon takes on a new look that brings tears to the eyes of sentimental old buzzards like me who loved it as it was, with only one side torn up and the other left almost as it was before the white men invaded the area.

True, there was once a railroad that ran up the other side, but they didn't blast away the whole side to the canyon on which to built their trackbed. No, they tunneled through the ridges and scarcely damaged the serenity of the scene. The present job is blasting off 40 or 50 feet of the canyon wall for places, and what for? Just so those who drive up one side of the creek can drive back down on the other side to get a change of scenery, only that has all been blasted away.

Here is a job for the SPABA that is always trying to protect the beauty of the Pikes Peak Region. I am amazed that they are allowing this depredation to continue, seeing the fight they are putting up over other areas that are not being harmed nearly so much as this one. I have been expecting to hear their wails momentarily, but then, maybe they don't drive up and down Ute Pass, where this scenery wrecking job is taking place.

Or is it possible that it makes a difference who does the wrecking? Is it possible that the SPABA approves of the despoiling of scenery by government but disapproves if it is done by private enterprise? If the politicians (government) were "defacing" the Front Range and running up a huge deficit on the job, and private enterprisers were tearing up four miles of the finest scenery in America in Ute Pass, who do you suppose the SPABA would be after, getting thousands of names on petitions trying to stop?

Not the government, certainly. The government can do no wrong. Doesn't it always step in when called upon, by enough voters, that is, and DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT? But doesn't it always turn around when we aren't looking and commit wholesale murder upon anything that stands in its way, including the rights of any number or all the people?

Shall we call upon the government to save a few acres of front Range virginity when it is busily engaged in wreaking havoc from one end of the country to the other with its superhighways. The government that is bulldozing away great historical buildings, landmarks and battlefields; the government that exercises its power of eminent domain to dispossess the owners of old colonial homes that have stood against the heat and rains of summer and the cold and storms of winter for two or three hundred years because the engineers refuse to reroute a six or eight lane highway.

The government is going to "keep America beautiful" by paving it completely and painting the pavement green. Maybe it will have a few gallons of green paint left over for the terrible "scars" on the Front Range.

Now, just suppose for a minute that the savers of our beauty succeed in closing down the work that has been going on out in plain sight of us all and putting quite a few good men out of work. What do you suppose the government will do the next time it needs crushed rock and gravel for some big project? You guessed it. It will put crews of men back to work on "its" property in the same spot from which the private operators had been kicked before.

Do you think that the government that is going about damming all the canyons in the west, and in the east too, for that matter, is going to hestitate about a little thing like scenic beauty if it needs some of that rock? The beauty of Ute Pass is being ruined in much greater degree than that of any other spot in the area.

Not that I am opposed to a four lane highway up Ute Pass. It has been sorely needed for some time. And I realize that some blasting must be done to have it. But if the situation were reversed and private operators were building the road, as should be the case, and the government was doing the quarrying, I believe the complaints would be pointed at the private operators because they would be expecting to make a profit (excuse the dirty word please, we will have to think of a term more genteel), whereas the government always operates at a loss. If it was doing the quarrying job, the rock would cost the taxpayers three times as much as it is costing them now, from private producers.

Lincoln as a Libertarian

From The Santa Ana Register

100 years ago today — on April 14, 1865 — Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. Today we observe the 100th anniversary of the assassination of the man who raised himself from the humblest of beginnings to be recognized as the President who preserved the Union.

While Lincoln is best known for his Emancipation proclamation and for his Gettysburg Address, he made a great many statements that showed he believed the individual was supreme.

From "The Lincoln Ideals," published by the Lincoln Sesquicentennial Commission, we have found the following libertarian statements made at various times by Mr. Lincoln:

"No man is good enough to govern another man, without the other's consent. I say this is the leading principle — the sheet anchor of American republicanism."

"I want in all cases to do right."

"As I would not be a slave, So I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference is no democracy."

"This is a world of compensation; and he who would be no slave, must consent to have no slave. Those who deny freedom to others, deserve it not for themselves; and, under a just God, cannot long retain it."

"I never knew a man who wished to be himself a slave. Consider if you know any good thing, that no man desires for himself."

"In the early days of the world, the Almighty said to the first of our race 'In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread'; and since then, if we except the light and the air of heaven, no good has been, or can be enjoyed by us, without having first cost labor."

"If there is any thing which it is the duty of the whole people to never entrust to any hands but their own, that thing is the preservation and perpetuity of their own liberties and institutions."

"I believe each individual is naturally entitled to do as he pleases with himself and the fruit of his labor, so far as it in no wise interferes with any other man's right."

"Important principles may, and must, be inflexible.

"Property is the fruit of labor — property is desirable — is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich, shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another; but let him labor diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

Are We Being Taught By the Blind?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

One of the aims of the Great Society is to make a college education available to everybody. But heaven help the students of the future if we can't get college professors who have more brains than the dopes — and I use the word advisedly — who are arranging for the midnight-to-dawn "teach-in" now being held on university campus to force a scuttle-and-run policy on Lyndon Johnson in South Viet Nam.

A John Birch Society member might argue that these "teach-ins" bear every evidence of conspiratorial staff work. Well, as an old reader of Clarence Day's wonderful book, "This Simian World," I would not go so far as to say that the teach-in organizers are consciously a part of a Communist plot to undermine the foreign policy of the United States. So far as I can determine after discussion with people who ought to know, it's just another case of the simian inheritance of the human race — "monkey see, monkey do." But rest assured, the professors who have picked this one up are being made monkeys of by someone.

Take the teach-in held recently at the University of Michigan, for example. According to the reports from Ann Arbor, one of the teach-in aids used to panic the crowd was a film made by the Communist Viet Cong in South Viet Nam. Who brought the film into the United States? Who made it available for campus distribution? Does anyone care? And why aren't there teach-ins to give the other side of the picture? A number of foreign correspondents and columnists have returned from South Viet Nam to say that we both can and must win the war to keep southeast Asia from being "neutralized" in favor of the Communists. Anthony Harrigan, Marguerite Higgins, Frank Coniff, Holmes Alexander and Joseph Alsop, to name just five of a much larger number, would probably consent to make teach-in appearances. But these people are ignored. Who, actually, does the talking for the current type of affair?

Professor O. Edmund Clubb is one of the featured talkers. He once headed the U.S. State Department's China desk. He was one of the group that once had a lot to say about the "agrarian reformers" who were going to put China on the road to Jeffersonian democracy once that bad old corruptionist, Chiang Kai-Shek, had been ousted. There was nothing necessarily sinister about holding such views unless you want to say that stupidity itself is sinister.

Clubb may be a man of great knowledge, but his reasoning powers have not improved with age. He told a thousand teachers and students at a Columbia University teach-in that if the U.S. chooses to expand the war in Viet Nam, there are 300,000 North Vietnamese who will fight back, there is an army of 2,000,000 Chinese, there are the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam — "and let us not forget the Russian military."

This is a breathtaking manipulation of figures, but what student of logistics would be willing to explain how anybody could possibly surmount the supply problems of maintaining millions of Chinese and Russians in a little tropical jungle corner of Asia? Just imagine how vulnerable the supply line of such a force would be from the air. Clubb told his audience that "we could elect to negotiate and perhaps achieve some neutral status for Viet Nam." This brazenly overlooks the fact that Viet Nam already had neutral status before the Red Ho Chi Minh started his infiltration tactics in South Viet Nam some ten years ago.

What bothers me about the participants in these teach-ins is not so much the evidence that the Communists are in the background egging them on. I am sure that most Americans are patriots, even when they are being victimized. What is really worrisome about the whole business is the obvious fact that some of our most learned men don't know how to define terms, or do simple addition, or read a map of the world with any sense of strategic realities, or put together an old-fashioned syllogism. On the basis of what the teach-in mentality shows, the worst calamity that could befall the country would be to have all our young people going to college. The result would be an indoctrination of a whole generation with total mush.

SAVE FRONT RANGE

To the Editor:

I wish to stand up and be counted as one of the "nuts" who believe we should hold the front range of our mountains in sacred trust for future generations.

Of course we believe in freedom of enterprise, but if you really want to be objective, you must confess that our scenery is our principal economic resource, as well as our pride and joy! New industries, military establishments, permanent residents, and visitors by the thousands are not drawn here because we tear up our beautiful backdrop to supply them with gravel! They come here because they love the natural beauty of our wonderful mountains.

In the early 1870's when Colorado Springs was but a small colony, Helen Hunt Jackson wrote a letter to General Palmer asking him to make every effort to preserve all of the frontal base of our mountains for the general public. In those days he was not a man of wealth and could do little about it. His stockholders were receiving no return on their investment for every penny that was made was put into improvements for his city. Hundreds of trees were being planted on the bare prairie and reservoirs were being built to store water for the parks and the center parking strips on the wide streets. His was to be a city of trees and great beauty.

Later in his life, when he sold the railroad and became a wealthy man, he began to buy back what acreage he could get and convert it into public land. Since Seven Falls had been under private control from the earliest days, he was unable to obtain it, however, he did buy an acreage in Cheyenne Canyon and built the High Drive across the range for all to enjoy. He prevailed upon the Perkins family to give the Garden of the Gods to the city. As time permitted, he acquired land in Austin Bluffs and laid out an extensive recreation area we now call Palmer Park in his honor. He bought Blair Athol and the Douglas Ranch and denied access roads to mining claims to preserve the Rampart Range. He converted several miles of ugliness along the Monument Creek into a beautiful park for the children of the city and kept up all the parks in the city at his own expense until his death.

I feel certain that if his tragic accident hadn't occurred, he would have continued to plan ways to beautify his city and make available to all the results of his planning. It has been estimated that his gifts to his colony equalled almost half of his income.

With such a heritage, how lovely it would be if the Castle Concrete executives, who are men of means, would, in the manner of General Palmer, return the upper acreage of the Rampart Range to the Forest Service and arrange for the privately owned acreage below to be given to the city as a gift for development as a recreation area. Then, in like manner, those who are digging in back of the Air Academy should follow suit!

THE CANAL

To the Editor:

Mr. Welsh's letter regarding the Panama Canal appearing in the Sunday (March 28) issue appears to contain a misstatement as well as a misunderstanding of the problem confronting us. According to the information I have we DID NOT PURCHASE the Canal Zone. We only purchased the "rights" of the defunct De Lesseps organization and reimbursed them for the work done through a syndicate which was able to bring political pressure to bear on Congress. They got a price far in excess of value received, keeping the major portion to themselves and making the stockholders of the French company very unhappy.

Our State Department engineered a revolt of the citizens of the Canal area (because they could not get a deal with the country that is now Columbia) and our military was there to assist. Then a new nation, Panama, was set up under our sponsorship. Next a ninety-nine year lease on a ten mile wide strip centering on the proposed channel of the canal was negotiated and signed. Thus it would not have hurt Uncle Sam to fly the Panamanian flag on a separate mast of equal height at all places where Old Glory was displayed, as a gesture of good will toward a host nation. This was fought by our Congress (evidently made up of a majority who confused patriotism with arrogance — a confusion still evidenced in our country today) until in the Eisenhower administration when the setting of poles and the flying of the Panamanian flag was authorized.

Now the misunderstanding is in regard to the utility and hence the value of the canal. The locks are too narrow and too short, and the system is an expensive, time-consuming bottle-neck to inter-ocean traffic. We cannot tie up this traffic to permit enlargement — and the cost to do so would be clear out of reason anyway. We need a larger, sea-level canal to permit faster movement and use by our larger ships. (What such a canal would do to fresh water supplies of the adjacent land is a problem for the engineers to solve.) To build a new canal doesn't mean we should give away our Panama Canal nor turn it over to international control, as some advocate. We could let Panama have a little more responsibility in its operation, to earn its share of the revenue it receives.

DAY LIGHT SAVING

To the Editor:

We do have far greater laws now that should never be in the book some of them could be eliminated. Done away with. We don't save by daylight saving. Because every one does get more time out doors on places to go sight seeing. The days do get longer from April, May, June, July, August, September, and October, and more time out to relax, rest and do the things to be done before dark at home or else where. We got along before daylight saving. We can get along without this saving now. Why don't the city council and others leave well enough alone.

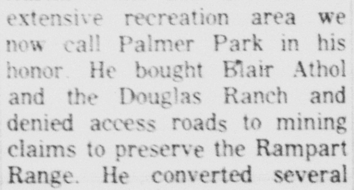
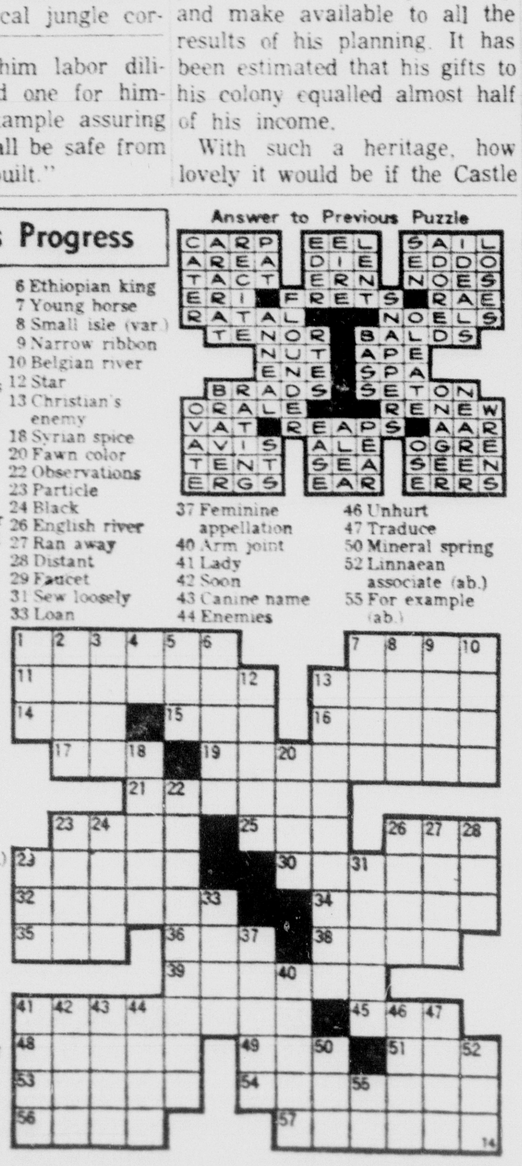
Answer to Previous Puzzle





eds in North iet Nam Hit ffer of U.S.

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — North Viet am has said "no" to President hnson's offer of unconditional ace talks and derided his pro-sal for $1 billion in aid to atheast Asia.

"We resolutely fight to the d, that is our answer," the ficial newspaper Nhan Dan id in a 2,000-word editorial nday.

"If they want to continue the ar, we will also continue to ght back."

The editorial said Johnson's d proposal impressed no one t "a handful of traitors hank-ing after the milk and butter ft unfinished by U.S. imperial-ts."

Nhan Dan said Johnson had emanded a peace settlement nder which "the U.S. still stays South Viet Nam and its uppet administration must be aintained.

"In other words, the so-called eadiness to enter into uncondi-ional discussions' expressed by ohnson is no other than readi-ess to enter into discussions on he condition that our people nust lay down their weapons nd submit themselves to the .S., otherwise the U.S. keeps n using force to attain this oal.

"'He whets his knife while elling his beads' is the tradi-ional trick of the imperialists, vith Johnson taking the lead."

However, the U.S. State De-artment did not view the edito-ial as an official rejection of Johnson's offers.

"North Viet Nam has not re-ected anything," said Under-ecretary of State George Ball n Washington.

Ball said the United States is ooking for Hanoi's response to an appeal by 17 nonaigned na-ions for a start on peace talks without prior conditions.

Asked what the United States will do if the Hanoi government officially rejects Johnson's offer, Ball said:

"We will continue what we are doing. We will continue to respond in a measured and appropriate way while continuing to leave the offer on the table."

The chief of the Viet Cong mission to Peking was reported to have turned down the 17-nation appeal.

"All negotiations with the United States imperialists at this moment are entirely useless if they refuse to withdraw their troops and weapons from South Viet Nam," Nguyen Minh Phuong told the Peking correspondent of the official Indonesian news agency Antara.

Peking's Communist party paper, the People's Daily, said U.N. Secretary-General U Thant would not be welcome if he attempts a peace mission to the Red Chinese capital. It said the United Nations has no right to meddle in a conflict which can be settled only by nations that took part in the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina.

Instead of "knocking at the wrong door," the paper said, Thant should condemn U.S. actions in Viet Nam and demand that the United States "cease its aggression against South Viet Nam and its bombing of North Viet Nam."

The People's Daily repeated a statement by North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh that peace talks can begin only after the United States pulls its troops out of Viet Nam.

"The Chinese government and people fully support President Ho Chi Minh's statement and, together with the Vietnamese people, will resolutely carry to the end the common struggle to drive the U.S. aggressors out of Viet Nam," it said.

In Moscow, the Communist party paper Pravda said Johnson's speech was a "maneuver designed to placate world public opinion and Washington's alarmed allies."

Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz of Poland said in Warsaw he hoped to see a "sobering up" of American policy in Viet Nam.

In Venice, scientists from 23 nations assembled for the 14th Pugwash Conference and sought some solution to the Viet Nam problem. Many admitted it might be impossible to produce even vague suggestions on how to keep the war from spreading.

The conference, originated by U.S. industrialist Cyrus Eaton in Pugwash, Nova Scotia, began Sunday with Viet Nam topping its agenda on arms control and general disarmament.

An old British joke tells of the peer who dreamed he was delivering a speech in the House of Lords and woke to discover that indeed he was.

Right-Hander Brings No Luck To 'Senators'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big right-hander from the hill country of central Texas did well in his brief pitching stint Monday, but he brought no luck for the Washington Senators.

As presidents have been doing almost every year for more than half a century, Lyndon B. Johnson threw out the first ball to open the American League baseball season here.

Johnson threw out two balls, getting good speed and distance on both of them.

The Senators outshowed the Boston Red Sox only in the matter of catching presidential pitches. Pitcher Steve Ridzik hauled in the first Johnsonian heave and catcher Mike Brumley captured the second one.

His pitching chores done with, Johnson settled down to watch the game and eat hot dogs. Some observers said the President ate a minimum of three, washing them down with soft drinks.

The question was unanswered as to whether, like many other of the more than 45,000 fans, he also ate popcorn or peanuts as he watched Boston win the opener 7 to 2.

Johnson's guests shifted about in the presidential box, each getting roughly equal time at the presidential ear or vice versa.

Those on hand included Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey; House Speaker John W. McCormack; Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.; Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill.; Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore.; and Reps. Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

Later, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., protested the fact that Johnson, Humphrey and McCormack sat together.

"We are just not acting wisely when we allow the president, the vice president and the third in line of succession to sit together in a crowd like that," he added.

The President, Pelly said, "is too friendly and he is taking undue risk."

Rep. Powell Assails 'War on Poverty'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell says the administration's war on poverty has sputtered dismally during its first six months.

The New York Democrat issued his statement Sunday. His Labor and Education Committee opens hearings today on administration requests to enlarge the program next year.

Powell said the program thus far has been marked by wildly unrealistic salaries for its leaders, by excessive planning and little action and "giant fiestas of political patronage."

Nonetheless, Powell supports the program. President Johnson has asked a $1.5-billion authorization for the coming fiscal year, and Powell has talked of doubling that.

He said the problems of the program are common to any new project, and "no idea can fulfill its intended mission without exposure to searching and honest criticism."

Teacher Honored By State PTA

Miss Lorene Ball, Principal of Bates School, was presented Monday with a Life Membership pin and certificate in the Colorado State PTA. The presentation was made at the Bates Parent Teachers Association Meeting.

Miss Ball, a native Coloradoan, was graduated from the Monte Vista High School, Colorado Women's College, and Adams State College at Alamosa. She did graduate work at Colorado University and received her M.A. from Colorado College.

Miss Ball first taught junior and senior high school English in Monte Vista. She came to Ivywild School in Colorado Springs in 1943, and two years later went to Steele School where she taught fourth grade for ten years. In 1955 she became assistant principal of Franklin School, and helped open Jefferson School in 1956, then went on to Lincoln School as assistant principal.

In 1957 Bates School was opened and Miss Ball was appointed Principal, and has held the position since that time. She is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma honorary educational society for women.

Those attending besides parents and Bates School teachers were Mrs. Robert E. Anderson, president of the Colorado P.T.A., former Superintendent of Schools Dr. Roy J. Wasson and Mrs. Wasson, and Thomas Doherty, present Superintendent of Schools, District 11.

Local Attorney Candidate for School Board

William E. Rhodes, a local attorney, recently announced his candidacy for a six-year term on the Board of Education in District 12. The district includes all schools in a 58-square-mile area surrounding Broadmoor and Cheyenne Mountain.

Rhodes, a partner in the Quigley, Rhodes and Wilder law firm, has been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1945. A graduate of Colorado College, in the class of 1946, Rhodes was a part-owner of the Cook and Rhodes Realty Co. from 1946 to 1956.

WILLIAM E. RHODES

Following his association with the real estate business, he attended the University of Colorado, School of Law, from which he graduated in 1959 with a law degree. He also holds a BA with a major in sociology from CC.

A native New Yorker, Rhodes lives with his wife, Roberta, and three children at 5 Lake Ave. He has a married daughter, Mrs. Penelope Kannone, living in Manitou Springs. The Rhodes' other children are: Bill, 17, a senior at Cheyenne Mountain High School; Cynthia, 10, a fifth-grader at the Broadmoor Elementary School; and Lawrence, 7, a second - grader at Broadmoor Elementary.

Rhodes told the Gazette Telegraph Tuesday that his main reason for running for the District 12 School Board is because it is "a civic duty." He relates, "It's a job we should all be concerned with."

Rhodes was urged to run by friends in Broadmoor who wanter representation on the School Board. At present, there is no one from that area on the Board.

"I hope to represent the entire district, however, and not confine myself to any one area," he said in announcing his candidacy.

Gina Blasts U.S. Tax Procedures

PARIS (AP) — "All America is scandalized by the ridiculous affair in which the tax authorities are covered with shame," said Gina Lollobrigida.

The Italian film beauty arrived in Paris today still fuming over the confiscation of her jewels for unpaid California taxes.

"Many of my friends in the United States have assured me of their sympathy," she said, "and I even had an offer from a farmer in Missouri to lend me the money necessary to reclaim my jewelry."

Miss Lollobrigida's jewels were confiscated from her hotel safe in Hollywood Friday by tax officials. The jewels were returned after she paid the $14,200 tax bill.

Disarmament Agency Money Bill Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved and sent to the Senate a compromise bill that authorizes spending $30 million to run the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency for the next three years.

The House vote Tuesday was 314 to 65. The compromise splits the difference between the House bill authorizing $40 million for four years and the Senate measure authorizing $20 million for two years.

The administration had asked for $55 million over four years.

Birds Shake Batting Slump At Expense of South Colts

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The last two weeks had been long ones for Wasson's slumping Thunderbirds — but it's doubtful that all those days combined seemed as long as the first inning did to Pueblo South Tuesday.

What happened to the Colts was that they arrived in Colorado Springs on the afternoon that Wasson decided to atone for its batting sins of the past several games. South, apparently comfortable with Hank "No-Hit" Cervantes on the mound, relaxed even more after scoring a first inning run and then watching T-Bird leadoff man, Budgie Hamilton, whiff.

That was indeed a moment to relish, for it was the last enjoyment the Colts were to have Tuesday. Brian Clarke, making his first start as a Wasson first-baseman, followed Hamilton and singled sharply to center. That seemed to open the gates, for nine of the next 10 men who marched to the plate hit safely and the other reached base on an error. Before it was over Wasson had consumed nearly 30 minutes of playing time, scored nine runs, and left the South defensive array in a state of shock.

As will happen, the Thunderbirds worked out most of their wrath in that one inning and for the remainder of the contest things proceeded at a more sensible pace. The final score was 14-3 and it gave Wasson its third South Central League victory in five starts. The team is now 4-3 overall. More important the Thunderbirds, who had totaled an embarrassing 13 hits in their last three games, pounded out 18 in just six innings Tuesday, indicating that their offense may be ready to carry them back into the middle of the SCL title fight.

Since Tuesday was a day for weird occurrences, it was then appropriate that the ringleader of this batting massacre should be Clarke, a lad who had made exactly five plate appearances previously this season. If his performance this time was any indication, his absence has been a good break for the opposition. Clarke lashed out four singles and a double in five trips for a perfect afternoon. That is more hits than any previous Wasson batter had managed in a single contest in the school's history.

Clarke was followed by another newcomer, Jim Keeton, who found himself in center field for the first time Tuesday and expressed his approval by cracking three singles in four appearances. Hamilton, who had effected that first inning deception with his strikeout, later joined the fun. He was one of four men with two safteies and he drove home four runs, the first two on his second turn in the first frame. Jim Smith, Ron Daniels, and pitcher Jim Krug all had a pair of hits also.

Krug, who has been working under much more anxious conditions as the Thunderbirds' top reliefer, was making his first start Tuesday and it turned out to be a pitcher's dream. Staked to an eight run bulge in the opening frame, he relaxed and tossed a creditable seven-hitter, walking four and fanning seven. He was backed by a pair of double plays. On one an assist must go to a straying South base-runner and on the other Smith flagged down a smash with the bases-loaded and one out in the seventh and turned it into a game-ending twin-killing.

Space does not allow for a blow-by-blow rundown of Wasson's offensive display, but suffice it to say that of the 10 first inning hits, only one was of the fluke variety. The other nine were perfect unions between bat and ball.

The T-Birds will see if this sudden punch is here to stay or whether Tuesday was a one-day celebration in a 3:30 date with Cheyenne Mountain this afternoon at Memorial Park. They then rest until Saturday when the next SCL chore comes up, a 10 a.m. battle with Pueblo East in the Steel City.

Minors' Chief 'Optimistic' About 20th Post-War Year

By ERIC PREWITT

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Baseball's minor leagues are heading into their 20th post-World War II season, and their head man, Phil Piton, says, "We're optimistic."

"We feel we've turned the corner," he said, pointing to last season, when the minors showed their first over-all attendance increase since the baseball boom days immediately after the war.

Attendance dipped below 10 million in 1963 but went back over that figure last year.

Piton is president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues — the formal name for the minors — now comprising 19 leagues, with headquarters in Columbus. The line-up is virtually identical to last year's when 20 leagues operated, since two will merge to form this summer's Florida Rookie League.

Several circuits open their seasons this weekend, including the International, Pacific Coast, Texas, Southern and Carolina Leagues. Three member leagues in Mexico are already under way.

New cities in the minor league line-up include many trying baseball comebacks, such as Toledo, Vancouver, Amarillo, Montgomery and Newport News.

Dropouts from last season include Richmond, Dallas, San Antonio, Charleston, W.Va., and Macon.

Major league farm systems have resembled withering vines the last 15 years. There were more than twice as many minor leagues in 1950 as there are today. But the vines are still playing their same vital role — developing big league talent.

Piton says a check of last year's mid-season major league rosters shows there wasn't a single first-year player without minor league experience.

Despite signs of stability in minor league baseball, Piton concedes there are still big problems ahead. Next season, major league baseball moves into the Deep South — to Atlanta, now an International League city and not far from several Southern League cities.

Piton feels, however, that major league owners may soon end their rapid franchise-shifting.

The South catcher had tagged Daniels but then dropped the ball and was charged with an error when the T-Bird outfielder touched the plate to score. For Want of a Jumper Tigers Third in Track

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

An ancient bard once proclaimed that for the want of a nail a shoe, horse, rider, battle and eventually a war was lost.

Coach Frank Flood today could say just about the same thing — only his need was for a Colorado College student-athlete who could manipulate the triple-jump.

It was by the slim margin of 2½ points that Flood's Tiger track team was edged by Western State College in CC's first home meet of the season on Washburn's rather dilapidated cinder path Tuesday.

Oh yes, there was another entered in the triangular. But neither Flood nor the Western State runners from Gunnison were too concerned about visiting Chadron State College from Nebraska. Chadron quickly established itself as the class of the meet and walked off with top honors on 81½ points.

So the real battle remaining for CC and Western was for second place — some 30 points behind the leaders. As it turned out, the Mountaineers took final event — the triple jump — and grabbed second, 50½-48.

Colorado College was ahead in the race for runnerup by 6½ points until that fateful hop, skip and jump. But CC couldn't gain one point in the belated windup and thus had to settle for third in the three-way affair.

With good balance in all the running events, Chadron's red-clad harriers shot into the lead after seven of the 17 races and steadily increased their margin until the end. There wasn't a double winner in the bunch for the Nebraska visitors, but they easily dominated the meet once the initial field events were run off.

For CC, iron man Tony McGinnis was the top star and leader of the meet with victories in the mile and two-mile runs and a second place in the half-mile. Otherwise, the only firsts came from Lance Clark in the pole vault and Ed Loosli's blue ribbin in the high hurdles. Loosli also took second in the 330 intermediate hurdles.

Western State, erstwhile leaguemate of the Tigers when they were members of the Rocky Mountain Conference, also had trouble breaking through the Chadron hold on victories. Besides the all-important triple-jump, Western won the high jump and 880-yard dash.

None of the times or marks in the field events were particularly outstanding, but probably typical of the competition between schools of this class. For instance, the 100 went in 10.5, the quarter in 49.3 seconds and the mile to McGinnis in 4:42.1.

The high jump was won in the hardly startling height of 5-10, the pole vault in 11 feet and the discus in only 139 feet.

There won't be much time for the Tigers to lick their wounds after Tuesday's season-opening defeat, as this afternoon CC was to travel to Alamosa for a triangular with Adams State College and New Mexico Highlands. Then on Saturday the Bengals will be back home again at Washburn against Colorado State College and Southern Colorado State of Pueblo.

Longmont Man Celebrates 71st Birthday--Runs Mile

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The world of track and field is full of mile runners, but little Joie Ray is something special.

The one-time star of the Illinois Athletic Club has a unique habit of celebrating his birthday by running a mile, and Tuesday Joie did just that — on his 71st birthday.

Today the man who competed in three Olympic Games — 1920, 1924 and 1928 — headed back to his home in Longmont, Colo., just north of Denver. He moved there a few years back after retiring as a steel worker for 23 years in Gary, Ind.

He made it clear he'll be ready for a birthday mile next year, and he hopes for a better time than Tuesday.

Ray was officially clocked by an AAU official, Sid Kronenthal, in "only" 7:36.0.

Joie, who in his years between 1912 and 1928 was America's foremost distance runner, was apologetic. He had hoped to get below 6:36.0, the time he had when he started the birthday run in 1954 at the age of 60.

"My legs got kinda tired but I haven't been able to train in two weeks, riding in a car and all that coming from Colorado to California," Joie explained. He came here to visit friends.

At home, rain, snow or whatever, Ray said he runs two miles nearly every day, and he was not the least winded after his run Tuesday. He had, in fact, warmed up by trotting four or five times around the quarter mile track at Helms Field at the Culver City High School.

There was one thing Ray forgot — his running pants.

But Bill Schroeder, director of the Helma Athletic Foundation, solved this. He made a hasty trip to Helms Hall and returned with the lucky shorts worn by Bob Mathias in his Olympic decathlon triumphs.

There had been a brief notice in the papers that Ray, once the most sought after runner in America, would be on display.

Scores of old admirers and curious new ones turned out. Included were 10 or 12 small fry who trotted in respectful distance behind the man who was a sports hero even before their fathers were born. Ray once held the world indoor record at 4:12. He doesn't expect to match it again, but he's sure he can do better than 7:36.0.

Terry's Debut With Indians Is a Success

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The baseball season is just two days old, but Ralph Terry of the Cleveland Indians already has reached his prime goal.

Making his debut with the Indians, the 29-year-old right-hander pitched his first complete job done. I thought I pitched checked the Los Angeles Angels on four hits for a 7-1 victory Tuesday night.

It was an impressive start for the hero of the 1962 World Series who was traded away by the New York Yankees last October to complete the deal for Pedro Ramos asd went to spring training with only one aim:

"I'd just like to win one game, and go on from there."

But that wasn't all he said. He didn't directly point an accusing finger at the Yankees but said he felt they "gave up on me. When they did use me I got the job done. I thought I pitched well enough. But I think I could have worked a little more. I thought I had salvaged the job."

Terry, however, went off to the Indians, taking with him the memories of his 23-victory season in 1962 and obviously convinced that he was capable of producing a better record than last season's 7-11 mark.

In spring training, he earned the right to open the season — and against the Angels showed why he had moved into the No. 1 spot on the Indians staff.

Terry walked only one, struck out two and had a two-hit shutout until the Angels pushed across a run in the eighth inning. At one stretch, he retired 14 batters in succession.

Elsewhere in the American League, Al Kaline drove in five runs in Detroit's 11-4 walloping of Kansas City and the Chicago White Sox made the most of Baltimore mistakes for a 5-3 victory over the Orioles.

Flood conditions postponed the New York-Minnesota game. Washington and Boston were not scheduled.

In National League action, the Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis 3-1, Cincinnati whipped Milwaukee 8-3 and Pittsburgh downed San Francisco 5-2. The other clubs were not scheduled.

The Indians backed Terry's pitching with 12 hits, including a two-run homer by former Angel Leon Wagner. Larry Brown also drove in two runs, with a double and a single. Three errors by the Angels didn't help loser Fred Newman.

Terry lost his bid for a shutout in the eighth when Paul Schaal doubled and scored on Jose Cardenal's second single. It was the only time the Angels got a man past first base.

The Tigers put it away in a hurry against the A's, scoring 7 runs in the first two innings. Diego Segui, who started for Kansas City, gave up just one hit but walked six and allowed four runs before Detroit continued tne assault against Jose Santiagi and Fred Talbot.

Kaline singled across two runs in the second and slammed a three-run dohble in the ninth. Hank Aguirre got the victory with relief help from Dennis McLain.

The White Sox scored for runs in the first three innings with Most Valhable Player Brooks Robinson the goat for the Orioles.

Robinson's wild throw in the third inning enabled John Romano to score Chicago's third run and let Pete Ward reach third base. Ward scored the eventual deciding run on Ron Hansen's sacrifice fly.

Gary Peters got the victory while Steve Barber took the loss.

Pittsburgh 'Fireman' Saves Win Over San Francisco

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Al McBean is off and running — just when the San Francisco Giants thought they were.

McBean, the National League's Fireman of the Year in 1964, made his first relief appearance this season Tuesday night and preserved Pittsburgh's 5-2 victory over San Francisco.

His ninth-inning pitching stifled the Giants after they erupted for their first runs of the season in the previous inning.

It took Willie Mays to get San Francisco out of the scoreless rut that started with 10 innings against Pittsburgh in Monday's opener and lasted through 7 2-3 innings Tuesday night.

Following Matty Alou's bunt single, only the sixth hit off Bob Friend, Mays connected for his first home run and started the Giants on a rally that lasted into the ninth inning — almost.

With none out, Jim Hart and Jesus Alou singled, sending Friend into the clubhouse. Out of the bullpen came McBean, who made the same trip 58 times last year.

The 26-year-old ace promptly induced Tom Haller to hit into a double play and struck out pinch hitter Ed Bailey to earn his first save of 1965.

McBean posted 18 saves last season, which, coupled with eight victories in relief, brought him the title of Fireman of the Year. The Virgin Islands native lost only three times while compiling a 1.90 earned run average.

The Pirates were heartened by two other performances — those by Bill Virdon and Roberto Clemente. Virdon, a .243 hitter last year, srtoked two singles and walked once, driving in a run and scoring twice.

Clemente knocked in a run in the seventh inning with a single, his first hit of the season. The 1964 NL batting champion missed much of spring training while suffering from malaria and at one time wasn't even sure he would be able to start the season.

In other NL games, Cincinnati whipped Milwaukee 8-3 and Chicago stopped St. Louis 3-1.

In the American League, Cleveland walloped Los Angeles 7-1, Chicago defeated Baltimore 5-3 and Detroit bombed Kansas City 11-4. Flood conditions forced postponement of the New York-Minnesota game.

Tony Perez' grand slam homer highlighted Cincinnati's victory. The homer, the first of the rookie first baseman's major leage career, broke open a tight game in the fifth inning. Coming off Denny Lemaster, it followed Vada Pinson's single and walks to Frank Robinson and Deron Johnson.

Johnson earlier drove in three Reds' runs. The Braves' Joe Toore, who homered twice Monday, singled and double, driving in one run and scoring two.

Rookie Roberto Pena clouted his second homer in as many days, leading the Cubs past the world champion Cardinals. Pena's fourth-inning blow came off starter Curt Simmons, who had retired the first 10 men he faced.

Pena walked in the sixth and eventually scored an insurance run on Julian Javier's wild throw to first. St. Louis tallied on successive doubles by Lou Brock and Bill White in the first inning.

'Cabin Creek Comet' Heads Laker Advance in Finals

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cabin Creek Comet has led the Los Angeles Lakers into the championship playoff final of the National Basketball Association for the third time in four years.

The Cabin Creek Comet is Jerry West, who gained the moniker from his home town in West Virginia. He scored 42 points as the Lakers defeated the Baltimore Bullets 117-115 Tuesday night to win their best-of-7 Western Division final playoff, four games to two.

The Philadelphia 76ers beat the champion Boston Celtics 112-106 and forced the Eastern Division final playoff to a seventh and deciding game Thursday night in Boston.

A Baltimore turnout of 8,590 saw the 6-foot-3 West, a former All-America at West Virginia University, complete a sensational series against the Bullets and make good his prophecy that the Lakers would win in six games.

"West was fantastic throughout the series," said Fred Schaus, the Laker coach. "When Elgin Baylor was injured everyone in the league wrote us off, but we came through."

Baylor injured a knee early in the first game and underwent an operation, but West stepped into the breach and more than carried the load.

He scored 49 points in the first game of the series on April 3 and followed through with games of 52, 44, 48, 43 and 42 for a total of 278 points.

His 42 points Tuesday included six clutch points in the closing minutes as the Lakers held off a Baltimore rally. In addition, he handed out five assists as well as making a vital steal.

West's performance overshadowed the 31 points scored by his teammate, Dick Barnett, and Don Ohl's 34 for the Bullets. It also eclipsed Philadelphia's victory over Boston that squared their series at 3-3.

A Philadelphia crowd of 11,182 saw the 76ers take a 17-point lead at 61-44, then survive a Boston rally that put the Celtics within three points at 107-104 with 90 seconds left. Hal Greer's one-hander and a free throw by Chet Walker pulled the 76ers out of danger.

Big Wilt Chamberlain, hampered by five fouls, didn't score in the last quarter, but was high for the game with 30 points. Tom Sanders topped the Celts with 25.

Boston Coach Red Auerbach had little to say afterwards except "We'll beat them at home."

Philadelphia hasn't won all season in Boston.

Kadets Bombard Panthers Set for Cheyenne, Friday

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Russ Lyon's Kadets of Academy High, who haven't won a baseball league championship, attempt to snap a six-year losing jinx against perennial conference kingpins from Cheyenne Mountain when the two Will Rogers League powers butt heads in a showdown battle Friday.

The undefeated Kadets displayed another hit-barrage as the Big Blue batsmen struck for 16 hits to pace an overwhelming 15-4 win over then-unbeaten Harrison to highlight Tuesday's loop slate.

This was the second time the Academy High bombers found the range at the plate as Lyon's baseballers racked Widefield last week for 13 hits as they dumped the winless Gladiators by a considerable margin of 15-6.

Slated for Cheyenne's new baseball field, the Academy High-Cheyenne game will not only decide the present WRL leader but it will serve as a yard stick in deciding the round robin league championship.

The Kadets will be looking for their first league victory over Cheyenne's Indians, even though the latter team enjoyed a nine-year reign as undefeated Pikes Peak League victors — a remarkable 56-game winning streak was the result of Cheyenne's nine-year stronghold in the PPL. But this season the Indians have broken the ice when they proved they were vulnerable as Cheyenne's 56-game win streak was broken two weeks ago against Harrison; a team which succumbed to Academy High by 11 runs on Tuesday.

Friday's crucial outing at Cheyenne will pit the loop's two ace chuckers in what could be a battle of the moundsmen. Lefty John Gannon of Academy High will face Cheyenne's portside curve-baller Ted Garcia.

However, both Cheyenne and Academy High have the stick power which could make for a high-scoring contest.

In other action this week Canon City entertains Pueblo Catholic in a twin bill Saturday as the other four WRL teams are idle after Friday's single encounter at Cheyenne and Thursday's Canon City-Harrison outing.

By defeating Harrison's Panthers Tuesday, Academy High took over the top spot in WRL standings via a 3-0 record. Cheyenne and Harrison are tied for second place with 2-1 won-loss records, while Canon City has a 1-2 mark and Widefield is winless in four games.

Gannon throttled the Harrison batters as the lefty fireballer contained the Panthers to two hits during his six frames on the mound. Gannon struck out 10 batters and walked three as the Kadet chucker's pill-size fast ball and breaking stuff overwhelmed the Panthers.

Mark Baker pitched the last inning for Academy High and the Kadet right-hander stifled Harrison's batters, even though the Panthers managed to score two unearned runs.

In addition to his pitching chores, Gannon collected two hits and drove in one run.

But it was Vance Wilson's bat that sparked the Kadet 16-hit barrage as the Academy High first baseman went three for four, including a home run, a double and a single, and Wilson scored two runs and collected five RBI's. And Wilson's first-inning homer over the left-field fence was his first hit of the season.

Bill Johnson, who turned the trick against Cheyenne last week, was charged with the loss. Johnson was bombarded for seven runs on six hits in the opening frame and the Harrison sophomore hurler was tagged for another single in the next stanza before Coach Ramsom Weber replaced him with Erwin Siedentopf.

Pinch-Hit Home Run Gives Cheyenne Win

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

If any baseball coaches are in need of a pinch-hitter, you might ask Cheyenne Mountain coach Tom McCord about a loan of Dick McKenna.

But don't hold your breath. McKenna, a strapping left-hander, smashed a two-run pinch-hit homer Tuesday as Cheyenne beat Widefield, 4-2, on the Cheyenne field. Last week McKenna clouted a pinch-hit home run against Machebeuf.

Cheyenne's sixth-inning fireworks gave the Indians a 2-1 Will Rogers League record and set up Friday's 4 p.m. tilt with Air Academy High as another "must" win in the WRL. AAH stands on top of the league heap with an unbeated 3-0 record.

McKenna's 310-foot plus smash past right field probably would have only tied the score if it hadn't been for two solo circuit clouts by Indian third baseman Bill Massarand. The already .600-plus hitter boosted his average still further with home runs in the third and fifth innings.

Both homers were over the left field fence. The first just cleared the 320-foot barrier. The second landed some 350 feet from home plate.

Apart from those three homers, Cheyenne could do no serious damage to Widefield. The Gladiators took a 2-0 lead in the third and, except for Massarand's dangerous bat, made it hold up.

Paul Delay got things rolling with a leadoff walk and went to second when Indian first sacker Jeff Leigh didn't tag first on a sacrifice bunt by Warren Knight. Lindy Elton followed a wild pitch with a single to short left that scored both runners. The Glads put two more men on base after that, on a catcher's interference call and a fielder's choice, but a double play erased the threat.

Cheyenne had put on two men in each of the first two innings, but none reached third. Massarand teed off on his first blast and Ted Garcia followed with a double. He made third on an infield out and was stranded.

In the fifth, Steve Walrod led off with a double that hugged the left field line into the corner. Doug Heyliger followed with a fly out to left, but left fielder Don Tomsha relayed back to Delay at second to double off Walrod.

Leigh led off the sixth with a double to right field that got away from diving Mike Piotrowski. Greg Cramblit sacrificed Leigh to second and Mike Ling popped up. McCord pulled his No. 1 plate substitute into the game and McKenna responded with a one-ball smash.

Garcia gained his third win against two losses for the Indians. Dave Weih went the distance for the losers, who are 0-4 in WRL play.

Students Forge Tickets

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Four University of Georgia students charged with forging Masters Golf Tournament tickets have been suspended by the University.

Dean of Men William Tate said it was standard policy to suspend students charged with violation of state or national laws. He said Tuesday that details of the incident are incomplete and University authorities are investigating the case in cooperation with other agencies.

Meanwhile, a printer arrested at Athens in connection with the forgery is expected to be questioned concerning similar incidents at the Indianapolis 500. The printer faces a hearing today before Magistrate Raymond Lester.

Police Chief E. E. Hardy of Athens said Ronnie Paul Condron, 31, was charged with forgery on a warrant issued by an official of the Pinkerston Detective Agency.

M. P. Dorsch, chief of the Internal Revenue Service's intelligence division in Georgia, said in Atlanta that Condron would be questioned by federal agents in connection with the forging of tickets at Indianapolis.

"We want to determine whether there is any connection between Condron and what we believe to be a nationwide operation," Dorsch said.

Condron, released on bond of $5,000, said in a statement to police that he printed the tickets at the request of two of the students and charged them his usual printing rate of $35 for that type of job.

Revenue agents said the counterfeit season tickets to the Masters were sold for up to $50 each.

First Race Horses Arrive At Pikes Peak Meadow

The stable area at Pikes Peak Meadows opened for training this week, with 45 horses already listed on the grounds. Stable superintendent Harold Edgar began his summer-long duty of assigning stalls, with another 50 thoroughbreds expected before the end of the week.

The track itself will open for training by Thursday morning. The top cushion of sandy loam was in the final stages of preparation and harrowing late Tuesday.

First horseman to arrive on the grounds was Leroy McKinney, Lamar. Owner and trainer, who began preparing his tack and feed rooms last Friday. McKinney shipped his 10 horse stable in on Monday morning, including Liberty Pike, Sleepy Mose, Dandy, Pin Curl, and Dawes Fancy.

Another early arrival was Leonard Singleton's SM Stable of Pueblo, with seven horses under the care of trainer Junior Gonzales. Included were My Boy John, Space Needle, Pentwood, Strong Sheri, and Power Brake. Both My Boy John and Space Needle were claimed by Singleton at Bay Meadows last fall. Power Brake, a two-year-old colt by Sun Devil, was purchasec by Singleton in Kentucky.

Pikes Peak Meadows will open its 40-day thoroughbred racing season on May 7. The track is located midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo just off Highway 85-87.

Liston Makes Retirement Plans -- for Cassius

DENVER (UPI) — Former heavyweight champ Sonny Liston is a helpful gent. He plans to open a retirement venture. He wants Cassius Clay to be his first customer.

The burly 220-pound Liston said he will unveil the "retirement plan" May 25 at Boston. On that night he will step into the ring to meet Clay in a rematch for the heavyweight "title."

"So Clay says he's retiring after the fight," Liston said. "Well I've got a retirement plan all worked out for him."

He raised his big right mitt.

Liston divulged his plans for Clay Tuesday during a brisk two-hour workout at a Denver judo gym.

"I'm not going to pick a round, but I'm sure it won't go the distance," Liston said, admitting his knockout prediction in the last Clay fight might have hurt him.

"This time I'm going to take a lunch into the ring in case I have to fight all night," Liston said smiling.

"I got plans for Clay, but don't ask me to tell you," Liston said. "If I was going to rob a bank, I wouldn't tell you which one."

Liston sparred two rounds with Amos (Big Train) Lincoln, a 206-pounder from Los Angeles. He also exchanged quips with former heavyweight champion Joe Louis, who attended the workout.

"Liston looks pretty good," Louis said. "He's already sharp with his punches and in great condition. I'm proud of Sonny because he's in such good condition."

Sonny agreed he "felt good."

Clay won the title Feb. 25, 1964, when Liston could not make the seventh round because of a shoulder injury. Liston said the shoulder is completely healed.

Their rematch was postponed last November three nights before the fight when Clay underwent emergency hernia surgery.

Liston criticized the World Boxing Association and passed the WBA's champion, Ernie Terrell off with: "He's about the same as he was when he was my sparring partner."

But Liston said he would fight Terrell when he beats Clay.

On the World Boxing Association:

"What have they given to anybody? Does Terrell have a belt? Why don't they shut up until they're ready to give somebody something"? Liston said.

Then Liston jumped into the verbal ring.

"I'm Terrell's trainer, so he's the best heavyweight in the world," the former Brown Bomber said.

"In what world?" Liston asked. "The way I heard it, I was first and you were second."

Typical of the Liston - Louis sparring is the following:

Louis: "How much you weigh?"

Liston: "198."

Louis: "Man, your legs weigh that much."

Liston bristled twice during the workout. He shouted at an aide who played Lionel Hampton's "Railroad No. 1" at the wrong speed on a phonograph.

He snapped at this reporter when asked about his latest run-in with Denver police. He got a ticket for disobeying an order of a policeman when asked to move his car from a parking space in front of the Denver gym.

"I don't understand all this business," Liston said, scowling. "I didn't kill anybody. Anybody else can get a ticket and it's okay. But let me get a ticket and it's all over the world."

"That's enough," yelled Willie Reddish, Liston's manager. "That's a pretty ticklish question," Reddish said as he pulled Liston toward the showers.

Chamberlain Is Critical Of NBA; May Retire Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, in the concluding article of a two-part series in Sports Illustrated, says he has been beleagured by the pressures of basketball since his schoolboy days in Philadelphia.

The high-scoring star of the professional Philadelphia 76ers writes that he received several offers of illegal aid to change his mind about going to the University of Kansas, among them offers from "old grads of Dayton and Indiana."

Chamberlain also says he was harassed by agents from the Internal Revenue Service and the FBI, who were investigating reports of big money offers.

The 7-foot-1 center also continues his criticism of the National Basketball Association and suggests cutting the season from 80 games to 60, increasing the league to six teams in each division, and getting rid of what he calls the "bushville coaching system."

Chamberlain contends the shorter season would give the public better basketball; expansion would close the gap between the first- and last-place teams; and that stopping the practice of hiring ex-players and current players as coaches would give the public more confidence in those who run the game.

Chamberlain says he will make up his mind about staying in basketball during the summer, when he also plans to have his ailing stomach treated.

Worsley's Goaltending Job Sends Montreal to Stanley Cup Final Tilts

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Gump Worsley has earned a free pass to the National Hockey League playoff finals after a 12-year vigil but Punch Imlach will have to pay his way this time.

"It's been worth all the sweat and toil," Worsley said Tuesday night after his bulldog goaltending and Claude Provost's overtime goal had enabled the Montreal Canadiens to nip Toronto 4-3 and gain a Stanley Cup final-round berth for the first time since 1960.

Worsley was toiling for the second-division New York Rangers when the Canadiens last gained the championship round — and won the Cup for an unprecedented fifth straight year.

Two years later, the Gumper made his last post-season appearance prior to this one and the Rangers lost out in the semis to Imlach's Maple Leafs, who were on their way to the first of three consecutive playoff titles.

But, as the colorful Toronto pilot put it, "Lady Luck finally left us," and the Canadiens now will meet the survivor of the Detroit-Chicago series for the big money.

The Black Hawks forced their semifinal set into a deciding seventh game by blanking the Red Wings 4-0 Tuesday night behind goalie Glenn Hall and a recharged Scooter Line.

"That Gump Worsley. He was the guy who gave our guys confidence. Gump didn't quit."

Montreal Coach Toe Blake heaped praise on the chubby, 35-year-old veteran in the winners' dressing room after Provost had broken up the sudden-death struggle at 16:33 of the overtime session.

Gump, traded by the Rangers to Montreal two years ago, had weathered an early Toronto storm — three goals in 1½ minutes — and had shut out the defending Cup champs for the last hour and 12 minutes. He stopped 34 shots in his fourth start since replacing injured Charlie Hodge in the Canadiens' cage.

The Canadiens trailed 3-1 with only 3:49 gone in the game after Toronto's Dave Keon and Red Kelly scored while the Leafs were shorthanded and rookie Ron Ellis connected seconds after a goal by Montreal's John Ferguson. The four goals were the fastest four scored in playoff history.

Montreal defenseman Jacques Laperriere, who slid into the boards and broke his left ankle later in the game, pulled the Canadiens within reach midway in the second period, tipping Bobby Rousseau's slap shot past Toronto goalie Johnny Bower.

Rousseau's fourth goal of the series tied the socre at 6:29 of the third period and Provost slammed home a centering pass from Henri Richard to win it in overtime.

The Leafs were shorthanded on the first three Montreal goals Tuesday night. Eleven of the Canadiens' 17 goals in the series were scored on power plays.

The home-ice edge held up at Chicago, where the Hawks evened their series with their third home victory. The seventh game is set for Detroit Thursday night, and Wings' Coach Sid Abel was confident the regular season champions would come through at home.

"We're hard to beat on our ice and they're hard to beat on theirs," he said. "But we now have the advantage, no doubt about it."

Stan Mikita, Chicago's NHL scoring champion, broke loose for his second goal of the series in a three-goal third-period flurry that sealed the Hawks' victory. Ken Wharram, Mikita's linemate on the Scooter unit, triggered his first goal in the set. Red Hay and Phil Esposito completed the scoring.

Hall turned aside 33 shots on the way to his shutout.

Rams Get Currie, Dale Goes to Packers in Trade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' linebacking has been strengthened with the addition of Dan Currie and the green Bay Packers have Carroll Dale to bolster their pass-receiving corps.

The Rams, who lost linebacker Jack Pardee via retirement, Tuesday received Currie, 29 — a 1962 All-National Football League selection and 6-3, 240, seven-year Green Bay veteran.

In return, the Packers got Dale, 27, a 6-2, 200-pound split end and five-year performer for the Rams.

"We lost our first draft choice," said Packer Coach Vince Lombardi, referring to end Larry Elkins of Baylor who was signed by the rival American Football League. "As a result we needed a receiver with speed.

"Dale can run the 100 in less than 10 seconds."

Ram Coach Harland Svare said, "It was not an easy trade to make," dealing away his most experienced end.

"We regret losing Carroll, but we feel it's better to have inexperienced pass receivers rather than inexperienced linebackers."

Currie was the Packers' first draft choice following the 1957 season. Dale was Los Angeles' eighth-round draft choice in 1959.

Rookie Pena Making Splash With Chicago

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie shortstop Roberto Pena of the Chicago Cubs, a little guy with blacksmith's biceps, has made a smashing major league baseball debut as a $45,000 steal.

In his first nine big league trips to the plate, Pena — a native of the Dominican Republic — has slammed two home runs, a double, and a single; has driven across four runs and has scored four runs.

It was Pena's second homer in two days Tuesday which launched the Cubs to a 3-1 triumph over the world champion St. Louis Cardinals after the two teams played a 10-10 tie Monday in an 11-inning game called because of darkness.

Pena, only 5-foot-8, but weighing 170 and built like former boxing champ Henry Armstrong, came to the Cubs last Dec. 9 as a sort of gift from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

A Pirate chattel at Asheville in the Southern League, Pena — who has his 25th birthday next Saturday — was acquired in a swap for veteran shortstop Andre Rodgers. Pittsburgh also threw in $20,000 cash.

Only a few days previously, the minor league draft deadline ended without anybody claiming Pena for the $25,000 price tag. Thus, the Cubs saved themselves $45,000, albeit yielding Rodgers.

All of Pena's previous experience has been in the minors, starting in 1960 with Hobbs in the Sophomore League, and including one season stints in the Three I, South Atlantic, Carolina and Southern Leagues.

Last season, he batted .303 and hit 14 homers for Asheville and in one three game stretch belted four homers.

He was observed closely by Rube Wilson, the Cubs' scout in the Dominican Winter League, after his purchase from the Pirates.

"He's more of a line drive hitter than a home run slugger," said Wilson. "Actually, he may be a better fielder than hitter. But what impressed me most is that he really wants to play."

Laguna May Fight Elorde in Non-Title Go

PANAMA (AP) — A non-title bout with Flash Elorde of the Philippines is one of several propositions being considered today for newly crowned lightweight champion Ismael Laguna of Panama.

His handlers said no decision will be made until Laguna has a vacation in Acapulco, Mex.

Howard Pulls Elbow Muscle; Out for Week

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elston Howard of the New York Yankees has joined five other catchers sitting on the sidelines with the baseball season only two days old.

Howard's injury — a pulled muscle above the elbow of his throwing arm — will keep him out of action at least a week.

Howard was unable to lift his arm on the Yankees' plane when they left Minneapolis after the opening game Monday. An examination Tuesday disclosed Howard had re-injured the same muscle he had hurt during an exhibition set in Puerto Rico.

"I can't play," Howard said as he displayed a swollen elbow. "I can't throw and I can't even straighten out my arm."

Howard will be replaced by John Blanchard.

Other catchers currently sitting it out with various ailments are Bill Freehan of Detroit, Earl Battey of Minnesota, Jim Pagliaroni of Pittsburgh and Tim McCarver and Bob Uecker of St. Louis.

Astros Have It--Orioles Need Dome

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles played their traditional "It's a Beautiful Day for a Ball Game" recording just before gametime, and then found out that it wasn't.

Not only did the Orioles drop their American League baseball opener 5-3 to the Chicago White Sox, but the game dragged on for two hours and 46 minutes in miserable weather conditions.

With temperatures in the mid-50s and wind gusts up to 94 miles an hour, it was not only fashionable to arrive late for the game but also smart.

Just as Don Buford of Chicago stepped into the batter's box to open the game, a straw hat was blown out of the upper deck and rolled down the net in back of the plate.

Buford walked on four pitches as Baltimore pitcher Steve Barber had trouble warming to his task. When Buford stole second, it was immediately suspect that he was running mainly to keep warm.

Although they had a clear view of the field, members of a band beyond the outfield fence stood almost all the time so they could keep moving for warmth. No matter what tune they played between innings, the music was cool, man, cool.

If it had been the Lawrence Welk outfit, they would have been blowing icicles instead of bubbles.

The flags rimming Memorial Stadium were standing straight-out almost the entire game, and by the fourth inning the American flag on the center field flagpole was tattered enough to resemble an American Revolution relic.

Manager Hank Bauer of the Orioles said he never recalled a game being played in windier weather. Manager Al Lopez of Chicago remembered only one topper — in Boston during the 1930s when the second game of a doubleheader was called just before a hurricane moved into the area.

The only person who didn't seem to mind the weather was Bill Veeck, former American League club owner. As customary, the sport shirt under his suit coat was open at the collar — as if he had thermal skin.

For the rest of the 39,455 fans, a game under such conditions offered the perfect excuse to construct a domed stadium.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He's Too Friendly!

DEAR ABBY: For several years Jayson and Rita and my husband and I have been every good friends. We see each other in the evenings about two nights a week. Jayson is a salesman, so when he is in my neighborhood he frequently drops in for a cup of coffee. It's perfectly innocent, I assure you, but lately he has been coming much more often. My children remarked that their playmates have mentioned it. I suspect the neighbors are talking because they see his car in front of our house so many afternoons.

Now that I think about it, I am not quite sure how I would like it if my husband called on a married woman in the afternoon. How can I tell Jayson it would be better if he didn't drop in any more? I hate to hurt his feelings. —ONLY FRIENDS

DEAR ONLY: The best approach is the direct one. Tell Jayson that his visits have become a neighborhood gossip, and it would be better for all concerned if he discontinued his afternoon drop-in visits.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl who turned 15 last week, but I am very mature for my age. Physically, I mean. I like a boy who is a senior at school and he is real neat. He has started to walk me home from school every night and we always take the long way by walking through the park. My mother is afraid I will get into trouble if I keep letting this boy walk me home every night. Do you think there is any danger? —LIKES HIM

DEAR LIKES: Not if you keep walking.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who won't buy his child a piano even though he could get one wholesale? Our 13-year-old child has begged for a piano for years. She hasn't done very well in school and I am sure it's partly due to the fact that she is brooding about not being able to learn how to play the piano. She's promised that she would practice, but her father says, "I know how much you'll practice after the newness wears off. Besides, we can't afford one." We are not rich, but we could afford a piano, I know.

It's true, we may have to keep after her to practice, but if she has talent and enjoys it, he will be glad we bought it. And if she doesn't have talent, we can always sell the piano. How can I make my husband see how selfish and foolish he is? —A CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If you could rent a piano long enough to let the child prove her interest, Father may become convinced. If that won't sell, how about a relative? If there are no kinfolk or understanding friends nearby, how about the school, the church, or the "Y"? I think the little girl should have a chance, too .

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Pat": The surest way to destroy your enemy is to make him your friend.

South chalked up his game contract in spades by scoring his trumps separately. Once his plan became obvious, however, a little more alertness on the part of the defense would have diverted him from his goal.

West opened the eight of hearts and East put up the jack —South won the trick with the king. A diamond was led to the ace and a small diamond was ruffed in the closed hand. A club was played next and, when West ducked, the queen was put up as East dropped the jack.

Another diamond was trumped by South and dummy was put in once more with the ace of hearts to ruff the last diamond as both defenders followed suit. Declarer cashed his ace of spades for the eighth trick and then exited with a club. West was in with the ace and continued with ten of clubs. North ruffed with the nine of spades and East overruffed with the jack. East cashed a heart trick, but the forced spade return from the queen-five into dummy's king-ten gave South the last two tricks and his conreact.

West could have extricated his partner from the fatal end-play by putting up the ace of clubs when South first led that suit at trick four. Declarer is deprived of a vital entry to dummy and cannot ruff out all of the diamonds. If South attempts to continue the stripping process, East can ruff the second round of clubs, cash his heart trick and then exit with a diamond waiting to score the setting trick in the trump suit.

WASHINGTON — (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) — Washington is keeping an eye on White House moves with respect to pay increases for Federal employes and military personnel, as well as pay raises for Federal employes and military personnel in retirement. The White House is trying to persuade Congress not to act on these two pay programs until the two Presidential panel groups have made their report and recommendations. This would mean no retired pay increase until 1966.

Congress is under terrific pressure from retired Federal lobbyists and top ranking Pentagon officials, and may have a show down with the Administration. Informed sources here have not changed their position that the military will get a 7 per cent increase. Retired Civil Service employes probably will get a 10 per cent and annuitants under Social Security 7 per cent.

Nothing for military retirees seems to be on the books at this time. This is due to the rapidly increasing military retired budget now containing more than 400,000 retirees.

Informed budget planners say that if the Secretary of Defense ever really studies the retirement problems, he could readily save millions of dollars in future retirement costs. One good question raised by the planners is why retain Reservist and National Guardsmen on the military retirement rolls?

All are more than 60 years of age and are not on the same footing as retired officers, due to the Reynolds and other Court of Claims decision. These planners say that it would be a more realistic retirement program for the military if the Reservists were transferred to the Veterans Administration as "veterans."

Such a move, involving hundreds of thousands of potential retirees for the next five years, would make possible a more intelligent retirement program for career officers and men.

Congressman Hervey G. Machen, Md., has introduced a bill in the House to preserve the retirement rights of members of Congress and Federal employes who are Reservists and ordered transferred to the standby reserve by Secretary of Defense McNamara. All Reserve officers interested in a copy of the bill should write to Congressman Machen and ask for it.

Latest word from the Hill has it that there may be some compromise in the Pentagon proposal to merge the Reserve and the National Guard but the program will go through. Congressman F. Edward Hebert has been getting quite a play in the press on his charges that the Pentagon has tried to ignore the fact that the Constitution gives Congress the say on what the Reserve will be.

Congressman Hebert's voice was silent last year when the question of violation of the Constitution by members of Congress holding Reserve commissions was up.

The Army is hoping for early Defense Department approval of an Air Assault Division. Air Force is taking a dim view of the proposal.

The new black uniform for dress for the Air Force may be available for sale within the next six months.

In the hassle that has been developing with respect to the Reserve merger one of the most unbelievable facts that have arisen is how few Reserve officers and even members of Congress are not aware of the fact that the State Adjutants General do not command troops.

They are really the executive officer to the Governor for military matters. Maj. Gen. W. P. Wilson of the National Guard Bureau had to set Congressional members right on this. Most of the propaganda from the Reserve lobby developed the false information.

The panel studying the retirement programs of the Federal Government will hold public hearings here in Washington some time in June or July, to try and understand the grass root thinking of what may be done to improve these programs. Any one that has suggestions that would be helpful and is not able to attend in person could write a letter to the Presidential Committee on Retirement, Wash. D. C.

One good suggestion, if it has the support from military retiree would be that survivors of a Career retiree receive a tax-free annuity equal to 50 per cent of the retiree's pay. This is now true of the Social Security System.

The decision of the Administration to move an additional 3,000 Marines, plus Marine jet aircraft, into Vietnam complex, confirms an exclusive item here of several columns ago that Marines would makes news in Pacific. More to follow on this. Washington is making no statement as to possibility that Lt. Gen. Victor Krulak, the outstanding Marine guerrilla leader, may move from Hawaii to Vietnam.

While Armed Services people are looking forward to the 1965 pay raise, whatever income they have will be tapped for new tax. The House has approved and sent to the Senate a long-debated Medicare program. Starting Jan. 1, 1966, active duty personnel will find their social security tax hit for a special health tax. This new tax will range up to $19.60 per person per year. By 1987 it should reach $52.80 a year.

The medicare would become effective as the retiree attains age 65 and would provide up to 60 days of hospital care for each illness, less $40 of the charges. It will not cover the normal family physician fees.

Fighting desperately on the floor of the Senate to "protect" the Reserve retired pay of members of Congress holding Reserve commissions, recently moved into the non-participating Reserve pool by Secretary McNamara, Sen. Howard W. Cannon of Nev., a Major General in the Air Reserve, met defeat at the hands of Senator John Stennis.

Cannon, mindful of his estimated $3,600 annual Reserve retired pay, tried to add a rider to the pending military authorization bill that would have exempted Reserve officers from being shifted into inactive Reserve status by the Pentagon unless the individual Reservist wished such an assignment to be made.

It was rather apparent that the rider would not meet the approval of the Senate and the House, so Stennis talked Cannon out of his idea. It would have enroached into the authority of the President of the United States in his status as Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces. The President, by law, delegates this authority to the Secretary of Defense.

The Secretary of Defense seems to be determined to break up the influence of the Reserve lobby with respect to the "inside" influence with members of Congress.

According to Pentagon sources if this cannot be done by administrative action it is quite possible that the Comptroller General may be asked to rule on the legality of payments of funds for training, to members of Congress that are Reservists. A negative decision would mean that the members might have to pay back such payments.

Nils A. Lennartson, deputy Assistant Defense Secretary for Public Affairs, is leaving the Pentagon to accept a position as President of the Railway Press Institute.

The Pentagon says no civilian employe of the Armed Forces is expected to transfer to the Foreign Service program of the State Department if Congress approves pending bill now in Congress. This measure would transfer all Federal employes dealing with foreign affairs to the Foreign Service System.

Army Brig. Generals Robert R. Glass, Henry K. Benson, Edward C. D. Scherrer, Roland B. Anderson, and William A. Enemark will get their second star AUS. Colonels William A. McKee, William H. Price Jr., Lloyd H. Gomes, Omer S. Dews, and Samuel McC. Goodwin to Brigadier General AUS.

An Alabama National Guard unit is scheduled to conduct its field training in France this summer. This will be the first overseas deployment of a conventional type Army Reserve component from the United States. It will be known as Guardlift 11 and will have 17,000 Guardsmen and Reservists participating.

Arctic floes make an eerie, cracking sound. As they grind together in the grip of wind and current, the ice builds into a pressure ridge. Huge blocks rear 40 to 50 feet into the air. Minutes later, this structure, seemingly tough as steel, may snap and crumble onto the ice below with devasting force.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

I often suffer with pains in my arms and my hands are very stiff. But this physical suffering is minor compared to my fear of paralysis. In 1 John 4:18 the Bible says, "Perfect love casteth out fear." Will you please tell me how? —C. F.

Perfect love requires the complete surrender of your life to Christ. Are you willing to trust Him, and each day use whatever strength you have in His service? Are you willing to say, "If paralysis should come I'll accept it as my Cross, and still find a way to witness for my Lord?" Do this, and your fear will evaporate like morning mist before the sun.

If you have not already done so, go immediately to a physician whom you trust and ask him if there is any reason for your fear. He may prescribe exercises or treatments to relieve your condition. God often works through those who are His servants.

Even if your trouble cannot be cured, remember that very few people have no infirmity. Recall the lives of those who did most for humanity, and you will be aware that many of them labored under some physical handicap. Paul was not well, but he accomplished more than a dozen men.

If you would be free of this fear which grips you, push aside every thought of the future. Live today for Christ. Surrender your mind and your body to Him. Then you will know how "Perfect love casteth out fear."

He outlined his plans Tuesday night at a gathering of nearly 150 supporters of the $1.3-billion aid to education bill which he signed into law last Sunday.

Johnson said he would name a 60-day task force, including Budget Director Kermit Gordon and Civil Service Chairman John W. Macy Jr. to prepared administrative machinery to put the school bill into effect quickly.

This summer, he said when school is out, he will call an education conference of teachers, principals, school superintendents, state officials and others. He said the conferences on health, beautification and civil rights would follow.

Minimum Wage Hike Is Being Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says he is confident the Johnson administration will seek to increase the federal minimum wage from its present level of $1.25 per hour.

"I am quite confident there will be an adjustment and that it will be upward," Humphrey said Tuesday in a speech to AFL-CIO officials.

Labor leaders have been demanding that the minimum wage be lifted to $2 an hour, but a spokesman for the AFL-CIO indicated the labor federation would be satisfied with an increase to $1.50 an hour.

Humphrey also said the administration would seek to expand minimum wage coverage but declined to say how many additional workers it would seek to cover.

PLEASE!!!

Look at me and make an offer. My owner is leaving Colorado and I'm going to have that "empty" feeling soon. I'm the homey type and my three friendly bedrooms are used to children being around (meanwhile kids too, they have helped keep me in very good condition). The neighborhood is nice, near schools and a large shopping center. My keeper is OK, but I'd like to look you over and see if we can live together as home and family. Call my keeper, BILL BENTON 633-5561 or 635-9747, he says the FHA down is only approx. $450.00 with low monthly payments.

P.S.
I have also talked him in to considering assumption of my 4½% existing loan with $99.00 total monthly payments or a trade or VA Conventional refinancing. Hope you come visiting soon. THANKS, signed A HOUSE.

House to Vote On Disability, Succession

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to make certain that there will always be a president and a vice president able to carry on their duties comes before the House today.

It is the last major business before the House starts its Easter recess. Approval is expected Wednesday.

The House proposal is similar one passed in February by the Senate by a 72-0 vote. Should the measure finally clear Congress by two-thirds vote of both branches, it would have to be ratified by 38 states to become part of the Constitution.

The measure is designed to provide for such contingencies as the disability of a president or a vacancy in the vice presidency that officer moves into the White House.

In the event a president died and the vice president took over, the new chief executive would nominate a vice president who would take office if confirmed by a majority vote of the Senate and the House.

Should a president become disabled enough not to be able to carry out his duties, he would notify Congress. Then the vice president would act as president until the disability is removed.

However, should a president decline to declare himself incapacitated, the vice president and the majority of the Cabinet could give Congress a written opinion that they believe the president should be relieved of his duties temporarily. The vice president then would assume the powers of acting president.

A disabled president could determine when he was fit and ready to resume his official duties. If the vice president and a majority of the Cabinet disagreed with the presidential finding, Congress would have 10 days to decide the issue. At the end of that period, the president would resume his office unless a two-thirds vote of both branches decided otherwise.

The 10-day limit on congressional action is the main difference between the Senate and the House bills. It was drafted by the House Judiciary Committee to forestall indefinite congressional delay in acting on a presidential declaration that a disability has been removed.

Coast Guard Boards Soviet Fishing Craft

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — Capt. Henry Keene Jr., commander of the Ketchikan Coast Guard base, said Monday that for the first time the Coast Guard boarded a Soviet fishing vessel on the high seas last month.

He said the cutter Storis found a Soviet fishing fleet taking king crab with tangle nets off Kodiak March 26, violating a 6-week-old Soviet-U.S. treaty. Crabs can be taken only with pots in the area.

Keene said the captain of the big Soviet factory ship Pavel Chebotnyagin "professed to know nothing of the treaty. He immediately ordered the 12 catcher boats to haul in their nets."

CEMETERY WEED CONTROL—A long range weed control program is now under way at Evergreen Cemetery. Shown here discussing some of the phases of the program are (from left) John A. Miller, professional landscaper and architect; John Auld and Don Romero, cemetery employes; Jack Sutton, botanist; and Stuart Richter, director of City Parks and Recreation Department. About 10 acres in the cemetery will be reconditioned this year. Miller and Sutton, two experts in their field, have developed the program which started earlier this month.

Palmer Lake Club Slates Sunrise Service

The Kiwanis Club of Monument-Palmer Lake has slated its annual Easter Sunrise Service and Pancake Breakfast for Sunday. The public is invited.

The service will be held at 7 a.m. outside the Palmer Lake Town Hall. It will be conducted by the Rev. Russell Jones and Joe Arnold, both Kiwanis members. Music will be furnished by the Kiwanis Male Quartet.

A ham and pancake breakfast will be served from 7:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the Palmer Lake Town Hall. The charge is $1 for adults and 75 cents for children 12 and under.

Many fishes sleep, with their eyes open since fish lack eyelids. They sleep lying down, erect on the bottom, buried to the snout in sand or suspended in water.

March of Dimes Chairman Named for Drive

Fred R. Reynolds has been elected chairman of the March of Dimes for 1965-66.

Reynolds, an active member of the Colorado Springs chapter for three years, is a member of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Jaycees national committee on the 10 outstanding young men's program, member of the Izaac Walton League and is a member of the Round Up Club. He is a partner of Schaefer and Reynolds Certified Public Accountants.

Reynolds was graduated from Iowa State University and served three years with the Army Security Agency. Affiliated with the Holy Trinity Church, Reynolds and his wife, Delores, reside at 2729 N. Prospect.

Work on next year's March of Dimes program already has started and the new chairman pledges to exceed this year's total by 20 per cent. Funds raised are used for care of polio victims and for treatment of persons with birth defects in Colorado Springs.

Memorial for FDR Is Dedicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington's first memorial to President Franklin D. Roosevelt was dedicated Monday, and a short time later President Johnson placed a wreath of red and white carnations at the stone. Roosevelt died April 12, 1945.

"Truly today's America is his America more than it is the work of any man," Johnson said in a memorial statement.

Johnson won his first election to Congress while Roosevelt was president, and has long regarded him as his mentor.
